PRICE PANEL KNOCKS PAY BOARD, MINERS CONTRACT
IN AN INDIRECT SLAP at the Pay Board, the Price Commission announced Wednesday it had approved a pattern-setting coal price increase that would absorb less than two-thirds of the recent 15 per cent hike for miners. While carefully avoiding any comment critical of the wage control panel, Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson made clear that his group was going to use the Pay Board's own 5.5 per cent pay boost guideline in determining price increases. "To permit more would be inflationary," Grayson told newsmen. "We did not consult with the Pay Board." As the Price Commission disclosed its decision on coal, Congress worked with mixed results on legislation that would extend the administration's legal authority to continue wage-price controls beyond the present expiration date of April 30, 1972. In the Senate, where an extension bill was near passage, leaders got word that the administration was willing to drop its fight against granting back pay for raises that were supposed to have been paid during the 90-day freeze and giving federal workers and servicemen a 5.5 per cent boost Jan. 1 instead of next summer. Similar legislation hit a snag in the House, however. Protesting the Price Commission's decision, the coal industry said that "if with one hand the government has approved a wage contract, another hand of government cannot legitimately compel the industry to operate at a loss."

STOCK MARKET ZOOMS UPWARD FOR FIFTH STRAIGHT DAY
MORE INVESTORS jumped on the roaring stock market express Wednesday. Averages climbed for the fifth consecutive session and volume mushroomed to 21,040,000 shares, the heaviest since mid-August. The Dow Jones industrial average scored a gain of 14.67, to 846.01. It brought to nearly 50 points the rise in the blue chip barometer since last Wednesday. Advances outdistanced declines, 1,238 to 292. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index spurted 1.55 to 95.54 and the NYSE common stock index rose 68 cents.

SENATE VOTES TO EXEMPT PRESS FROM WAGE-PRICE CONTROLS
THE SENATE voted Wednesday to exempt the press from wage and price controls to avoid the possibility of government "economic censorship," but it refused to exempt small business. By a vote of 50 to 36, the Senate wrote the press exemption into a bill extending President Nixon's powers to control the economy until May 1, 1973, and then moved toward final approval of the bill itself. The exemption, proposed by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., applies to the prices charged and the wages paid by the newspaper, news service, book, magazine and radio and television industries. Opponents contended Congress should not single out the news media for special treatment. But Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., considered the Senate's constitutional expert, and others contended that the Constitution itself offers special protection to the press that is afforded no other industry.

INDIAN ASSAULT MAY SET UP REBEL PAKISTAN GOVERNMENT
INDIAN TROOPS inside East Pakistan cut a vital rail line linking the northwestern Dinajpur district with the rest of East Pakistan, Indian government spokesmen said Wednesday night. The action raised the possibility of a major assault to set up the rebel Benga Desh Bengal Land government in that area. Spokesmen made the disclosure while reporting a lull in the battle in the Hilli sector along East Pakistan's western border, about 180 miles north of Calcutta, where heavy fighting between Indian and Pakistani troops has been raging since last Saturday. Indian officials claimed the attack was made by the rebel Mukti Bahini liberation force guerrillas. The report raised the possibility that a coordinated drive had begun to isolate Dinajpur from the rest of East Pakistan, thus making it a "liberated" zone from which the rebels' Benga Desh government can operate.

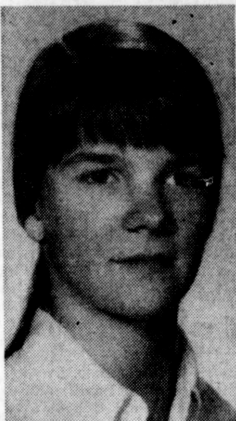

SOVIET MARS' PROBE TO SEARCH FOR LIFE
SOVIET SCIENTISTS Wednesday indicated their Mars probe will scoop soil from the red planet into a special growth chamber and examine it for "life activities of Martians." The government newspaper Izvestia published comments of several leading space scientists who took part in a roundtable discussion in connection with the flights of Mars 2 and Mars 3. Mars 2 went into orbit around the red planet Saturday after ejecting a capsule to land on its surface, bearing a Soviet pennant. Official reports of the mission did not say if the capsule soft-landed or what its scientific mission may be. Mars 3 is still on its way to Mars.

JUDGES' LAWYERS CLAIM RAYMOND 'A PERJURER'
ATTORNEYS for Superior Court Judges Edward J. DeSaulnier Jr. and Vincent P. Brogna Wednesday completed their final arguments in a Massachusetts Supreme Court inquiry into alleged misconduct of the judges. Attorneys Walter Hurley and Robert Mulkern both argued that underworld swindler Michael J. Raymond, who says he bribed the judges in 1962 in exchange for a suspended sentence of swindling charges, is not a credible witness. "This court is being asked to take the word of a social psychotic, a perjurer, a convicted swindler — a cancer on society," said Hurley. He asked the court to throw out the allegations against the judges because "Raymond's story is a complete fabrication not worthy of belief." Hurley also pointed out that Raymond contradicted himself several times when, 10 days ago, he told how he hired bail bondsman I. Charles Baker to arrange the bribe of Brogna through DeSaulnier.

BOSTON — TWO RACIALLY SEPARATE SCHOOL SYSTEMS?
THE BOSTON School Committee is responsible for creating "two separate, racially identifiable school systems" the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare charged Wednesday. Officials threatened to withhold $7.2 million in federal aid unless the School Committee can come up with an acceptable plan in time. The threat was the first to a major northern city brought by the Nixon administration. Boston school officials immediately denied the charge but promised to help in drawing up a plan to desegregate the school system.

PROPERTY TAXES DOUBLE IN FIVE YEARS
PROPERTY TAXES in Massachusetts have nearly doubled in five years, including a 13.6 per cent increase between 1970 and 1971, the Massachusetts Taxpayers Foundation (MTF) reported Wednesday. Robert A. Eaton, MTF president, said property tax revenues have climbed from $964 million in 1956 to more than $1.88 billion this year. "Next year is certain to be worse because nothing much has changed," he said.

Deny Hi-Rise On Centre St.

About 80 persons were present Tuesday evening at a special hearing of the Aldermanic Land Use Committee on a permit for permissive use to exceed height and density restrictions for a proposed high-rise luxury apartment house on the present site of the Newton Centre Woman's Club at 1280 Centre St.

After reading a petition of Newton residents asking that a decision be postponed until such time as the question of alternative uses has been resolved, the Committee voted unanimously to deny without prejudice the request by developer Michael Moskow.

Many-Talented Nun To Study in Orient

Sister Aileen Cohalan, organist and lecturer in music at Newton College of the Sacred Heart in Newton, will spend several weeks in December and January studying what she terms "the extraordinary development" of organ playing in Japan.

Plans for her trip to the Orient which had been made for this past summer were postponed after the diminutive, 70-year old nun accepted the role of Nanny in Paul Zindel's Pulitzer Prize play "The Effects of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds" in which she appeared for the

EPA Head Says Incinerator Designed By Lax Standard

Newton's Rumford Ave. incinerator was "designed to a mediocre standard" even at the time it was built, a Federal official charged Monday night. Mario Storazzi of 14 Buswell Park, Newton, Regional Program Director for Air Pollution Control with the Air Branch of the federal Environmental Protection Agency, (EPA) said at a meeting with the Aldermanic Public Buildings Committee that as a Newton taxpayer he was upset that the incinerator, completed five years ago, was designed to meet air pollution control standards set in the 1940's.

His statement was supported by Alderman David W. Jackson, an engineer, who said that although the incinerator design met existing emission standards of 85 grains of particulate matter per cubic foot (.85 pounds of matter per thousand pounds of gas, less 50 per cent excess air) at the time of its construction, it was known that standards were likely to be revised within two or three years.

Incinerators in some parts of the country were being built at the same time as the Rumford Ave. incinerator to meet a standard of .2 grains per cubic foot, Jackson said, but the aldermen chose to meet the less stringent standard.

Newton now faces the prospect of some $2 million in improvements for the Rumford Ave. facility—built at an initial cost of $2.3 million. The improvements are necessary to meet a new and stringent state guideline of .1 grain per cubic foot.

The state, pushed by amendments in the federal Clean Air Act, has given municipalities until July, 1972, to bring their incinerators up to date or risk shut-down by the state Attorney General.

Pollution levels are measured by a monitor which pushes air through a filter by means of a vacuum device and measures particles caught in the filter.

Readings from 30 state sampling stations, including one in Kenmore Square, must meet federal "ambient air quality standards."

Walter Smith, of the state Department of Health's Bureau of Air Use Management told the aldermen Monday night that since present readings do not meet federal standards, the state has adopted more stringent ones for both municipal incinerators and private industries.

Recycling as an alternative to renovation of the incinerator was strongly urged by Alderman William Carmen at Monday night's meeting.

Predicting that federal and state standards would continue to change, making the proposed renovations obsolete, Carmen urged the city to seek federal funds for a pilot project regional recycling plant, involving Brookline, Waltham, and other communities in a cost-sharing project.

"We've got to be the first if we're going to go looking for Federal money. Incineration is to recycling as the horse and buggy was to

Aldermen To Vote On Riverside Plan

The Board of Aldermen will vote next Monday night (Dec. 6) on a proposal by Riverside Associates for a nine-story office park on the Charles River at the Grove St. intersection of Rte. 128.

The Aldermanic Land Use Committee voted Tuesday night to bring the proposal before the full Board of Aldermen after reports from the city traffic consultant, Robert C. Blumenthal, indicated that with minor changes the Grove St.-Rte. 128 intersection could handle the load.

The proposed $6 million dollar facility, which would serve as U.S. headquarters for the Sun-Life Insurance Co., is ex-

Aldermen Question Fee For Underwood Design

Members of the Aldermanic Public Buildings Committee Monday night lashed out at Building Commissioner Charles R. Herbert for paying a $20,500 architects' fee to the firm of Haldeman and Foran for the design of the controversial Underwood School Annex.

The Buildings Committee passed a motion to withhold all further payments and to halt all design work until Dec. 9, when the Committee resolved to meet with the architects and the City Solicitor to discuss the question of an all-new design for the annex.

While Public Buildings Committee Member Alderman Harry H. Crosby contended that the plans could not be considered complete, because they were not acceptable to the School Committee, the Underwood School PTA or the aldermen, Commissioner Herbert maintained that, having completed plans to the satisfaction of Mayor Monte G. Basbas and the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Public Buildings, the architect was entitled to payment.

The dispute came to a head Monday night with a fund transfer request from the Building Commissioner, to increase architects fee for the Davis School, where two additional classrooms were proposed to accommodate the influx of children from the closing of St. Bernard's parochial school. Funds for the additional architects' fee - computed on a square footage basis to amount to $4000 - were to be taken from the allotment for the Underwood School, where only $20,500 of the $28,000 allocation had been spent.

The overall "package" price for the three school additions being designed by Haldeman and Gorenson remained the same: $56,250 for three schools, Underwood, Davis, and Lincoln - Elliot.

Aldermen expressed amazement that the Underwood architects fee had already been paid. "What if we don't accept the plans?" demanded Alderman Richard J. Bullwinkle. "They're not complete are they - he's got to do something further," added Alderman Joseph M. McDonnell.

In answer to Commissioner Herbert's query, "What do you want done?" Alderman Harry H. Crosby exploded, "I hate to seem obstreperous, but absolutely nobody has accepted those plans. They're terrible."

Part of the dispute centers around whether an adequate annex can be built if the design is restricted to the present school site, Mayor Monte G. Basbas "had made it crystal clear to the architects that the school would be built on that site, that there would be no additional land," Herbert reported, contending that the architects had produced an acceptable plan within the guidelines given.

The chronology of the dispute is complex. Plans are already in the works when the School Committee, at the end of July, came up with revised educational specifications requiring additional land for the annex, to accommodate teachers' parking, play space, and possible additional classroom area. Designs were completed and approved by mayor's advisory committee in September, and Commissioner Herbert encumbered money to pay the architects on Sept. 18.

Major unweaving of the plans came some three weeks later, at a joint meeting of the Aldermanic Public Buildings Committee with members of the School Committee and representatives from the Underwood School P.T.A., where the plans came in for extensive opposition, and it was agreed to request the closing of Vernon St. to allow additional land on the site.

The closing of Vernon St. was approved by the Traffic Commission at its Oct. 25 meeting, but never came before the Street Traffic Committee of the Board of Aldermen. A petition was filed last week by Alderman Joseph M. McDonnell and School Committeeman Vincent P. Stanton for the closing of the street.

'Re-Ed' Program
For Disturbed
To Be Defined

Members and friends of the Boston area chapter of the Association for Mentally Ill Children (AMIC) will hear Dr. Herbert Hoffman of Newton, author of "Take a Giant Step," a report on the re-education of disturbed children (written for the Massachusetts Advisory Committee on Education) at a meeting at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 7 at Boston University's George Sherman Union on Commonwealth Avenue near the B.U. Bridge.

In addition the group will hear a report from Mary McKinnon, a member of the Task Force for Children out of School and a director of the Fort Hill Mental Health Association, on parents' right to have their disturbed child in public education programs.

Hoffman, who has been active in special education in Newton and is presently a project director for the United Community Services, will describe techniques involved in the re-education programs (known as "Re-Ed") which are having increasing acceptance across the country.

Fete Planned On
Joseph Gattuso

Joseph A. Gattuso, who recently retired as Principal of Newtonville's Carr School to assume duties as Acting Assistant Director of Personnel of the Newton Public Schools, will be honored at a PTA "Tribute Evening" on Wednesday, January 12, 1972, 7-9:00 p.m., at the Frank F. Carr School. Officiating will be Mr. George Gallucci, Acting Carr School Principal.

A dessert for those attending will be followed by a program in honor of Mr. Gattuso's seven years' service to the Carr School.

Those who have known Mr. Gattuso in his years of service to Newton and Carr are invited to attend.

The PTA is now planning the evening's program and welcomes assistance and requests for further information. General Co-chairmen of the event are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kendig (527-2147) and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Goldenberg (527-6010).

Members of Temple Mishkan Tefila, Newton, will join in tribute to Bernard Garber, a longtime member and general chairman of the Israel Bond effort, at a State of Israel Tribute Dinner in the Temple on Sunday evening, Dec. 12.

His Excellency Shimon Peres, Israel's Minister of Transportation and Minister of Posts, will lead the tributes to Mr. Garber. Melvin A. Ross is dinner chairman, with Joseph M. Linsey and Irving Usen as honorary chairmen of the event.

"The tribute to Bernie Garber coincides with the lighting that night of the first candle for Chanukah," Mr. Ross pointed out, "which is a reminder that we must be modern Maccabees in our efforts to preserve Israel for all time."

"How best to do this is aptly illustrated by the leadership displayed by Bernie Garber in the great effort to strengthen Israel through the Israel Bond program," Mr. Ross said. "An economically strong Israel is vital for the Jewish State in these tense and trying times. Chanukah is a time for celebration and a time for rededication to the same principles that inspired the Maccabees."

"We are pleased to have the opportunity to show our admiration and esteem to Bernie Garber for his longtime activity in congregation affairs. It is most appropriate that fellow members participate in the Tribute that will be held at the Temple Sunday evening, Dec. 12. This is our way of telling Bernie that he has done an excellent job over the years; I urge our members to attend this significant event."

Temple Mishkan Tefila To Honor Garber December 12

He was acclaimed by Louis L. Kaitz, president of the congregation of Temple Mishkan Tefila, who said:

"The tribute to Bernie Garber is well-merited recognition for his many years of dedicated service as a member of the congregation, and his brilliant record as general chairman of the Greater Boston Israel Bond effort. He has never been found wanting in any endeavor for the benefit of the congregation, the community, the Jewish people and the State of Israel."

Cited for his dedicated activities in behalf of the Temple and his outstanding record as leader of the Israel Bond effort in Greater Boston, Mr. Garber is a member of the Temple's Endowment Fund and led the 1970 Bond campaign to an all-time record in sales.

Sister Cohalan's planned trip to the Orient this year will be financed with funds still remaining from the 1969 grant.

Among the places which the vital, enthusiastic nun-musician-actress-teacher will visit are the cities of Tokyo and Kyoto. She will also visit the Liturgical School of Music in Hiroshima which was founded by a Jesuit priest who was a former student of Sister Cohalan's at the Pius X School of Liturgical Music at Manhattanville College. Sister Cohalan was formerly the director of the Pius X Music School.

On her journey back to this country in late January, Sister Cohalan will stop in Hawaii to view and listen to some of the famous organs on the islands, and she will pause in San Francisco to hear a new organ in the Old St. Mary's Church where the organist, Robert Mooney, is also one of her former pupils.

Sister Cohalan will leave Newton College on December 15 and return on January 30 in time for the beginning of second semester classes on January 31.

Kindergarten Kids Relive Pilgrim Era

Kindergarten children of the Memorial School spent the day before Thanksgiving in a reenactment of the First Thanksgiving. The afternoon class (the Indians) were invited by the Pilgrims (the morning session) to partake of a feast which had been prepared by all the children the previous day.

Under the guidance of kindergarten teacher Mrs. Juliet Besser, a large turkey was cleaned and cooked at the school. Children chopped cranberries for sauce, baked corn bread, and decorated place mats and napkins.

The scene was set with Indian headbands and Pilgrim hats made by the children, a log cabin made of rolled newspapers painted brown, and a life-size tepee.

Cider and sweets were served by room mothers Mrs. Ruth Rotman, Mrs. Sylvia Evans, Mrs. Diane Wilton, and Mrs. Elaine Nieman.

Mr. Leon Scheinfeld, father of one of the children, carved the turkey, while Mrs. June Jaret, Mrs. Helene Scheinin and Mrs. Elaine Kaplan served as hostesses.

Mighty Battler Retires

Next summer the U.S.S. Wasp will be retired from active service. Plans for her post-retirement are not quite finalized. She may well go into mothballs and eventually she may be broken up for scrap. It isn't likely she'll ever again serve swarms of military aircraft in titanic battles for control of the seas.

She's too old. She's obsolete.

When she was commissioned at Bethlehem Steel's Fore River in the fall of 1943, the outcome of World War II still hung in the balance. Her construction marked a triumph of American technocracy and American workmanship.

In the Pacific she was a major factor in wresting control of that ocean and its islands from the tenacious grasp of the Japs. From her first action during the Marcus Island raid in May, 1944, she participated in the campaigns for Saipan, Guam, Tinian, Iwo Jima, Luzon, Mindanao, Okinawa and finally the Japanese mainland.

She survived her wounds, including the loss of 102 crewmen, when a Jap plane dropped a 500-pound bomb which penetrated her flight deck. She was tragically involved in the peace-time loss of the American minesweeper destroyer Hobson and 176 sailors in Atlantic maneuvers, the largest life toll of the Navy's peace-time history.

She earned the honor as the recovery ship for Gemini 7 and Gemini 9 when those two spacecraft put down.

Compared to the cost of her construction and maintenance during and since World War II, the Wasp hasn't much of a monetary value. There have been ships of the same name in the Navy since the Revolution.

To those Bay Staters and New Englanders who helped to build and those who served her in war-time and peace she'll always be one of the greatest ships ever to ride the seas. For the sentimentalists among them maybe she should be the last American man-of-war to bear the name Wasp.

Preserving Lake Tahoe

The beauty of Lake Tahoe on the California-Nevada boundary is world renowned. Small objects dropped to the floor of this 200-square-mile natural body of water can be identified at a depth of 100 feet.

Each year Tahoe has attracted a steadily growing number of visitors from all parts of the United States and abroad. Those visitors are among the major factors now blamed for the possible ecological threat to the continued pure beauty of the lake.

The threat has been one of the reasons for the installation of electric-powered facilities described as the most effective sewage treatment systems anywhere in the world. Water from the system is pumped over an 8000-foot mountain pass into a reservoir for swimming, fishing and irrigation. Only natural mountain streams continue to flow into Tahoe.

Man has been told by some ecologists that his continued existence on this planet depends on his ability to recognize the perils he has created and on his ability to take swift measures to combat his past failures.

There are those who have approached the problem with no small degree of emotion. They include otherwise sensible persons who would place squarely on the shoulders of technocracy the situation in which we find ourselves. On the other hand, there are those who are quick to defend practices which are clearly an affront to our natural resources.

Man will solve his ecology problems. It may take much time. It will cost much money. It will require some radical departures from thinking of the past.

Confrontation alone will not do it. Indeed, violent accusations from either side can well postpone the days of solutions as well as increase the cost of those solutions.

Lake Tahoe may well offer the road over which we must travel to achieve our goals. That road will and must be built by true ecological supporters acting in concert with soundly trained technologists.

Educational Goals -
School System and Parents

What are the goals of the Newton Educational System?

Superintendent Aaron Fink was quoted "that a school by school questionnaire has been sent to all school principals. The questionnaire is designed to disclose the goals actually operating in a given school". Also included was information on trends, concerns, personnel, impact of the community climate, principal's priorities, all of which is to be considered a part of an intensive inhouse evaluation.

The superintendent's questionnaire on educational goals is a good start in the right direction.

It would appear that the above are goals as seen by the administration. Is there going to be a follow up and how does the administration plan to reach these educational goals?

What about a Phase II - "The Parents' Goals"? What are the general and specific educational goals of the parents? To what extent will there be community involvement? How does the administration plan on meeting the goals of the parents?

More people get elected that way than you would believe.

Secretaries of State in Oregon, Massachusetts and other states are under orders to place on the ballot all the candidates they believe are running and to eliminate only those who submit disclaimers that they are not candidates.

That flushes out some of the candidates, but there is nothing in the law which says a politician can't change his mind about running for President or any other office.

Despite all this and the rapid approach of the season of Christmas carols and Yuletide festivities, and lights, a number of the Presidential contenders already have begun preparations for New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation Presidential test on the first Tuesday in March.

The Granite State's survival test for some of the presidential hopes for 1972 will be run one week earlier than usual to make sure New Hampshire maintains its hold on the earliest presidential primary in the nation.

Florida, booming its sunny clime for candidates, campaigners, commentators and plain old-fashioned newsmen, set its presidential primary for the second Tuesday in March, staking out a joint claim to being the first in the Nation.

That, of course, would have created a standoff between two states, one in rugged north New England, the other in Florida's warm climes.

New Hampshire promptly moved its presidential primary ahead one week so that it had sole claim to the title of staging the first-in-the-nation primary.

The result of that action was to chill any further attempts to usurp New Hampshire's position, which many politicians view as an ideal test of ambitions because of the Granite State's small size and population cross-section.

In about a month, the Granite State's Presidential Primary campaign will be underway, gradually gathering increased momentum. The two-week filing period opens two days before Christmas. The slates of candidates for delegates must be completed by Jan. 6.

Barring any 11th hour surprise entries, the lines for the initial battle to be fought on the 1972 Presidential primary stage are pretty well drawn.

A copyrighted poll by New Hampshire educational television network showed President Nixon and Senator Edmund S. Muskie of neighboring Maine the top choices of their respective political parties although neither has officially declared himself a Presidential candidate in 1972.

Running second to Muskie on the Democratic Presidential poll in New Hampshire was Massachusetts Senator Edward M. Kennedy.

Ted, of course, has disclaimed any interest in the Presidential nomination next year. Our New Hampshire neighbors are not much for wasting their votes on somebody who isn't running. And it is quite probable that Ted would be leading Muskie instead of trailing him if he were actually running.

The announced candidates for the Democratic nomination for President, all of them expected to have slates in the New Hampshire Presidential Primary, are Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, Senator Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson of Washington and Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty.

All of them are expected to make only mediocre showings. Newspaper Publisher Loeb may be able to pump a little life into his friend Yorty's campaign if the vote is split widely enough, but Muskie is almost certain to top the list of Presidential contenders.

Congressman Paul H. McCloskey of New Hampshire is making a David-and-Goliath campaign against President Nixon. But Nixon always has been extremely popular in New Hampshire. In the recent poll, 79 per cent of the Republicans who disclosed their choice named Nixon, and only six per cent listed themselves for McCloskey. That is considered a fairly accurate reading of Republican sentiment in New Hampshire.

McCloskey, a former Marine hero, has concentrated all his efforts in New Hampshire and has had moderate successes on college campuses but has failed to make any headway with the great mass of conservatives in New Hampshire.

Senator McGovern has done an excellent job of organization, probably better than Muskie's, but apparently has been unable to cut Muskie's lead.

The poll returns gave Muskie 44 per cent, Ted Kennedy 20 per cent, Hubert Humphrey 10 per cent, McGovern 9 per cent, Yorty and Jackson, who had just announced their plans, one per cent apiece. Both Yorty and Jackson are making a conservative pitch and Yorty has the support of the Manchester Union Leader, the state's largest newspaper and only morning paper.

GOP Rep. Daly Will Run In Hicks Congress District

The number of prominent Republicans who are planning to run for Congress next year in the district of Congresswoman Louise Day Hicks is increasing along with the Democratic list.

GOP Representative Richard W. Daly of Wellesley, whose legislative district takes in Needham as well as Wellesley, is moving from his Wellesley home to a rented apartment in Needham on Dec. 15.

The purpose of his move is to place himself in the same district with Mrs. Hicks. He could run against her if he remained in Wellesley since residence in a congressional district is not a requirement for running for Congress, but he would prefer to live in the district.

Daly, a former political columnist for the Boston Herald Traveler, also is trying to get a jump on State Senator John M. Quinlan of Norwood.

Quinlan, extremely popular in sections of the district where the big congressional battle of 1972 will be fought, has not yet disclosed his political plans for next year.

But his followers predict that he would strike swiftly for the seat in Congress from the Hicks district if he decides he can win and that he would not hesitate to oppose Representative Daly in the Republican primary.

Mrs. Hicks is considered certain to stand for reelection. Boston School Committeeman and former State Senator James W. Hennigan, Jr., has announced he will oppose Mrs. Hicks in the Democratic primary.

Boston City Councillor-elect and former State Senator John Joseph Moakley is believed likely to run. State Senator Robert L. Cawley of West Roxbury headed the legislative committee which put together the district and presumably set one up where he felt he would have a good chance.

Ollie Cohen To Receive Award From Seminary

Ollie A. Cohen, a former resident of Brookline, and chairman of the Board of Directors of the National Community Service Award and 80th Anniversary Medal and a Founder of the Greater Theological Seminary of America at the Seventh Annual Awards Dinner of the Seminary's New England Friends to be held next Sunday evening, (Dec. 5) at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel in Boston.

Close to 1000 guests, representing 80 conservative synagogues throughout New England will also pay tribute to Dr. Louis Finkelstein, retiring Chancellor of the Seminary.

Mr. Cohen, now a resident of Miami Beach, Florida, is a member of the Seminary's Board of Directors, a recipient of its National Community Service Award and 80th Anniversary Medal and a Founder of the Greater Theological Seminary of America at the Seventh Annual Awards Dinner of the Seminary's New England Friends to be held next Sunday evening, (Dec. 5) at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel in Boston.

the truck," he declared. "Recycling is the wave of the future."

Health Department official Smith agreed that regional waste disposal was the "only way to go" and EPA member Storlazzi urged the aldermen to give serious consideration to Carmen's proposal, even if it cost more.

Smith, however cautioned that incineration "is not necessarily a thing of the past." The new pollution control standards are so stringent, he said, that they are unlikely to be revised again within the lifetime of the present incinerator.

Storlazzi declared, on the other hand that while the state might meet federal "primary ambient air standards" with its new anti-pollution regulations, it would be almost impossible to meet the "secondary" standards using existing methods of waste disposal such as incineration.

Primary standards - necessary for the health of the population - must be met within approximately three years. An additional two years will be allowed for meeting the more stringent secondary standards, which are designed to protect vegetation, and to keep pollution below the "nuisance" level.

Asked whether the state would be likely to give an extension on the time limit for repair of the incinerator if the city could show serious interest in an alternative recycling plan, Smith replied, "Absolutely ... But you'd have to be doing more than studying it."

Alderman Alan S. Barkin suggested moving on "two fronts" - allocating money for repair of the incinerator, and at the same time beginning to investigate recycling.

Alderman Carmen contended that pollution could be cut by as much as one-third in the present facility if newspapers were collected and recycled on a city-wide basis, and if steps were taken to end incineration of trash collected in other cities, such as Cambridge.

Several aldermen were concerned about whether the incinerator would be approved by the state if the Board spent the money to modernize the facility. Asking if the state would be willing to set specifications for improvements in the incinerator, Alderman Richard J. Bullwinkle declared, "What if we choose the wrong designers? What if the plans six months from now don't comply? Look at our track record."

Alderman Barkin agreed, "We need a guarantee. Let the designer post bonds." Alderman Jackson mentioned a "turnkey approach" to incinerator design now in favor with EPA head William Ruckelshaus. Instead of building an incinerator to meet certain specifications with regard to equipment, the incinerator contractor must build to meet a performance standard, Jackson said.

Present at the hearings was Brookline's Commissioner of Public Works Leo Picardi, who charged that no incinerator in the country could meet the new Massachusetts air pollution control standards. Smith replied that the brand-new Braintree incinerator "came close to" meeting the new standards, and was capable, if properly operated, of complying with the law.

Storlazzi said that there are new technological advances capable of meeting the "rather stringent" federal standards, but most of these advanced incinerators are in Europe.

and by flyers distributed along rubbish collection routes by city crews.

Maintaining that a city ordinance is needed for an effective recycling program, Carmen stated, "I don't think it would succeed on a strictly voluntary basis." He criticized Mayor Monte G. Basbas for installing a voluntary recycling dumpster at the Rumford avenue incinerator at the time when the recycling proposal was being considered by the Aldermen. "This will only confuse people," he charged.

Public education will be needed, he asserted, adding that if some households consistently put newspaper in with their regular trash, rubbish collectors might refuse to pick up that load, as is now done in cases where a household consistently puts garbage in the rubbish bin.

The American Bible Society distributes more than 100 million Bibles and portions of Scripture annually.

Aldermen Michael Lipof and William Carmen admonished the community to work rapidly toward an alternate proposal, pointing out that the developer could come in within a short time with a renewal of his petition.

"Now that the community seems to be moving in the direction of civic action, it would be a shame to nip it in the bud," declared Lipof.

Pointing to proposals for youth and arts centers in the building, Lipof urged the Committee to "tread water" on the apartment proposal. "We'll have another chance and so will Mr. Moskow. I'd just like to give the community another chance."

The primary concern of most community persons and members of the aldermanic committee appeared to be that the high-rise would set a precedent for more greater density of development in Newton Centre.

Alderman Michael Antonellis warned, "The greatest fear is of changing the character of the community. There is a need for this type of apartment. But whether luxury or low-income, the need alone doesn't justify the development. On the argument of density alone we should deny this petition."

Alderman Ernest F. Dietz declared that the community is "facing a traumatic experience with the new shopping center on Hammond Pond Parkway, and we have to digest this before we face other projects requiring our discretion. To deal with this petition right now would add insult to injury."

Speaking on behalf of the developer, Attorney Sanford Kowal told the aldermen that the apartment would be the best possible use of the land, adding $60,000 in tax revenues without increasing traffic as would a possible commercial use of the property, which falls within a Business zone.

Kowal asserted that the apartments are needed by elderly Newtonites who must either move to Boston "or live in that big house alone."

Stating that the board of Aldermen could not afford to pay for taking of the site by eminent domain, Kowal declared, "If there were a reasonable chance for a public purpose for the building, I would say o.k., but this is not the case. Either the building

Liz Yoffe of and Caron Palder of Newton Centre, play the parts of two of the seven dwarfs in the Boston Children's Theatre production of Snow White opening this Saturday (Dec. 4) at 2 p.m. in New England Life Hall.

Members of the cast were chosen from the Boston Children's Theatre drama classes. Group rates for the play are offered to schools, scouts, birthday parties, etc., on further performances scheduled for the next two Saturdays, Dec. 11 and 18, and during school vacation on Dec. 28, 29, and 30.

All performances are at 2 p.m. will deteriorate or a marginal operation will take a crack at it and fail. This is the best use we can dream of."

Aldermen contended that the Woman's Club would lower its price for the land when it became apparent that permission for intensive use of the property was not going to be granted. Woman's Club President Dorothy Kent told the Aldermen, "We have tried to keep the building going and hoped it wouldn't be torn down. We can no longer do this." Stating that maintenance of the building was costing $1000 per month, she declared, "We tried hard to find a buyer that would be a credit to the Centre and we thought we had found one."

In addition she received the H. James Shea Memorial Award. While a sophomore at Newton High, Kathy received the Wendall Bauckman award for citizenship and was elected to the National Honor Society in her Junior Year.

Included in her many school and community activities and services was her key role in establishing Freeport, a home in Newton for teenagers who need a temporary residence away from their own homes.

Kathryn was a member of the Newton High student government that was instrumental in establishing the Student Senate and served a student coordinator for the Newton Community Development Foundation, in its efforts to establish low and moderate income housing in Newton.

In the Spring of 1970, following the United States invasion of Cambodia, and subsequent student strikes on high school and college campuses across the country, Kathy was elected by the student body of Newton High to be one of the two student leaders to travel to Washington, D. C. to meet with Senators Kennedy and Brooke and other government leaders to express student concerns over American military policies.

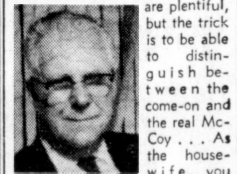

In February, 1971 the Jewish War Veterans of Massachusetts brought another honor to Kathy Humphrey by selecting her among the students at Newton High to receive their brotherhood award.

Kathy has been an active member of Eliot Church of Newton, and at present is a student at Washington University of St. Louis, where she is enrolled in a pre-law course of study.

Ten lessons comprise a series — 1/2 hour each.

Next Wednesday (Dec. 8) the remaining spaces will be open for registration to the general public. As these classes are limited in size, it is advisable to arrive as early as possible that day, even though the "Y" officially opens at 9 a.m.

Tiny-Tots (ages 3-5) are scheduled twice weekly — Monday and Wednesday, at either 1 p.m. or 2:30 p.m.; and once a week — Friday, at 1 o'clock, 1:30, or 3 p.m., for a series of ten lessons. Classes are limited to the first 15 children to register.

Poliwogs (ages 6-7) are scheduled for Thursdays at 2:45 or 3:30 p.m. and Saturdays at 11:30 or 12 noon. These classes are limited to 20 children.

Within the classes the children are divided according to their ability into small groups (each with a special instructor). All wear flotation devices until they are competent in the water on their own.

Children of membership age (8 years and up) may register December 15 for a variety of swim and gym classes according to their abilities and interests. These classes are included in their membership fee at no extra charge.

Explorer Scout Post To Be 'Set Up' At Hospital

The whir of Newton-Wellesley Hospital's air conditioners will replace the chirping of crickets when a group of 40 teenage boys and girls called Explorers, a division of the Boy Scouts of America, set up a "Post" at Newton-Wellesley.

Through special interest posts, Explorers are given first hand experience in the work field of their choice so that they may discover their career interests before entering college.

The hospital's Assistant Directors, Timothy J. Harrington and Steven D. Baron will be co-advisors for the medical and administrative Exploring posts. They will be aided by a committee composed of Dr. Francis J. Kleeman, Dr. Gustave A. Laurenzi, Dr. James K. Vernon, Dr. Lester S. Dewis and Dr. Theodore E. Spielberg. Also on the committee are pharmacist Richard Kricorian, Miss Carol Flynn, R.N., Lois Goerner, R.N., and Bonnie Knudsen, R.N., all of Newton-Wellesley Hospital's staff.

Advisors and members of the committee will meet with the group for two meetings a month. During their first year, the students will be exposed to all hospital departments on a rotational basis.

Parent Guide To Child's Boston

Bernice Chesler, author of "In and Out of Boston with Children," will discuss her book in a program at the Ward School on Dolphin Rd., Newton Centre, next Thursday, (Dec. 9) at 8 p.m.

In winter even more than during the rest of the year all parents share the problem of how to both interest and amuse their children during their spare time, and hopefully to add to their knowledge as well.

Mrs. Chesler's book is an excellent compendium of places to go, and things to do for all age levels. There are free projects and expensive ones, outdoor and indoor activities. Mr. and Mrs. R. Dennis Becker, Program Chairmen of the Ward School PTA urge every parent to attend and gain an insight into Children's Boston.

The three energy-providing nutrients are protein, fat and carbohydrate.

Freedman's Sports Talk

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor
Newton Graphic

It is pure outrage that Ed Marinaro did not win the Heisman Trophy as the nation's best college football player.

Auburn quarterback Pat Sullivan is great. Without a doubt the best passer in the country, but there is no rightful way he should have edged out Marinaro.

Sullivan outpointed Marinaro, 1957 to 1445, in the annual vote taken by sportswriters and sportscasters.

Marinaro, a swarthy 200-pound halfback for Cornell, rewrote the NCAA record-book for ground gaining, this fall, while leading the Big Red to an 8-1 mark and the Ivy League co-championship.

A bruising runner, Marinaro is not exceptionally speedy, but runs over people. His name now appears next to nine national records.

Most yards, career, 4715.
Most yards, season, 1881.
Most yards per game, one season, 209.

Most yards per game, career, 174.6
Most rushes, career, 918.
Most games gaining 200 yards or more, season, 5.

Most games gaining 200 yards or more, career, 10.
Most carries per game, season, 39.6.
Most carries per game, career, 34.0

Marinaro also scored 24 touchdowns this fall, and also led the country in rushing as a junior. One of Marinaro's most amazing statistics is his 174.6 career average. Only one player, Ollie Matson, approximately 20 years ago, approached that figure, for one season. No other back in history, including Jimmy Brown, Floyd Little, or O. J. Simpson, ever came close to Marinaro's marks, which leaves Marinaro as pretty much the greatest collegiate running back of all time.

Pat Sullivan is no slouch, either. However, it also happens not to be the year of the quarterback, so Sullivan sticks out a bit more than he normally would. He is a bona fide star, and has been consistently, since his sophomore year.

The 6-0, 190 pounder led the country in total offense, last year, is on top in passing this fall. There is no argument that Sullivan is the best passing quarterback around. But is he the greatest? Is he, for example, better than 1970 winner Jim Plunkett?

The Heisman Trophy is supposed to be awarded to the best performer of the year, not necessarily to the one with the most outstanding career. Both Sullivan and Marinaro enjoyed phenomenal careers, of which Marinaro's is clearly superior. Both again were fantastic this season, but again Marinaro enjoyed the edge statistically.

The answer to the question of why Ed Marinaro does not have possession of the Heisman Trophy, is politics.

Ivy League football is disparaged throughout the land. Every time Marinaro had a 200-yard game, smart alecks said, "Well, look who he plays against." Marinaro had to fight that stigma every step of his near-5000 yards, and to his credit, he never betrayed any bitterness. "I just try harder," he said. Who could blame him for bitterness now?

Marinaro has found himself in an awkward position. He is like Erich Segal, producing work, receiving public acclaim, but no critical acclaim, and then finally being labeled a bum.

Sullivan had the benefit of playing with a super team, and thus had the exposure of a top five squad. Cornell would get

BELLINO WON IN 1960

In the Sixties award had gained somewhat of a jinx reputation. Joe Bellino, 1960, went into the Navy and was never the same when he got out. Ernie Davis died of leukemia. Terry Baker never made it near the pros. Roger Stauback, 1963, won as a junior, and was favored as a senior, but had an off-year. He disappeared into the Navy for four years, but is now emerging as a top quarterback with the Cowboys. John Huarte, 1964, has failed in many attempts to make good in the pros.

Things improve somewhat over the second half of the decade, but not much. Mike Garrett, 1965, is an unqualified success. Steve Spurrier is still kicking around benches as a back-up quarterback. 1967's Gary Beban has been playing everything but quarterback, though he might get a chance, this week, for Denver. O. J. Simpson, Steve Owens, and Boston's own Jim Plunkett have taken their lumps, but are doing alright.

Sullivan and Marinaro may be the players of the year, but the teams of the year, Nebraska and Oklahoma, got together on Thanksgiving Day, for the game of the year.

Nebraska, ranked number one in the country, averaging 35 points a game on offense and surrendering only 17.5 yards on defense, met Oklahoma, ranked number two, and averaging 45 points and over 500 yards a game on offense. Also at stake, though hardly anyone noticed, was the Big Eight Conference title.

For once, the "super game of the year," was the super game of the year.

Nebraska flanker Jimmy Rodgers received a Sooner punt at his own 28 and recklessly turned, dodged, twisted and broke his way clear on a magnificent 72-yard TD romp and a 7-0 Cornhusker lead.

Oklahoma came back to 7-3 and finally took the lead, 17-14, just before the half.

Tigers Win League Title; Final Record Is 8-0-1

By DAVID SOLOMON

It is often the ball carriers who receive credit for a victory, but this is not always justified. Newton High's kicking specialist Bill Steinberg accounted for winning point in the Tiger's 7-6 victory over Brookline and it was the third game this year that Steinberg has proved to be the deciding factor.

Newton's 7-6 win at Brookline on November 27 was not one of their better exhibitions of offensive power. "It was a typical Newton-Brookline game," commented Tiger coach Jim Ronayne. Newton was an odds-on favorite to win by a large margin, but as is usually the case, this Thanksgiving game (2 days later due to poor conditions) was a close one.

Newton scored its points early in the second quarter. John Connolly was Newton's stalwart on the ground during this sixty-yard drive. The senior co-captain gained 26 yards. Paul Grillo's passing arm accounted for all but one of the remaining yards in this drive. Grillo threw a thirteen-yarder to Ed Hinchey, an eighty-yarder to Mike Coppella, and a twelve-yard touchdown toss to tight end Paul Johnson. This was Johnson's first touchdown of the year. Bill Steinberg then scored his twelfth point of the season, providing Newton with their insurmountable lead.

Brookline's touchdown was the result of a punt return miscue by a Newton player. Brookline took over the ball on Newton's 26 yard-line. Brookline then began their long pilgrimage which took them over ten plays to score. The Newton defense then came through on the game's biggest play, foiling Brookline's attempt at a go-ahead, two-point conversion. Fittingly enough, defensive leaders Mark Herendeen and Mike Ball collaborated on the tackle.

After the score was tightened to 7-6, the Newton offense did a fine job controlling the ball for most of the game's remainder.

On a key third and nine play, scrambling halfback Bobby Hoover dropped back to pass on a pitchout, and then fought his own way through the line for a first down. Hoover later put the final blow to Brookline, punting the ball to their five yard line.

Summing up the game, coach Ronayne stated simply,

"the defense won it for us. I'm glad we won of course, but I thought we could have won by more." Brookline actually out-gained Newton, gaining 178 total yards compared to 159 for the Tigers. John Connolly gained 72 yards and Paul Grillo passed for 50 to account for a great deal of Newton's total offense.

This game ended a great season for the Newton grid-ders. Their 4-0 Suburban League record gained them the Suburban League crown. Newton was 8-1 overall in Class A, and finished in second place, tied with Medford. Undefeated Walpole, owning a 8-0-1 record, were class A champs. This is Walpole's first year as a Class A team and it still remains questionable whether they are equal to the calibre of such teams as Medford, Newton and Arlington.

The Tigers were undefeated through their first five games. Three out of five times they were out-sized and expected to lose, yet came out on top. Everett and Brockton were both stunned by Newton's super defense. The high point of the Tigers' season probably came on October 23rd, when they overcame Arlington, 13-12, in the last minute of play.

Newton's heralded defense allowed an average of only five points a game, and this statistic just about speaks for itself. The defense had four shutouts, including their big 6-0 win versus Everett. Other shutouts were 13-0 against Weymouth North, 10-0 over Weymouth South, and 14-0 versus Boston Latin. Newton was shutout only once, in their 14-0 loss to Medford.

The Tiger defensive secondary, otherwise known as "Guzzi's Gorillas," were especially outstanding. Five different players accounted for fifteen team interceptions, which is a truly remarkable mark. Jimmy Fay led the team with eight grabs.

The Newton offense scored an average of just over nine points per game, with five different players sharing the team scoring lead. Paul Grillo, John Connolly, Dave Boyagian, Mark Herendeen, and Bill Steinberg all had twelve points for the season.

Hut Bowling

Larry Cullen, Bob Worden and Bruce Weinberg all forged ahead in their respective divisions last Saturday at the Riverside Lanes.

With three weeks remaining it is still anyone's ballgame. Cullen has an 8-2 mark and he is followed closely by Neil Levitan and Dougle Pepper at 6-3. Saul Rubin, Scott Finkles-tein and Dave Fishman are 6-4 and still challenging for the Junior Division Championship. Worden maintains a slim 1/2 game lead with a 7-3 slate. Chris Peters, Malcolm Mac-Millan and George Cullen trail with 6-3 records in the Senior-Midget Division.

In the team standings, The Chargers wrapped up a playoff spot with a big week. The top four slots appear to be pretty well settled although "it is never over until the last box."

Air Polluters Go Invisible Says Scientist

Pollution can be seen almost everywhere. But invisible pollution may be an even greater menace.

Pollution-control laws are directed at offenders that can be easily detected. And the offenders may be making matters worse by going invisible, says Vincent J. Schaefer, director of the Atmospheric Sciences Research Center, State University of New York at Albany.

One method to cut down on visible pollution in industries, for example, is to dilute the escaping pollutants with cleaner air to make the particles smaller and unseen. The role that small invisible particles may play in health is not at all clear. But, according to research at the Center, it is easy to show that the majority of small particles that reach the lungs remain there.

Schaefer also warns that buses and cars should not be allowed to idle for more than a few minutes. The exhaust from an idling car is often not visible, but if a plastic bag is held to catch the exhaust, the bag contains 100 trillion particles within a second.

According to Schaefer, his testing shows that the air in many motels and hotel rooms is cleaner than the outside air in cities or along highways. This is especially true if there is a refrigeration-type air conditioner in the room, or if the air comes from a central control.

Find out about air pollution and how to fight it more effectively. Check with your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association, which is now conducting its Christmas Seal Campaign. It's a matter of life and breath.

There are about 66 total eclipses of the sun in an average century, astronomers believe, but only a few are generally visible.

Overall Record Of 70-19-7 Amassed By NHS Teams

By DAVID SOLOMON

Not only did Newton High's varsity teams compete in more games than ever before this fall, but they also compiled their best winning percentage in recent years.

Except for a slight dip in 1970, the Newton teams have improved steadily each fall since 1966. Six years ago, Newton won or tied 53 percent of its games (14-14-2). In '67 this was raised to 56 percent (17-14-1), and by 1968 it was up to 77 percent. In 1969 the combined soccer, football and cross-country record was 26-4, a .86 percent win percentage.

Last year these three teams won or tied 82 percent of its games. The soccer team was 11-1, football amassed a 6-2-1 mark, and cross-country raced their way to a 5-2 record. 1971 has been the real banner year for Newton fall sports. The not-so-greatly-lauded football team played to a great 8-1 season. They won the Suburban League and just missed tying for the Class A title. John Connolly and Mike Ball were co-captains. Paul Grillo and Ed Beckler were the quarterbacks.

Eight Newton Winter Teams Begin Practice for Season

By DAVID SOLOMON

Practice and tryouts began last Monday for Newton High's eight interscholastic winter sports. The first regular season games will begin in mid-December.

Last winter Newton had playing areas, the tracksters four league champions among their teams. This list is composed of Basketball, Gymnastics, Girls' Gymnastics and Indoor Track.

The Basketball team had a 13-3 record last season, and were at the top of the Suburban League. Coach Jerry Phillips is now entering his third season as head coach, and his squad will play twenty-one games this season. George Jessup's Gymnastics team also topped the Suburban League last season. This group of athletes had a 9-2 record. The team will play the same amount of games this season.

The Girls' Gymnastics team has been a perennial dynasty in the Northern League, and last year was no different. A 9-0 record captured the league crown for the girls. Lamoine Boyle's Indoor Track team topped the Metropolitan League District I standings in 1971. The squad had a perfect 7-0 record, and despite problems in finding appear in upcoming issues. The Newton High Hockey team finished 10-8 last year. After a fast start, the team dropped to fourth place in the Suburban League standings. Coach Kinlin's icemen will again do battle in 18 games this season. Second place in the Girls' Suburban Basketball League belonged to Newton last year, as the girls compiled an 8-2 record. Newton High also has a riflery team. More on this sport and in-depth previews on the other winter sports will be played.

Interested participants can leave their names, addresses, and phone numbers at any of the 12 library buildings in the city.

second best runner. The season marked an end to the twelve-year coaching career of Abner Bailey.

Thus overall Newton varsity teams won or tied 87 percent of its games this season. The success of an interscholastic program should not be judged only on its varsity teams. Jayvee and sophomore teams play just as many games, and the dedicated stars work just as hard as varsity players.

Newton's sophs and jayvees accounted for a 39-14-4 record this fall. These teams include the players who will undoubtedly star for Newton in the future two years.

Especially impressive were the sophomore and jayvee soccer squads. The sophs were coached by Barry Howland to a 12-2 season. Standouts on this strong team were John Eagle, Frank Bodengraven and Rudi Viscomi. The latter two saw some varsity action at the close of the season.

The junior varsity soccer team had a 12-3-4 record under coach Sam Watkins. After a slow start, the team was undefeated in its final twelve games. Phil Kurinsky, Dirk Pittman and Steve Hindman were the visible stars of the team, but nearly the entire squad consisted of fine soccer players.

The J.V. football team, led by cornerback Pete McKay and fullback Peter Dion, had a 6-3 record. The sophs wound up their season with a 4-3 mark. Standouts on this squad were Joe Rondina, Steve Anesse and Gary Breton.

David Kingsbury and Bob Gott were the top men on the 5-3 J.V. cross-country team.

Newton South Drops Finale To St. John's Prep 20-18 As Haimes Ends Super Season

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN ASST. SPORTS EDITOR

Newton South High football coach George Winkler noted last week that his team had trouble making the two-point conversion after touchdowns.

"It's one of our biggest offensive problems," he said. "It could hurt us."

Last Saturday Winkler was proved a prophet. Failure to make a two-point conversion killed the Lions.

In a make-up of a rained out Thanksgiving Day encounter, the Lions were upset by St. John's Prep, 20-18, when they missed three consecutive extra-point tries.

St. John's, a team finishing only 4-5, did not display much offense this year and scored as much as 20 points in a game on only one other occasion, a 21-0 rout of Andover, early this fall. Prep's ground game was more formidable than expected and was very balanced.

Value Of School Sports: A "realistic" Viewpoint

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN

Last week Newton Graphic sports reporter Dave Solomon wrote a column headlined "The Value Of Complete Athletics in High School."

Solomon's column was a defense of oft-maligned high school sports. And quite an adequate one.

Let me digress a moment to explain that this is not an attack on Solomon or his column. I agree with the ideas expressed, only feel that they are not quite realistic. Dave Solomon's approach is too idealistic, and though I may be wrong, it sounds as though he has never played on a sports team, or if so he has been blessed with exceptional coaches.

High school sports provide a creative outlet. They are an integral activity of any school's extracurricular program. However, they should be viewed in their proper perspective; as one program of many. This is a problem which is not nearly as serious in Newton as in other areas. The student bodies here seem to have a fair grasp of the relative importance of sports, though sometimes they go overboard in a negative manner.

Quoting Solomon's article: "In a non-scholastic context, there's no greater opportunity that a school can offer its students than a well run, well-coached athletic program."

Many departments may disagree vehemently from their own personal prejudices. I agree, from my own prejudices. I love sports and get a great deal of personal satisfaction from writing about them and playing them. And I would be a hypocrite if I denied it.

The rub here is "well-run, well-coached athletic program." Solomon makes the assumption that this is true of all high schools. It is not and thousands of dissatisfied athletes will attest to it. Many athletes, in Newton as well as other schools, whom I have met, have quit sports teams because of the frustration of being ruled by incompetent coaches.

Solomon says, "Remember that a coach's main purpose is to help people, not dehumanize them." Again Solomon is right, but again it is not always the case. There is a great deal of dehumanizing perpetrated in the name of discipline, in all sports, not just football, which often bears the full brunt of attacks. What people don't realize is that there are good coaches and bad coaches, just as there are good teachers and bad teachers, and simply a 47-yard TD scamper. Prep, no great shakes at extra points, either, missed for the second time to leave the board at 12-12.

Prep took the lead for the first time, 20-12, late in the fourth stanza on an 11-yard run by halfback Walter Lang. The first key play of the game followed. Bonaviato completed the two-yard extra-point pass to his end Gary Czupryna.

South got the ball with less than two minutes on the clock and quickly marched to its third touchdown. Quarterback Ned Moan carried over from the three with less than a minute remaining.

It was too late to win, but a conversion would tie. And again, for the third time of the day and seventh in two games, the Lion offense failed to carry the ball over for extra points. St. John's then ran out the clock.

It was a depressing end to the season for the Lions. The squad finished 5-3, equal to its 1970 mark, with a team felt to be much better by many. South was 5-2 in the Dual County League, good for third behind Wayland and Bedford.

Wayland won its 17th straight game, while recording its seventh shutout of the season, 29-0 over Weston, last Saturday, to capture its fifth straight league championship.

The Warriors' Bob Peck scored four touchdowns on 142 yards rushing and completed his season with 27 touchdowns, 162 points, and 1,400 yards rushing.

(Newton South football wrap-up next week.)

Tom Rezzuti Stars For Huskies

Former Newton South High Super-athlete Tom Rezzuti proved this fall that he is just as big a star in college.

Rezzuti, now a junior at Northeastern, intercepted 14 passes this season as a defensive back in the Huskies' nine games, for a New England college division single season record. The 5-10, 180-pounder pilfered five passes as a sophomore for a total of 19 interceptions in two seasons for a New England career mark.

The agile speedster, who still has a year left to add to his marks, also ran back punts for NU, this season, scoring once on a 62-yard romp.

While at Newton South Rezzuti was co-captain, quarterback, and leading scorer for the football team, an all-star hockey player, and all-state in baseball, as well as captain and the Lions' leading batter and base-stealer.

Rezzuti also plays baseball for Northeastern. (Louis Freedman)

Women Voters Learn About Trash Disposal In Newton

Members of the Environmental Quality Committee of the League of Women Voters of Newton have been learning first hand about the problems of trash disposal. The committee which involved in the first part of a two-year study of the Management of Solid Waste has visited a variety of disposal operations including the Newton Incinerator, the Marlboro landfill, and the Wellesley recycling center. The Committee is holding a series of discussion unit meetings on December 8, 9, and 10.

The more the committee members study, the more concerned they become with the amount of refuse each person throws away. If you were an Average Newton Resident in 1970 you disposed of more than one-half a ton of rubbish and garbage during that year.

Each member of Average Resident's family contributed 675 pounds of paper, 172 pounds of garbage, 110 pounds of glass, 110 pounds of metals, 61 pounds of leaves and lawn clippings, 49 pounds of wood, 37 pounds of leather, rubber and cloth, and 12 pounds of plastic.

All this had to be burned, buried or hauled to the pigery at a cost of $15 per person.

Since 1970, our population has increased 2% and the amount of solid waste can be expected to increase at a rate ten times that of the population growth. In addition, leaves, which are now burned in the incinerator, significantly increase the amount of trash to be disposed of.

As well as studying Newton's local waste disposal system, the committee has also been considering national problems of solid waste management, and some of the pioneering efforts in recycling which are being made in neighboring communities. Women on the committee have studied special areas of the solid waste problem such as composting, paper recycling, packaging, incineration, and reclamation techniques, etc. They would be happy to share bibliography and references with others in the community who are interested in these problems after the unit meetings.

Committee members include Mary Adelstein, Chairman; Linda Tracy, Vice Chairman; Mary Morrison, Rita Barron, Betsy Lewenberg, Jill Orner, Rowena Schwartz, Priscilla Leith, Sheila Farnese, Helen Jackson, and Ros Rosenthal.

The League invites all interested members of the Newton community to attend any one of the unit meetings and welcomes their participation in discussion regardless of age or sex. The same subject is discussed at each meeting, scheduled for your convenience as follows:

Wednesday, December 8, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the home of Arnae Cohen, 26 Larchmont Avenue, Waban, led by Connie Lipton; 11:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. (Bring a sandwich, coffee will be provided) at the home of Judy Green, 28 Lenox Street, West Newton, led by Joyce Picard; and 8:00 to 10:00 p.m. at the home of Dora Bard, 6 Holland Street, Newton, led by Rochelle Alexander. Thursday, December 9, 8:00 to 10:00 p.m. at the home of Lyn Weiner, 156 Arnold Road, Newton Center, led by Mary Morrison. Friday, December 10, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Auburndale Congregational Church, 64 Hancock Street, Auburndale led by Margaret Smith (Babysitter present).

Postal Service Warns of 'Ipsa Stamps' Usage

"Stamps" to be produced and issued by a so-called "independent postal system" may not be used on matter being deposited in the U.S. mails, the U.S. Postal Service cautioned today.

Referring to reports that "ipsa stamps" with denominations of 1 to 50 cents are to be issued by a private firm on November 30, the Postal Service noted that putting such stamps on envelopes or packages would disqualify such envelopes or packages for mailing in the U.S. mails.

This is true even if the mail should carry additional legal U.S. postage stamps, the Postal Service cautioned.

If deposited in receptacles for U.S. mail, letters carrying the so-called "stamps" are subject to return to mailers and postage due charges.

Mailers should make certain that the only stamps to be affixed to their letters and packages are the official U.S. postage stamps, if they want to insure prompt delivery.

Moon Stamps On Sale In Newton

Authentic "August 2, 1971 First Day of Issue" cancellations of the twin moon stamps are now available in limited supply at the Newtonville post office according to an announcement by George K. Walker, Postmaster, Boston Postal District.

Each of the twin stamps is a design entity. Viewed together they show, on the left, the landing craft on the moon's surface with the earth and sun above, and on the right, the jeep-like lunar rover bearing the two astronauts. The inscription at the bottom of the stamps is "United States in Space—A Decade of Achievement."

Mr. Walker said only a limited amount of souvenir folders is available. The folders—three types which differ only in the city cancellation—can be obtained for $1.00 each. These three types of historic folders were cancelled at Cape Kennedy Space Center, Florida; Houston, Texas; and Huntsville, Alabama, where NASA's George C. Marshall Space Center is located.

A musical production, complete with colorful costumes, settings, and lighting, is the major goal of the course. It is this production that motivates each phase of instruction with purpose and meaning for each one as he shares in the memorable stage performance. Each actor is accepted at his level of ability and the individual talents are fitted into the production.

Poise, self-confidence, creativity and encouragement of talent are a natural outgrowth of this kind of stage participation, not to mention the real pleasures and joys of the dramatic arts. The director is Mrs. Hilda Moses, whose experience with the theatre is extensive, especially with young children. Mrs. Moses currently teaches in the Brookline Public Schools.

John Duane, choreographer, and Mrs. I. Mady Wolff, musician, assist the director in the twelve two-hour sessions. For further information call the YMCA at 244-6050.

Andrew V. Levin of West Newton has been awarded a varsity letter in soccer at Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine. The team tied for the State Collegiate title.

Research Award Is Received By Newton Doctor

A Boston University School of Medicine researcher in the new field of cancer immunotherapy has been honored by the American Cancer Society, Massachusetts Division. Dr. Frederick L. Moolten of Newton is one of the first five recipients of the Cancer Research Scholar Award.

An assistant professor of microbiology, Dr. Moolten is investigating the concept of employing an antigen-antibody approach to control of cancerous growth. In particular, he has begun work on attaching diphtheria toxin to antibodies which might selectively destroy cancer cells early during their growth.

Dr. Moolten has been associated with BU School of Medicine since 1969. A graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Medical School, he formerly was associated with Massachusetts General Hospital as a clinical and research fellow in medicine. Dr. Moolten received the Soma Weiss Prize for undergraduate research at Harvard Medical School.

The Cancer Research Scholar Award program was recently instituted by the Massachusetts Division of the American Cancer Society as a means of recognizing outstanding cancer researchers in their careers. Dr. Moolten resides at 20 Dolan ave., West Newton.

Arkansas Boasts of Monster -- A Pair

By DONALD C. BROWN JR.

There is a double feature monster attraction playing in Arkansas these days that is drawing better than the Wolf Man - Frankenstein re-runs at the local drive-in.

But unlike the celluloid renditions of Lon Chaney and Boris Karloff in Hollywood's version of Transylvania, the two Arkansas monsters are for real. At least they're real in the minds of those who say they've seen them.

One revels in north Arkansas and is apparently a sea monster of sorts, while the other is more of your standard land monster type, with hairy chest, towering bulk and fire-red eyes. He does most of his business in southern sections.

The White River rushes in bubbles out of the Ozark Mountains in north Arkansas and cuts its way diagonally across the state towards the Mississippi. In the thickly wooded parts of northwestern Arkansas near Newport the White River grows more sedate and slows expansively between banks 75 feet apart.

It's here that old timers tell stories of a "bottomless pit" in the middle of the murky channel—the subterranean den of the White River Monster.

Natives of the area say the White River Monster reappears about every 40 years and the hot weather this summer seemed to have set the alarm clock ringing in the creature's brain.

Many area residents reported seeing flashes of its huge bulk swirling in the dark waters. One longtime resident of the Newport area, Ernest Dinks, said he saw the monster surface.

"It was over 40 feet long and weighed way over a ton and it looked like it could eat anything, anywhere, anytime," said Dinks who claims to have seen the monster before.

Unfortunately, Dinks did not have a camera handy—a missed opportunity shared by all the "sighters."

Cloyce Warren is another Newport resident who is convinced that something resembling the real life version of the creature from the black lagoon lurks in the deep channel. Warren said he saw the monster surface briefly. "It was between 30 to 40 feet long with a spiny ridged backbone and splashing all around," he said.

The White River Monster has swum tenaciously through the lore of the region ever since the first settlers arrived in the early 1800s.

The first recorded sightings in the monster occurred in the 1850s when it showed its southern leanings and allegedly sunk a union gunboat. But apparently after that first taste of combat the monster decided against the life of a fresh water Moby Dick and has confined itself to its brief appearance every 40 years.

Arkansas' other monster attraction is a cross between King Kong and the Wolf Man, if local accounts are accurate.

The Fouke Monster, as he is called, is a mere upstart in monster lore when compared to its venerable White River cousin.

Buy many residents of Fouke, the small southern Arkansas town from which the monster took its name, believe staunchly in their monster, which has been seen in the area for the past 18 years.

This monster, which is said to lurch violently through the soybean fields of the area when he is out on the prowl, is generally described as a brown hairy creature, not unlike a gorilla, and estimates of his height range from 4 to 8 feet.

He was living a quiet life for the past few years but recently showed an unexpected nasty streak and allegedly attacked Bobby Ford, 25, near his home about four miles north of Fouke. That's what Ford reported.

After Ford was treated for scratches and released from a local hospital, he described the monster as being a hairy creature about seven feet tall with red eyes.

Shortly after that two motorists reported seeing the monster, and when a Little Rock radio station offered a reward for its capture, the hunt was on.

For several weeks the usually quiet woods around Fouke were full of noisy monster hunters, many of them armed. But the monster, apparently no fool, stayed well hidden.

The thought of several hundred armed persons with trigger fingers alert for the slightest movement of the monster scared the residents of the area far worse than the monster ever had.

Fouke constable Ernest Walraven, for one, said the hunters were more dangerous than the monster. "Yessirree, they sure was," he said, "one afternoon, I guess there was 500 down there." With the coming of autumn, sightings dropped off and apparently both monsters have holed up for the winter.

The Red, White and Blue Max.

There's a Blue Max for Federal Employees: the Blue Cross and Blue Shield High Option Plan. Like the Massachusetts Master Medical Plan, it provides the maximum hospital, medical and surgical protection available to you. And, it's the best when you need it the most. In most cases, you get full coverage without deductibles for 365 days a year.

Furthermore, the High Option Plan is a Service Benefit plan, not an indemnity plan. That means there's no fixed dollar limit on the basic benefits you receive. We pay your bill in full, not just a percentage of it.

There are other reasons why Blue Cross and Blue Shield are the best, too. Your card will get you into any one of over 7000 hospitals across the country, no questions asked.

You don't have to bother with claims administration or paperwork. The bills for your basic benefits are sent directly to us. And paid directly by us.

And since health care is our only business, we've become the health care specialists. We have a close relationship with hospitals and doctors. And our people are experts in providing benefits to meet your needs.

82% of all Federal Employees in Massachusetts have Blue Cross and Blue Shield. We must be doing something right.

So, if you have it, keep it. If you don't, get it.

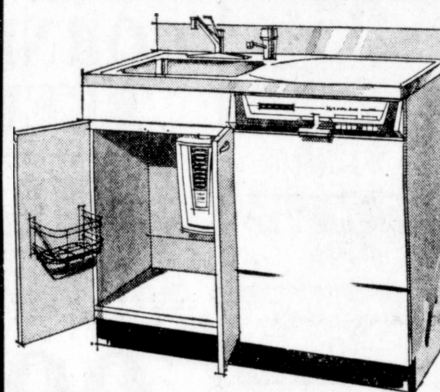

The Blue Max. The best when you need it the most.

Nardo Named To MRC Post

Frank J. Nardo of 101 Falmouth Rd. has been named Supervisor and Coordinator of Epilepsy Services by the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission.

He has eleven years of experience in the field of counseling, and will now coordinate the work of counselors aiding persons with epilepsy.

The Epilepsy Society of Massachusetts is now working on its third annual Stamp Drive. Stamps or contributions may be sent to the Epilepsy Society of Massachusetts, 140 Boylston St., Boston 02116.

The Epilepsy Society also seeks contributions to the Memorial Fund. Acknowledgements are sent to the family of the deceased.

Funds are used to aid epileptics in finding medical help, to improve treatment by organizing medical symposiums, to conduct film and lecture programs for civic organizations, to work with the mass media, and to encourage pertinent legislation.

The Torchbearer, newsletter of the Epilepsy Society of Massachusetts, reports that a British study involving 17,000 babies born during the same week in 1958 concluded that mothers who smoke 10 or more cigarettes per day during pregnancy are nearly 40 per cent more likely than non-smoking mothers to bear children susceptible to seizures and convulsive disorders.

Another item in the Torchbearer notes that television, flickering fluorescent lights and other flickering light sources such as sun rays seen through trees while driving may trigger an epileptic seizure. These light-induced attacks are typically of the petit mal variety, involving a brief attention loss, rather than convulsions and loss of consciousness, and may sometimes be controlled by the use of dark glasses.

N.A.A. Lions Edge Maryland In Finale

The N.A.A. Lions won their 10th game this season nipping the Glen Burnie Rebels of Maryland by a score of 8-6. The game was played last Saturday under rainy conditions.

The win enabled the Lions to remain undefeated in the three year inter-state rivalry winning last season 6-0 and tying 8-8 in 1969.

The Rebels were the first to score on the second play of the game. Rebels fullback Dave Lester took a pitchout from quarterback Bill Glen. Lester appeared to be stopping a sweep when he attempted and threw a pass to halfback Charlie Malley all alone at the 20 Malley outran everyone to pay dirt.

The Lions offense sputtered through the first period. Halfback Tompkins was not 100 percent for the game due to a nagging hamstring pull. Tompkins was very elusive, however, and gave the Rebels fits on his touchdown run. Facing a 3rd down passing situation, Quarterback Matt Sabetti dropped to pass and then screened out to Tompkins on the left. Aided by the blocks of Mark Comerford, Dave Chused, and Mike Smith, Tompkins side stepped his way to the end zone. Tompkins rushed the conversion thanks to blocks of Jim Vizakis, Brian O'Halloran and Rick Freeth.

From there, the "Big Blue" defense dominated the rest of the game. Offensively the Lions moved the ball effectively but had several drives thwarted by penalties. The Lions were assessed 106. The most exasperating fines came in the beginning of the 4th period. Fullback Jim Vizakis, who was having an excellent day, had two touchdowns nullified for violations. One came on a 12 yard burst and the second on a two yard plunge. Vizakis had 65 yards rushing in eight carries.

The final game of this 1971 season ended brilliant Pop Warner football careers for four of the five captains. Jim Vizakis, Matt Sabetti, Alan Flynn and Mike Smith have been starters since age 11. The fifth Captain, Brian O'Halloran earned starting status this season as a defensive tackle and vicious blocking back.

Niihau, which has a population of about 200, is privately owned. Even Hawaii's governor needs special permission to visit it. Kahoolawe which some Hawaiians call "Forbidden Island," is used as a target range by U.S. Navy gunships and planes.

Sacred Cows Are Scourge in India

By M. G. SRINATH

To many forward looking Indians, the sacred cow has become one symbol of the forces that are holding the nation's struggling millions back in their quest for a better life.

In the teeming city of Calcutta, hundreds of cows and bulls wander through streets and across sidewalks, foraging for food and often competing for it with the estimated million persons there who have no home except the streets.

In rural areas homeless bovines gather in herds of up to 200 animals. They wait until nightfall when there is no one to shoot them away from fields, and move in to pillage crops that otherwise would go to feed hungry human beings.

Nothing is done to control the animals, because to the Hindus who make up 70 to 80 per cent of India's population of 547 million, the cow is regarded as a mother, an object of reverence and a provider whose dung is even fried and used as fuel for cooking fires.

The eating of beef is taboo. Hindu scriptures dictate that all that kill cows rot in hell for as many years as there are hairs on the body of the cow they killed.

Against this background, many government officials admit privately they consider India's cattle population to be a serious drain of the nation's resources.

But the same officials, conscious of an electorate that is 70 per cent illiterate and steeped in superstition, declare that it is politically impossible to do anything about the situation.

The Indian constitution dictates that the states must protect cattle. Ten of India's 16 states have a total ban on the slaughter of cattle, and all the rest have put restrictions on it.

It is impossible for the non-Hindu mind to understand how deep feelings on the issue can go. In 1966 Hindu holy men converged on New Delhi, armed themselves with spears and sticks and tried to storm Parliament to force a countrywide ban on all slaughter of cattle. Police opened fire, killing 17.

Government agricultural officials put the latest estimated population of cows, bulls and steers in the country at 176 million, although other estimates have run more than 200 million.

The official figure represents one-fourth of the world's cattle population, the highest of any country.

Of this total, the officials say, about 10 per cent are believed to be homeless strays. In a paradox typical of India, Hindus who will not permit the slaughter of a cow, abandon old animals when they are no longer able to produce milk.

This Week's Best Buys

Courtesy Massachusetts Department of Agriculture

Although winter finally appears to have settled into the Bay State, there are still some fresh fruits and vegetables coming to market from Massachusetts farms, reports the Massachusetts Dept. of Agriculture. Native apples, cabbage, cranberries and the winter squashes appear in abundance, and prices hold reasonable.

Rating Best Buy status this week are McIntosh and Cortland apples, fresh cranberries, cabbage, carrots, purple-top turnips and parsnips; and, of course, the excellent native varieties of squash: Blue Hubbard, acorn, butternut and buttercup.

Fine local apples will not disappear with the end of the growing season. Hundreds of thousands of bushels were placed in controlled atmosphere storage during the harvest, and they are released gradually as supplies of apples packed direct from the trees dwindle. So we really have fresh apples practically throughout the year, now, providing a wonderful source of taste, nutrition and vitamins for us while the sun is low.

Apples make an excellent food for several reasons. Their large content of Vitamin C promotes healthy cells and tissue, while their Vitamin A provides body growth, vigor and good vision. Pectin and mild acids help heal, fight body poisons, and aid digestion. Natural sugars provide instant energy. And, with an average of only 90 calories, the apple makes an excellent, satisfying snack. Best of all, it tastes good!

So the next time the kids want a snack before dinner — and what youngster doesn't? — urge an apple instead of a candy bar. It's surely worth trying... you have nothing to lose but their cavities.

turn them loose rather than pay for their upkeep. Officials say that tens of thousands of these animals die of malnutrition and disease each year.

Those more fortunate are taken to shelters for aged cows, of which there are about 3,000 in the country, some of them supported by public funds and the others by charitable institutions.

"Man eats cows in other countries, but here the cow is eating man," said an embittered leader in the Congress Party, which controls the government. He added just as quickly that his remark was not to be quoted and that he saw nothing that could or would be done to change the situation in the foreseeable future.

Texan Develops A Mechanical 'Litter Gitter'

By MICHAEL O. WESTER

A machine designed to take the backache out of picking up litter along the nation's highways has been developed by a Texas masonry contractor.

N.A. Mattison, 43, developed his "Litter Gitter" machine last year during a 30-day carpenters' strike. The first machine was sold this March. Now others are in use in Missouri, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia, Pennsylvania, California, Arizona and Georgia, in addition to Texas and Canada.

The "Litter Gitter" is a long-life, low-maintenance machine, especially designed to gathering litter from beaches, roadsides and fields.

"It is ideal for cities and highway departments," Mattison said. "Our present aim is to work with the highway departments in each state."

The machine has no engine. It is belt driven from trailer wheels and can be easily towed behind any vehicle. It picks up bottles, cans, wood, paper - any kind of litter which can be thrown from a car window - at a working speed of up to 15 miles per hour.

The machine is constructed so it can be run through tall grass ahead of a mower, or can be pulled behind a mower to pick up litter at the same time the grass is mowed.

"We are producing one machine a week now with our present plant and a small crew of only four persons," Mattison said in his Lubbock office.

The machine sells for $3,950. It is designed so one man can operate it, and even change litter bags when they become filled.

The basic idea behind the "Litter Gitter" is the use of different lengths of chains dragging the ground and floating the litter to a paddle wheel where traction driven 7-16-inch thick paddles of fabric reinforced rubber gently pitch cans, bottles, wood, paper and other small

The bin is lined with a reusable woven plastic bag. When it is filled it can be tied and set on the side of the roadway for pickup.

Debra Cherney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Cherney, and Carla Nastri, daughter of Mrs. Alice P. Nastri, have graduated from the Academie Moderne Modeling and Finishing School.

The two young women participated in a fashion show entitled "Direction '72."

Pam Leary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Leary of 584 Centre St., Newton, was awarded honors for the 1971 spring term at Skidmore College, with a quality point average of more than 3.2 out of a possible 4.0. Miss Leary, a member of Skidmore's class of 1973, is a Newton High School graduate.

1972 Mercury Montego . . . probably the year's most dramatically styled new car. There's new design. New engineering. New interiors. Wide tread. And new high-stability suspension.

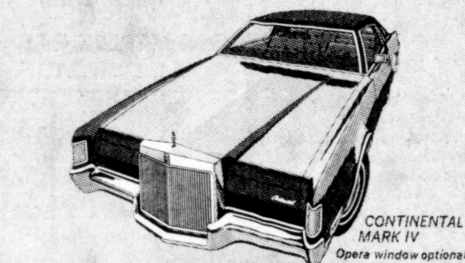

Mercury Montego has a ride so smooth a delicate hi-fidelity record player needle stays in the groove at speeds up to 60 mph. We actually demonstrated that in a television commercial.

It's a new kind of car. A personal-size car with the ride of a big car, yet almost a foot-and-a-half trimmer than most full-size cars.

Mercury Montego is just one of our better ideas for 1972! Stop in soon to see all the new cars. Remember, nobody in the business has more kinds of cars for more kinds of people.

BETTER IDEAS MAKE BETTER CARS!

Take it from the top.

Electricity is the best bargain in your budget.

Thirty years ago an average kilowatt-hour of electricity cost more than it does in good old inflationary 1971. Over 50% more.

Compare this fact with the other facts of life in the family budget. Automobile, food, shelter, taxes. They're all up. Way up.

Unfortunately, costs have been rising for us just as they've been rising for you.

Last year, our total tax bill was $47.4 million. We're the largest taxpayer in 30 Greater Boston communities. Our property taxes alone have risen 130% in 10 years.

Wages are way up, as well. Up over $4 million.

Also rising — construction costs, environmental costs, even the cost of money itself.

Ultimately, economic pressures like these lead to one thing. Increased prices. In the form of higher rates.

One thing we can promise you, though. When and if electric rates go up, they still won't reach the 1940 mark.

That'll still make us a basement bargain in your budget.

Speaking will be James Truex, Vice President and Development Officer of Friends World College and Senno Keeler, Trustee of Friends World College and member of the first group to graduate in 1968, now completing her Master's Degree in Anthropology at the University of Connecticut.

After the completion of the first phase he may select one of the five centers maintained by Friends World College to do further independent work using their resource opportunities and along with an advisor based at the center. These centers are in Cuernavaca, Mexico; Norwich, England; Eldoret, Kenya; Bangalore, India and Kyoto, Japan.

Christmas Service Group Wants To Expand Work

The Christmas Service Committee in Newton is making a special appeal for donations this year. James M. Pisciotto, Executive Director of the Newton Community Council and Treasurer of the Christmas Service Committee states, "For over 30 years this project has been carried out on behalf of thousands of people. This year, the increased numbers of unemployed persons and the expanding percentage of senior citizens forced to live on limited incomes has swelled the requests for special help. Unless additional funds are forthcoming, it may not be possible to assist those who really need help at the Christmas season."

The Christmas Service Committee, sponsored by the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs in affiliation with the Newton Community Council offers to the people of Newton an opportunity to help some of our families and individuals at Christmas. The assistance is in the form of a "little extra" for elderly, to purchase children's toys and clothing, and for food for a holiday dinner, which many families will otherwise have to do without.

Last year over 500 families and individuals were given special help by the Christmas Service Committee. This year it is expected requests will be received for over 700 families and individuals living in Newton. The Committee arranges for distribution of all funds collected and provides an added service which helps to avoid duplication of effort by different organizations.

Individuals and organizations wishing to make a contribution in any amount may make a check payable to the "Christmas Service Committee" and mail it to the Newton Community Council, 12 Page Road, Newtonville, 02160. Questions can also be directed to the Community Council at 527-5120.

Aldermen-Elect To Hold Informal Caucus Tonight

New Aldermen-elect Robert Gaynor (Ward 1), Edward L. Richmond (Ward 2) and Lois G. Pines (Ward 5) will get their initiation tonight at an informal caucus to discuss the rules of the Board and choose officers. The three new members have been sitting in on committee meetings since their election.

The first official Board meeting of 1972, which takes place immediately after the inauguration on January 1, is traditionally a brief ceremonial affair. New rules are adopted and president of the Board is elected, but all controversial matters have been ironed out beforehand in the caucus.

This year the Board may also choose a Clerk of the Board, a paid clerical assistant provided for in the new City Charter approved at the November elections.

The Aldermanic Legislation and Rules Committee paved the way for the caucus in its meeting last week with the approval of revised rules of procedure for the Board of Aldermen.

The new rules approved by the Legislation and Rules Committee incorporate the efficiency report which handles all non-controversial business in a brief "First Call" period, and reserves items requiring discussion for "Second Call," which is preceded by a ten-minute interval for informal conferences.

There are two new rules relevant to political conflicts concerning the Board. One prohibits the use of aldermanic letterhead stationery on letters supporting candidates for election.

The other requires the Clerk of the Board to tape all meetings, and to preserve the tapes for three years, filed by date.

This amendment was added when a Newton resident took the board to court over an aldermanic decision, and it was discovered that all tapes of the meeting at which the decision was made had been erased.

In a flurry of activity, the Rules Committee met recently and cleared its docket of most remaining items. The committee passed an ordinance submitted by Alderman William Carmen requiring seat belts for drivers, right-hand rearview mirrors, and first aid kits, and prohibiting standees on station-wagon school-buses carrying fewer than nine passengers.

A proposal to incorporate these bus safety standards into the contracts of larger school buses will receive further study.

A proposed ban on phosphate, enzyme, and NTA detergents submitted by Steven Levin was denied without prejudice. It is anticipated that the state will enact its own ban in 1972, and committee members felt that a purely citywide ban would be impossible to enforce. In addition, it was felt that all phosphate substitutes introduced to date have substantial disadvantages, such as causing skin irritation, or corrosion of pipes.

CRC Meeting Set For December 8

The Newton Community Relations Commission will hold a meeting on Wednesday, December 8th at 8 p.m. at the Memorial School Auditorium, Newton Centre.

A proposal by Alderman Peter F. Harrington to require notification of parents of minors detained by the police for criminal offenses raised a storm of objections when it was noted that the ordinance would refer specifically to youth between the ages of 16 and 21. Younger children are covered by state law.

Those objecting to the resolution stated that a 19 or 20-year-old who doesn't wish to have his parents notified may have a right to his privacy.

Some aldermen also feared that if the police failed to notify a parent, this might prejudice trial proceedings, as when a case is dismissed because the defendant is not informed of his Fifth Amendment rights.

Chief of Police William F. Quinn said that Newton Police customarily notify parents or deans of colleges when a minor is detained.

The proposal was held for further discussion.

Two proposals submitted by Harrington for tax relief for low-income persons were denied on the basis that the city has no jurisdiction. On the first proposal, which would permit direct payment of real estate taxes by tenants, so that they would be eligible for income tax deductions on the property tax, the committee is waiting for a ruling from the Internal Revenue Service on a test case submitted as an individual by Alderman Harrington.

The second proposal, which would allow a $2,000 abatement on assessments of property for low-income residents, would have to be authorized state-wide by the legislature.

Proposed ordinances requiring licenses for house-to-house solicitation and banning deliveries to businesses in residential neighborhoods between 8 p.m. and 7 a.m. have been referred to the new Board of Aldermen.

The NHS production will include a filmed prologue which was shot in Boston's historic North End.

Newton Conservators To Mark Tenth Anniversary

A birthday party, open to the public, will celebrate the 10th year of environmental activity for Newton Conservators, Inc. The party will be at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, December 8th, at the Newton Highlands Workshop, 72 Columbus Street.

Special guest will be Charles E. Roth, Director of Conservation Education for Massachusetts Audubon Society, whose subject will be ecology.

Since its formation in 1961, the Conservators organization has represented its members' concern for Newton's natural environment and has been a frequent force in land use decisions in the city.

Conservator members have also addressed themselves to concerns of air, noise, water, solid waste, pesticides, and zoning — it was the Conservators who first requested that the city adopt flood plain zoning, which it did just recently.

Current concerns of the Conservators are the city's policies of salting and of tree replacement, which seem to be part of the same problem. The Conservators have encouraged positive uses of our large open space tracts and have been developing historical information on the old uses of land and water in the city as indicators for future use. A quarterly Newsletter is distributed to the membership.

Wednesday's birthday party will feature a brief history of the work of the Conservators, as well as Dr. Roth's address. Because birthday cakes must be planned for, it is requested that those planning to attend the party — which is free — call one of the Birthday Party Committee members by December 5 — Mrs. Betty Sears 527-1782, Mrs. Susan Wilkes 244-3174, or Mrs. Poppy Ripley 332-0793. For membership information, please call Mrs. Carolyn Whittle 969-2236.

Supt. Fink Addresses November PTA Council

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink told the Newton PTA Council at its November meeting that evaluation studies throughout the school system are geared to improving the quality of education, not just maintaining it.

Data shows, according to Fink, that class size has been reduced, auxiliary services increased, more specialized services offered in secondary schools, and greater course diversity introduced in the past 10 years.

Fink stated that he would like to see more equitable programs in all schools based on their different needs.

Two reading studies, Fink asserted helped the administration better distribute available reading specialists. Both studies showed Newton Students, overall, doing quite well, but neither study was released for publication since they were too personal in nature, Fink told parents.

Current aims of the school system, Fink said, include getting a better continuity of subject matter as students move through the grades. Principals and teachers in the elementary school have visited other schools, and even swapped schools for a few days.

As budget hearings begin, two major extras have been added to the books, Fink declared. One, a hot lunch program, is now required by state law. The other, maintenance costs, became the responsibility of the School Department with acceptance of the new City Charter. Salary increase, too, will form a large portion of the new budget, stated Fink.

He stressed his concern to convey to the community that the school administration is a responsible group and is doing its best to hold down costs.

In answer to question from the floor, Fink stated that it would not be feasible to move the Murray Road program back to Newton High School.

INDIA REPORTS GENERAL WITHDRAWAL OF PAKISTANI TROOPS

INDIA reported a general withdrawal of Pakistani troops from all border areas of East Pakistan Wednesday and said its forces had pushed to within 22 miles of the capital city of Dacca. The Indians also said the district headquarters town of Comilla had fallen to their troops. On a second front more than 1,000 miles to the west, more than 18,000 Pakistani infantrymen and a force of 130 tanks launched a second major attack on Indian positions in the Akhaur sector of Kashmir. But Indian Defense Secretary K. B. Lal said "our troops have held the ground." The Indian spokesman said nine Pakistani tanks were destroyed by air strikes and one Indian jet fighter shot down during the big Pakistani assault on Indian positions on the eastern bank of Munawar Tawi rivulet in the Kashmir area, to which Indian forces had withdrawn in fighting Tuesday. Fighting raged on both eastern and western fronts despite the U.N. General Assembly's overwhelming approval of a resolution calling on India and Pakistan to cease fire and withdraw their troops from each other's territory.

UN AIMS FOR END OF DEBATE ON MIDDLE EAST CRISIS

WITH AT LEAST 50 more delegates listed to speak, the United Nations General Assembly Wednesday scheduled extra sessions in hopes of finishing its debate on the Middle East crisis by this weekend. Egypt has warned of a possible resumption of war if the current deadlock in peace efforts is not broken and a political settlement reached by the end of the year. The 131-member assembly heard Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad Friday and Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban on Monday present their views on the situation, but then had to shelve the issue Tuesday to take up the war between India and Pakistan.

SOVIET MYSTIFIED BY TV FAILURE OF ROBOT ON MARS

SOVIET SCIENTISTS are confident their robot explorer was too sturdy to be damaged by wind after its landing on Mars, but they do not yet understand why it went bad, official commentators said Wednesday in Moscow. The orbiting Mars 3 spacecraft dropped the unmanned robot onto the hurricane-swept Martian surface Dec. 2. After a successful landing, official reports said, it briefly transmitted video signals but then mysteriously went silent. Soviet commentators, not usually so candid in their reports, indicated the robot had been built to withstand the hurricane-force dust storms that have been raging on Mars. Scientists were mystified over the equipment failure. "Right now we can only guess why it happened," said Prof. M. Marov, a physicist who was quoted in the government newspaper Izvestia.

TUNNEY ENDORSES MUSKIE FOR PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION

SEN. JOHN V. TUNNEY, considered the leading Democratic politician in California, endorsed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine for the Democratic presidential nomination Wednesday on the assumption that Edward M. Kennedy will not be a candidate. Tunney's announced support was a big boost for Muskie, who said he would formally enter the race with a nationally televised announcement Jan. 4, two days before the filing deadline for the New Hampshire presidential primary he is an odds-on favorite to win. Tunney said his support for Muskie was "unqualified" and would continue throughout the election. California Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, a potential Democratic candidate for governor in 1974, also endorsed Muskie.

PROXMIER BREAKS WITH LIBERALS TO FAVOR REHNQUIST

SEN. WILLIAM PROXMIER, D-Wis., broke with liberal colleagues Wednesday and told the Senate he will vote to confirm William H. Rehnquist to the Supreme Court. "My friends almost unanimously oppose him," Proxmire said. "But I have become convinced that the case has not been made that Rehnquist does not understand or support the Bill of Rights or other safeguards of liberty in the Constitution." Rehnquist, meanwhile, acknowledged that he wrote a memo in 1952 endorsing the "separate but equal" doctrine which the Supreme Court overturned in its 1954 decision. In a letter to Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Rehnquist said he prepared the memo "as a statement of Justice Robert Jackson's tentative views for his own use." He added: "It is absolutely inconceivable to me that I would have prepared such a document without previous oral discussion with him and specific instructions to do so." Rehnquist was a law clerk for Jackson.

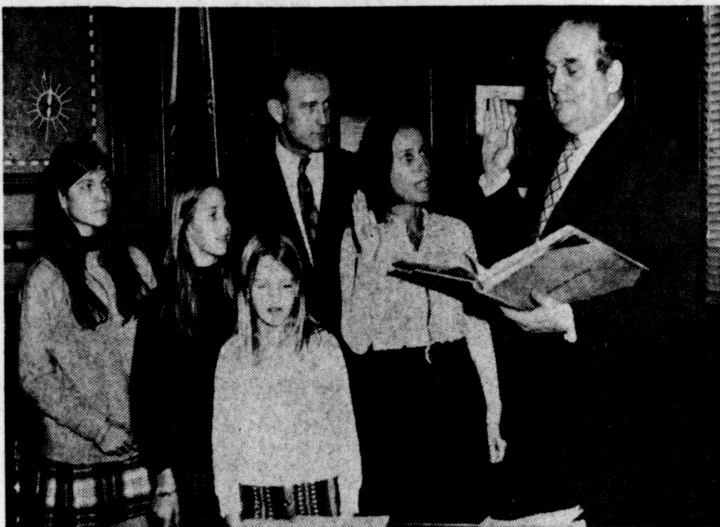

APPROVAL FOR OFFSHORE ATLANTIC DRILLING YEARS AWAY

INTERIOR SECRETARY ROGERS C. B. MORTON told a group of Northeast congressmen and senators Wednesday it would be two years before final approval could be given for offshore oil drilling along the Atlantic coast. But members of the ad hoc group, concerned with environmental dangers of oil spills, announced they will introduce legislation imposing a moratorium on East Coast oil drilling until a program of marine sanctuaries is implemented. "We don't want on the Eastern seaboard what happened in California," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., told Morton at a meeting with the 57-member group led by Rep. Lester L. Wolff, D-N.Y. Morton sought to assure them "there has been no oil drilling—even exploratory drilling—nor can there be until all environmental factors are thoroughly considered. He stressed "no decision has been made... nor is such a decision now planned. Even if a decision were made today to go ahead with Atlantic drilling... it would be another seven to 10 years before we could get significant production from our Atlantic outer continental shelf."

$260 MILLION PROJECT APPROVED FOR PARK SQUARE AREA

THE BOSTON CITY COUNCIL Wednesday approved a $260 million urban renewal project for the Park Square area, which would include luxury hotels, apartment buildings and shops. The Boston Redevelopment Authority went to work immediately on the area, which is bounded by Boylston Street, Arlington Street, Stuart Street, Kneeland Street, Knapp Street, Beach Street, Harrison Avenue and Essex Street. The Park Plaza project was approved on a 7-2 vote in a meeting that broke up at 2 p.m. The project, which is expected to eventually revamp the "combat zone" of honkytonks and book stores, is slated to begin early in 1972. It includes two luxury apartment towers, a 1,000-room luxury hotel, a huge off-street parking lot and low cost apartment for the elderly.

Taking On The Housing Hassle

Mrs. Donna Berman, of Waban, newest member of the Newton Housing Authority, is sworn in by Mayor Monte G. Basbas, right. She will fill vacancy created by the resignation of Mr. Milton Manin. Her term of office will continue to September, 1976. Present at the ceremony were Mrs. Berman's husband George, President of Unitrade Corporation in Watertown, and three of their four daughters, left to right, Jane, 14, Sally, 11, and Constance, 8.

Youth Area Stirs City Controversy

Leland White, President of Newton Youth for Change, has accused city agencies of failing to meet the terms of a trial period in which Newton South High School Parking Lot was to be lighted and set aside until 10 p.m. every night as a Youth Recreation Area.

In a letter to the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen, White charged that Newton Police had entered the parking lot three nights during the month of November, despite an agreement allowing young people to use the parking lot as a gathering place for a 45-day trial period which White said was to begin Nov. 1.

On Nov. 5, White stated, three police cars and a patrol wagon entered the lot shortly after 8:30, and searched all cars.

Funding Voted For Retroactive Raises

The Board of Aldermen voted unanimously Monday night to allocate $69,607.27 for payment of retroactive salary increases to city workers.

Approval for the salary increases, negotiated last spring but halted by the wage-price freeze, was received last week from the Internal Revenue Service and the Office of Emergency Preparedness.

Funds for the pay raise would come from an existing surplus in the Treasury Department Account for payment of interest on temporary loans, according to Alderman Finance Committee Chairman Edward C. Uehlein.

As a result of a drop in the interest rates on bonds, and the "expeditious" handling of tax bills, the city was able to save $140,000 in interest payments this year, Uehlein said.

Following action by the Board, the salary increases should be paid in time for the Christmas holidays, Uehlein noted.

During discussion of the salary payments, a question arose regarding use of funds by the Street Department. Uehlein reported that part of the salary increase was being paid out of existing funds in the Engineering and Street Departments.

Alderman Richard J. Bullwinkle objected that at the last Board meeting there was a lengthy discussion concerning transfer of funds from the snow removal to the street lighting accounts. "We were told that there were insufficient funds in the Street Department," maintained Bullwinkle.

Aldermen Okay Four Low-Income Units In Falls

The Board of Aldermen took a tentative first step toward resolution of the low-income housing dilemma Monday night, with approval of a land sale that would provide space for four units of low-income family housing and 50 units of housing for the elderly on a 50,925 square foot plot on Circuit ave. and Thurston rd., in Newton Upper Falls.

The proposed $12,000 land sale capping more than a year and a half of debate, was the latest in a series of Aldermanic responses to a Housing Authority proposal for 75 low-income family units and 50 units of housing for the elderly, on a four sites.

The NHA proposal called for 25 units of low-income housing on Crescent st., in West Newton, and Victory Field in Nonatum, on private land in Beaconswood rd., with a separate 50 units for the elderly in Upper Falls.

The Housing Authority has opposed the mix of low-income family housing and housing for the elderly, but at a recent meeting expressed willingness to move ahead on the basis of whatever decision was made by the Board of Aldermen.

Cohen, Harrington To Head Aldermen

A caucus of the Aldermen-elect, after some two-and-a-half hours of debate, chose Ward 8 Alderman-At-Large Elliot K. Cohen as President of the Board and Ward 2 Alderman-At-Large Peter F. Harrington as Vice-President of the Board.

Former President Wendell R. Bauckman, with nearly 30 years on Board and 26 as its president, was named to the newly-created post of President-Emeritus.

The unofficial caucus vote is traditionally duplicated in the first official Board meeting on Jan. 1.

A special committee composed of Aldermen David W. Jackson, Richard J. Bullwinkle, and President-elect Cohen was chosen to develop job specifications for the new paid post of Clerk of the Board, a position created by the new city charter.

The caucus also approved, with minor changes, the revised Rules of Procedure of the Board.

Although city elections are officially non-partisan, "Obviously one of the factors was a party split," commented President-elect Cohen. Democrats gained an edge in the last election over the previously Republican majority on the Board.

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Pres. Nixon Not To Repeat Bay State Mistake of 1968

President Nixon made one mistake in the 1968 Presidential primary in Massachusetts which will not be repeated.

Mr. Nixon, at that time just plain Richard Nixon, did not place his own name on the ballot in several states in the Presidential primary battle in 1968. The then Governor John A. Volpe served as a stand-in on the ballot for Nixon in Massachusetts.

But New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller and Senator Edward W. Brooke combined to deliver a knockout blow to Volpe's whiskers.

Rocky had won the Massachusetts Presidential primary in a political coup. Governor Volpe, the favorite son who was to hold the line for Nixon, had been caught with his votes down.

It didn't really mean much to Nixon who had the Presidential nomination all sewed up and had difficulty making things even look interesting at Miami.

School, Shopping Center, Trash On Night's Agenda

City Hall will be bustling tonight (Thursday) as nearly all of the Committees of the Board of Aldermen are scheduled to consider important or controversial items.

The Franchises and Licenses Committee will be considering a request for permission to lay electric cables into a proposed shopping center on Hammond Pond Parkway. The Committee has requested a look at plans for the project.

The Public Buildings Committee will hold a meeting with architects from the firm of Haldeman and Goransson, to discuss plans for additions to the Underwood, Davis, and Lincoln-Elliott Schools. Aldermen, School Committee members, and members of the Underwood School P.T.A. have all expressed dissatisfaction with the present design.

The Street Traffic Committee plans to meet with William Flynn, of the Boston College Athletics Department, to discuss a proposal to close streets near the college during home football games.

The Public Works Committee must consider a proposed ban on trash compactors. Committee Chairman Andrew J. Magni, who had planned to consider the results of Federal tests of the compactor being conducted in Atlanta, Ga., has just learned that the test results will not be available until March.

The Aldermanic Finance Committee will also be meeting tonight, and the Land Use Committee is scheduled to meet next Tuesday.

Area-

On Nov. 6, the letter continued, the police, stating that they were in the lot to check on the youngsters gathered there, were "in and out of the lot every two minutes," while on Nov. 20, police ordered the lot vacated at 7:30 p.m.—an hour before the old curfew time—under threat of arrest. Youngsters were engaged in collecting trash and cleaning up the area at the time of the order, White said.

City Officials gave contradictory opinions on whether the trial period was in effect. Remarks by Recreation Commissioner John Penney seem to indicate that the trial period was launched. Penney said that he received a bill in mid-November for the additional cost of night lighting on the tennis courts. He then had the lights shut off, since money had not been appropriated to pay for them, he stated.

Lt. Thomas Dargan of the Newton Police Department, on the other hand, contended that the trial period had never begun. Dargan said the trial period was not to be launched until trash barrels were installed by the School Department. He says he was never notified by the School Department as to whether the barrels had been placed on the lot.

Police Chief William F. Quinn said he had never been notified by School Department Business Manager John Gilleland to start the trial period, while Gilleland stated that he believed the trial period was "well underway."

White, in a letter to Aldermanic City Planning Committee David W. Jackson, under whose auspices the agreement was reached, accused the city of having "broken faith" with the youth. Jackson commented that the problem seemed to be a lack of communication.

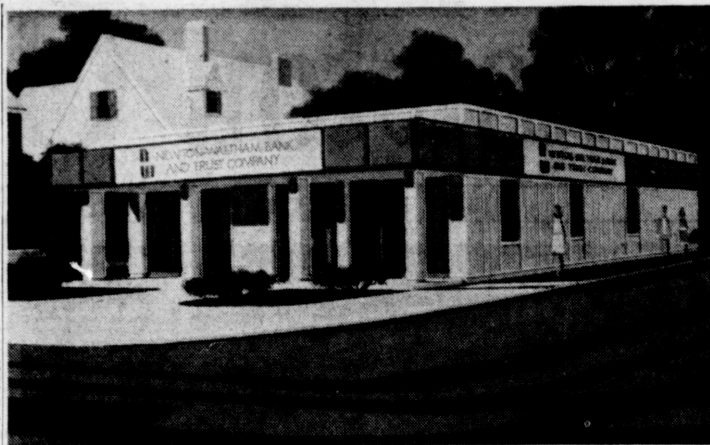

Dinner-

With arrangements now completed for the event, Hon. Haskell C. Freedman, General Chairman, lauded the work of the community's volunteers on the various committees.

"They are," he said, "making this event a highly memorable one for all of us as well as for Mayor Monte G. Basbas. It will be an occasion that will give deserved recognition to Mayor Basbas as he leaves office after three terms as our Mayor and fourteen as our City Clerk."

Information for the event which is now fully subscribed may be obtained through the Chamber of Commerce by calling 244-5300.

Conference Held On Housing Sat. $250,000 Renovation Plans

A Conference on Housing for local public officials was sponsored by the Newton Community Relations Commission last Saturday at Newton College of the Sacred Heart.

A morning panel discussed site selection criteria, eligibility requirements for construction and occupancy, and maintenance problems. Panelists included: William White, Executive Director of MHFA; George Weldenfeller, HUD Boston Area Office Coordinator for Newton; James Miller, Director of Planning for MAPC; and Myron C. Roberts, Contractor.

The afternoon was devoted to small group discussions of programs appropriate to Newton. Group leaders included: R. Jeffrey Pollock, Assistant to Governor Sargent for Urban Affairs; John Eller, Assistant to the Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives; Robert McKay, Executive Director, Citizen Housing and Planning Association; and Professor Robert Engler, Department of Urban Problems, Sacred Heart College.

N'ton-W'tham Bank Opens $250,000 Renovation Plans

The Newton-Waltham Bank and Trust Company has begun an extensive $250,000 renovation program at its Newton Highlands Office, according to Giles E. Mosher, Jr., Chairman of the Board and President.

The office, located at 1160 Walnut Street, was built in 1938 and included a large amount of rental space. The tenants have now relocated, enabling the bank to take over the space.

"In effect, we will be building a completely new bank," Mr. Mosher said. "Part of the building is being demolished to make room for a driveway around the bank and a drive-in facility for our customers. The interior will be enlarged considerably and all of the furniture, fixtures and equipment will be new. The floors will be completely carpeted, and the walls will be covered by a new vinyl surface."

"This work at Newton Highlands is just one more example of our program to make our banking facilities as attractive as possible," Mr. Mosher said. "Within the past year we have remodeled our Newton Upper Falls, Wayland and Winter Street (Waltham) Offices and have just broken ground for a new office in Sudbury."

"The people of Newton Highlands have given us excellent support in the past, and we hope that they will enjoy these new surroundings since they are evidence of our faith and commitment to the community."

Newtonite To Present Mass. Teachers Proposal

Richard J. Durkin of Newton, Massachusetts Teachers Association Consultant in Governmental Services, is one of two officials presenting the MTA 1972 legislative program to the Massachusetts Legislature.

Top priority is being given to a measure allowing school committees to retain funds for payment of teachers' salaries beyond Dec. 31.

Under present laws, money allocated to cover salary increments during the price freeze and Phase 2 would automatically revert to municipal excess and deficiency accounts if not expended by Dec. 31, regardless of the fact that delayed rulings by the Office of Emergency Preparedness and the Price Board may make many teachers eligible for retroactive salary payments.

MTA Executive Secretary William H. Hebert has asked

Governor Sargent to call a special three-day session of the legislature to consider the measure.

Other important items in the legislative package include a statewide minimum salary of $8500 for beginning teachers and a bill affirming teachers' right to strike. Other bills would provide for maximum retirement benefits to be payable at age 55 with 32 years of service, and would protect the right of pregnant teachers to teach as long as they can carry out their assignments.

Uehlein also reported being "surprised" to find surplus funds available in the Street Department.

In other action, the Aldermen referred to the Finance Committee a resolution by Alderman William Carmen calling for the city of Newton to pay 99 per cent of the cost of health and accident insurance for city employees, instead of the present 75 per cent.

A proposed ordinance submitted by Carmen calling for separate bundling of newspapers, magazines, and flattened cardboard boxes was referred to the Public Works Committee. Carmen told the Board that if newspapers were bundled separately from magazines and cardboard, they could bring as much as $18 per ton, compared with a present offer of $8 per ton for the city's waste paper.

A resolution reminding President Richard M. Nixon of the results of the 1970 referendum on Vietnam passed 11-3, incorporating an amendment by Carmen calling for a U.S. offer for immediate withdrawal of all U.S. forces, provided that there was adequate provision for return of prisoners of war. Aldermen Antonellis, Ball, Jackson, Sacks, and Bauckman voted against the amendment for immediate withdrawal.

of the site passed the Board by a vote of 18-5, with Alderman Michael Antonellis, Adelaide B. Ball, Andrew J. Magni, Edward C. Uehlein, and Harry Walen in opposition, and Robert Tennant absent.

The Housing Authority had originally offered $7,638.70 for the land. A motion by McDonnell to raise the price of the land to $20,000 was defeated by a vote of 16-7, with Alderman Richard J. Bullwinkle, Thomas B. Concannon, Jr., Peter F. Harrington, Matthew Jefferson, Arthur H. Sullivan, McDonnell, and Magni voting for the price hike, and Tennant absent.

The proposed price increase urged by McDonnell as a way of shifting the financial burden from the city of Newton to the federal government, which funds the land purchase, was opposed by Alderman William Carmen, who said that any money not spent on purchase of the land could be used to pay for a better quality of construction.

Alderman Edward Uehlein, also opposing the price increase, said the site on a high ledge, would require substantial expenditure to make it suitable for building. "No one has ever offered to buy this land. But it can be used if you make it financially possible by buying at the right price," he declared.

Commented Housing Authority Chairman Anthony J. Medaglia, "We're pleased to see that the Board has acted. However, the standing resolution of the Housing Authority was not to integrate family housing with housing for the elderly."

"Elderly tenants have made it overwhelmingly clear, in a recent survey, that they enjoy seeing children, but not living with them. One of the pro-

Invitation to Police

During the 1968 student uprising at Columbia University radical leaders squeezed a lot of propaganda mileage out of the calling of police to the campus to put down rioting and save lives and property.

The intrusion of police was an "outrage," the radicals screamed, and they pushed their claims so vigorously that before the sorry series of demonstrations came to an end they had some on-the-fence students and faculty members agreeing with them.

In the interim, either by design or through a non-publicized agreement between university officials and city authorities, the police have generally kept a low profile in the area surrounding the Columbia campus.

A series of robberies in dormitories or fraternities just outside the campus perimeter was climaxed recently when bandits took over control of one frat's whole buildings and robbed its nine occupants at gunpoint.

Representatives of the fraternities have now called upon Columbia President, Dr. William J. McGill, to do something about the policing of their properties. In effect, they want the establishment of some law and order.

"The university," Dr. McGill was told, "must recognize its obligation to patrol not only the immediate campus but also those surrounding areas containing large number of students and faculty."

Then comes the demand that "as much pressure as possible be put on the city to provide more police in the area."

Such a request from Columbia students three years ago would have kept the radicals' underground press going night and day and wreck every mimeograph machine on which they could lay their hands.

Three years isn't such a long period. However, viewpoints can and do change swiftly these days. Some of those blue-uniformed men who heard themselves called "pigs" three years ago would be welcomed back as upholders of law and order around Columbia today.

Public Nuisances

All ash trays, salt and pepper shakers and much of the china, glassware, silverware and linens originally placed in three restaurants of the John F. Kennedy Center for Performing Arts in Washington have disappeared. Crystal chandeliers have been stripped; swatches of rugs and curtains have been snipped away and even faucets taken from bathroom basins elsewhere in the $15-million center.

As a tourist attraction the capital's newest architectural lure is exceeding its pre-opening estimates by several thousand each day. Most of the visitors are Americans. They come from big cities and small towns. Many, no doubt, among the number who carried some souvenir or other away from the center, consider it quite a "conversation piece."

On Oct. 16, 1969, when a surprising New York Mets baseball team won the final game of its World Series with Baltimore, the grass on the floor of Shea stadium was pulled up by the sod.

The Smithsonian Institution, created in 1846 by an Act of Congress, is the world's largest museum-gallery complex. More than 12,000,000 persons a year visit its halls. It's an old hand at handling crowds. Long ago it learned that even its most priceless exhibits were not beyond the designs of inveterate souvenir hunters.

A Smithsonian guide tells of the chagrin of visitors who complain they are not afforded a chance to touch the Spirit of St. Louis, the plane which Charles A. Lindbergh flew across the Atlantic to Paris. Smithsonian officials know far too well that nothing would be safe from someone seeking a memento of his trip to Washington.

Other nations, no doubt, have encountered some strange American souvenir-hunters among the tourists they woo every year but most of them have law machinery geared to meeting swift justice and jails in foreign countries make very poor substitutes for hotel rooms.

The American souvenir hunter is a weird person. He'd be shocked to be told he was a thief or vandal, when he displays a piece of rug from the Kennedy Center. Maybe, psychologists would term him a compulsive thief or vandal. To the average person he's a nuisance the public could well do without.

The Newton Redevelopment Authority met at 7:30 a.m. this morning (Thursday) to select a contractor for the demolition of eight vacant buildings located on Washington St., Hamilton St., and Waverly Place in the federally-funded section of the Newton Lower Falls Redevelopment Project.

Low bids for demolition of the eight structures were presented by P. J. Maffei Building and Wrecking Co. ($7650), Jay-Mor Construction Co. ($9999) and Mystic Building and Wrecking Co. ($12,400).

The law requires the Authority to select the lowest qualified bidder, subject to approval by the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

SEASON STARTING!

But it cost Volpe the Republican nomination for Vice President, and it brought Spiro Agnew to fame. You can hardly pick a Veep for your ticket mate who who couldn't even place himself in a position to vote for your nomination.

It will be different in next April's Massachusetts Presidential Primary. Under a new law Mr. Nixon will be obliged to run unless he files a disclaimer with Secretary of State John F. X. Davoren that he is not a candidate. That is the only way in which President Nixon can be kept off the ballot even though he might prefer a more modest place on the sidelines. Presidential candidates are not supposed to be all that modest.

It would be interesting to see what would happen if President Nixon and Governor Rockefeller did engage in a head-to-head fight in Massachusetts next April. The guessing is that Nixon would win easily as a sitting President.

If political developments go as now predicted, Congressman Paul McCloskey of California will oppose President Nixon in the Massachusetts Presidential Primary.

It will not be at all surprising if the bystanders sweep up the last political remains of Mr. McCloskey after that clash.

A surprisingly large number of political experts are predicting that Senator Edward M. Kennedy will control the Massachusetts delegation to the Democratic national convention in San Diego.

We don't quite see how that can happen unless Senator Ted Kennedy wins in the Presidential Primary which he almost certainly would do if he ran. Ted quite possibly could endorse a candidate such as Muskie or McGovern if he doesn't run himself.

Senator Muskie would be a favorite to prevail in the Massachusetts Presidential Primary whether Ted supported him or not although former Vice President Hubert Humphrey probably would benefit from a lot of old-line backing even though he definitely is not a candidate who would fire up the emotions of any group of voters.

How many present and prospective Democratic candidates will remain in the contest is uncertain.

Congressional Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur Mills might pick up quite a bundle of votes as a result of the activity of people such as Congressman James A. Burke. Mills may be a much stronger candidate than many people realize.

If a stalemate develops at the Democratic convention, Congressman Mills may be produced as a good compromise. He's not exactly a ball of fire who will get his supporters dancing in the streets.

But he is a strong, solid candidate who might provide a surprise.

John McCormack's Devotion To Harriet Becomes Legend

Mrs. Harriet McCormack, wife of former Congressman John W. McCormack, came back to Boston in death the other day, travelling in a way she would have vetoed in life.

She arrived in a casket aboard an Air Force Jet assigned by President Nixon.

In real life Mrs. Harriet McCormack, story book wife and sweetheart of John McCormack over the sweep of the decades, would not fly in an airplane.

John McCormack catered to her whim. He didn't fly in an airplane either. He didn't try to persuade her to do so either.

Speaker McCormack usually turned down invitations to travel long distances across the breadth of the continent from Boston to Los Angeles.

But in 1960 John F. Kennedy appealed to McCormack to go to Los Angeles to help in his drive for the Democratic Presidential nomination. McCormack declined. But John Kennedy put the pressure on. He said he needed John McCormack to offset the role of Sam Rayburn, leader in the organization of Lyndon B. Johnson.

McCormack finally agreed, and he and Hattie spent three tedious days crossing the continent of the United States in railroad trains.

They went across the broad waters of the Mississippi, over the Grand Canyon and the Colorado River, through the wheat fields of Kansas and the prairies of the Great Midwest, along a path which paralleled the Rocky Mountains with glittering snow crowning their tops in mid-July.

Harriet looked out the train window at the oceans of the nation she loved.

John McCormack scribbled on a pad of paper trying to figure out how he could switch one vote here and another there to the column of John Kennedy.

It wasn't an easy thing to do. Sam Rayburn was still the Speaker, and John McCormack was loyal to him.

There were stories that John Kennedy and John McCormack were not really friendly in the years immediately after Kennedy's election to Congress in 1946. JFK was a loner.

McCormack never really helped John Kennedy as he did Congressmen Jimmy Burke and Tip O'Neil and Eddie Boland and Phil Philbin. The same friendship didn't exist between them.

But John McCormack helped to turn the tide for John F. Kennedy in Los Angeles during a hot stretch of December, 1960.

John Kennedy had sent word to the delegates that he wanted Lyndon B. Johnson as his Vice Presidential running mate. The word which amounted to a command didn't rest well with certain of the liberals.

There were tense moments during that convention when someone such as Soapy William nominated someone like Scoop Jackson for the Vice Presidency.

A great roar went up from the liberals who didn't want Lyndon Johnson.

Then John McCormack took the microphone and began to speak—slowly, steadily. He said the man nominated for the Presidency had indicated whom he wanted as his running mate and that it was traditional his wish be granted.

The murmurs subsided. The convention quieted. John McCormack then moved that the nomination of Lyndon Johnson for the Vice President be made unanimous. His motion was adopted with a great roar.

A day or two later, John and Harriet McCormack started back across the United States by train, and this time John was able to admire the true grandeur and greatness of the nation in which he wielded such power—its rivers and lakes, its mountains and gorges, the wheat fields, the groves, the wilderness no man had ever penetrated.

Those are some of the memories which come flooding back about John McCormack, his old-fashioned views and values, now in the twilight of his life, who always ate dinner with his Harriet before he went on to some dinner where he was to be the speaker.

John McCormack's devotion to his Harriet will become a legend. They lived together simply in a Washington hotel. Their rather small age differential meant nothing. Harriet had been an opera star. She gave up her career for John. She was a few years older than he.

John turned down most invitations that he speak at important functions. When it was impossible for him to decline, he usually went home to his hotel and ate with Hattie, then toyed with the food at the functional dinner.

Years from now men will still be discussing what John McCormack meant to Massachusetts and how much he did for the State as speaker and majority leader.

LETTERS TO THE GRAPHIC

Chief Quinn Rejects Claim Of Police Dept's Apathy

Editor Graphic:

On Thursday, November 18, 1971 an "open" letter to Mayor Monte G. Basbas and Mayor-elect Theodore Mann was printed in the Newton Graphic. The letter from Mr. Roy Green, 28 Lenox Street, West Newton, complained of a series of attacks by a neighbor's unleashed dog on his leashed dog, causing veterinarian bills to the amount of $311 over a nine-month period, and dog bites to himself and daughter. Mr. Green strongly implies that "the seemingly apathetic of our Police Department" is to some extent responsible.

It is not the usual policy of this department to take up cudgels with anyone who criticizes and occasionally criticism is warranted. In this case, however, the facts seem to indicate that Mr. Green's charge of police apathy is not valid and should be answered.

Mr. Green alleges five attacks on his dog. Our records show only one complaint from Mr. Green, that of October 27, 1971. This was handled, routinely, by warning the owner of the offending dog to keep his dog on leash, and by giving him a copy of the dog laws which explain his criminal liability for his dog's actions.

The other attacks were not reported for a variety of reasons; once, according to Mr. Green's statement to our investigating officer that he had accepted $45 from the attacking dog's owner - and then refrained from notifying this department.

On another occasion, no report was made because Mr. Green's dog was also unleashed. Mr. Green further stated to our officer that none of the incidents in which he or his daughter were bitten was reported as Mr. Green was not sure which dog did the injury - his or the other dog.

A fact which should be noted at this point is that the owner of the dog complained of by Mr. Green received three leash law citations in 1970 prior to any complaint by Mr. Green.

A check with our Animal Control Division which, incidentally, consists of three men - two assigned to the day shift - and one man assigned to the early evening shift - shows that they have up to the end of October, 1971 issued 1260 leash law citations and have picked up 1103 unleashed dogs for transportation to the dog pound. This in addition to many other services performed in connection with incidents involving animals other than dogs.

This can hardly be considered an "apathetic" performance from a very capable group of officers whose efforts are of necessity spread thin in a city of over 13 square miles, having approximately 90,000 residents who own many thousands of animals.

To MR. GREEN, as to any other citizen in need of our service, we recommend - report each incident as it occurs. We will do our level best to assist within the law.

Sincerely yours,
William F. Quinn
Chief of Police
Newton.

er. Measured coldly in jobs and money, the amount is staggering.

Time now is passing John McCormack by, as it does everyone, whether he be President, Speaker, or an ordinary citizen. Something very important went out of his life when his Harriet died in a Washington hospital. John McCormack served as Speaker, holding the second most powerful position in the United States government. John McCormack's career at times took unusual turns.

One of our memories is that Congressman James A. Burke challenged McCormack in 1940. When Jim Burke went to Congress from another district some 16 years later, he became John McCormack's protege.

Two Curley Aides Lost Jobs For Forgetting How To Vote

James M. Curley and I were riding in the comforts of a parlor car on a train travelling from Boston to Washington in the late 1940s.

Somehow, the conversation got around to the historic battle which had been waged in Massachusetts between Alfred E. Smith and Franklin D. Roosevelt for convention support in April, 1932.

Governor Joseph Ely endorsed Al Smith who to many was an all-out hero. He had scheduled a rally at the Boston Arena, and men carried him there on their shoulders.

There were other men who studied the situation with the analytical objectivity of a surgeon in the operating room. Curley was one of them.

They decided Al Smith could not win if he was nominated. They rallied behind Franklin D. Roosevelt, who at the time was Governor of New York.

Al Smith crushed Franklin Roosevelt in Massachusetts. FDR carried only one of Boston's 22 wards. That was Ward 9 of the South End where Mike Ward was known to run through repeaters.

Curley and some of his aides were mournfully going through the returns, precinct by precinct, in the newspapers the next morning when Curley suddenly turned to two of his aides and asked him the number of their ward and precinct. They were brothers who lived together, and they told him the numbers of their ward and precinct.

They are equally important for the young person or the young family starting out with a modest income... Ten dollars today may be as important to them as a hundred dollars years later... The Nelsons will spend six months in Israel.

A Tribute To Rabbi Nelson: 25 Years at Temple Emeth

More than 600 members of Temple Emeth's congregation gathered together on Sunday morning (Nov. 21) for a Testimonial to Rabbi Zev K. Nelson who has served in Newton for the past 25 years. A beautiful plaque, along with appropriate tributes was presented to Rabbi Nelson from the entire Temple on this important milestone in his career.

Mr. Leo Rabinovitz, immediate past president of the Temple, was the chairman and a unique and distinctive program was presented. Avi Nelson led the morning service in the Sanctuary. The program in the Krasner Houseman and Max Cohen Auditoriums included the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and Hatikvah by Mrs. Joseph Don Gusenoff.

Mrs. Mervin Gray presented a beautiful corsage to Mrs. Zev K. Nelson who spoke of twenty-five beautiful years in our community. Special greetings from our Religious School were delivered by Harvey Mamon, while Miss Judy Melin spoke for our U.S.Y. Representing our alumni was Mr. Gerald Wine with an inspiring message.

Rabbi Nelson accepted the plaque presented by Joseph A. Miller, President, with gratitude and took the opportunity to reminisce his twenty-five years at the Temple. He also took the opportunity to formally introduce his lovely children; Avi, Yona and Deena.

Cantor Simon Kandler chanted a special blessing for the occasion.

Mr. Rabinovitz introduced Dr. Bernard Mandelbaum, President of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America and the chancellor-elect of the Seminary. Dr. Mandelbaum told of his long association and of the respect

Mr. Blake served under the Board for World Ministries of the United Church of Christ.

The Second Sunday in Advent was celebrated Dec. 5 with the sermon "A King who comes in gentleness" by guest preacher Rev. Dietmar Bueck, minister of the German Protestant Church, who is pursuing a Master's Degree in Pastoral Counseling at Andover Newton Theological School.

Choirmaster and Organist Jack Fisher led the choir in "Mercy, pity, peace and love" by Lovelace; "Hear, O Lord, hear my prayer" by Lassus; and Cantata: (Text, W. Bartholomew) by Mendelssohn. Mr. and Mrs. Gilman A. Sawyer greeted members of the congregation at the door.

Mass. Transit Petition Drive

A petition for a referendum to allow gas tax monies to be used for mass transit reaped 4,247 certified Newton signatures out of a total of 5,232 presented to the Newton Election Commission last week.

The certified signatures were forwarded to the State House to be added to the statewide drive, spearheaded by the League of Women Voters.

All constitutional amendments must be approved by referendum.

There are two methods of getting a Constitutional Amendment on the ballot: the general law route (through the legislature), which requires passage by a majority at the annual Constitutional Convention to have a measure placed on the ballot, and the petition route.

Petitioners have estimated that they have twice the number of signatures needed to bring the measure before the yearly Constitutional Convention (composed of both houses of the state legislature).

The gas tax amendment previously failed to win a majority of votes at the Convention when brought through the legislature. When brought by a statewide petition drive, the measure needs to win only 70 of the 280 legislators' votes, in two successive Constitutional conventions, to appear on the ballot. If approved by at least 70 legislators in both the 1972 and 1973 Constitutional conventions, the measure would appear on the ballot in the next state election (1974). The 1972 Convention will probably occur in the spring.

Housing Conference Calls For Mixed-Income Project

James Miller, vice - chairman of the Newton Housing Authority and staff member of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, (MAPC) called for new legislation to allow Housing Authorities to build for moderate as well as low-income families. His remarks came Saturday at a conference for city officials on housing, sponsored by the Newton Community Relations Commission at Newton College of the Sacred Heart.

Newton State Representative David J. McFenson pledged to push in the legislature for a bill to limit Housing Authorities to build mixed - occupancy housing. James Eller, assistant to the Speaker of the house, said that the change in powers could possibly be made through a late-filed bill.

Massachusetts Housing and Finance Agency (MHFA) Executive Director William White, citing the advantages of privately developed mixed - income projects, called for the abolition of Housing Authorities. "I can understand why people object to the junk that has been built elsewhere," White declared, contending that MHFA had higher standards than local Housing Authorities on site selection, management and maintenance, and attractiveness of design.

Asked how he would overcome prejudices of residents against low-income units in an apartment development, White asserted, "We'd take people around in a bus and show you what we've built."

Suggesting that Newton move quickly to take advantage of federal funds, Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Newton area coordinator George Weidenfeller told officials that six sites around the state will be selected shortly for a "break - through" mixed - income housing program to put up a total of 1500 prefabricated units, one-third of which would have rent subsidies for low-income families.

Notice for the project, which is scheduled for rapid completion, went out Friday. Private developers were contacted Tuesday, and the units are to be under construction by this coming May. "You find the site, we'll supply the money, and you'll be in the ground by summer," Weidenfeller pledged.

The federal government is anxious to find suburban sites for the project, Weidenfeller stated.

Mayor - elect Theodore D. Mann stated afterwards that a review was being conducted to see if a mixed-income project could be erected by coordination among existing agencies.

Newton Youngster Cited In Photography Contest

A 3-minute movie produced by a 14-year old Newton High School sophomore has won an honorable mention in the junior category of the ninth annual Kodak Teenage Movie Awards.

"Born To Be Wild," the winning film submitted by Roger Graves, 301 Islington Road, Auburndale, is a comedy about high schoolers who gauge a person's worth by "status symbols" such as cars and driving prowess.

"Excellent technical approach . . . perfect exposure . . . good continuity . . . very clean editing," remarked judges.

The super 8-color film, with sound on tape, required only four hours production time on location in Cape Cod. It is Graves' second honorable mention in a row in the competition.

A volunteer worker at the Museum of Science in Boston and a member of Newton High's Photo Club, the 14-year-old says he "would not mind being a professional photographer or possibly an electronics engineer."

The annual competition is sponsored by Eastman Kodak Company in cooperation with University Film Foundation on behalf of University Film Association, whose members serve as judges, and the Council on International Non-theatrical Events (CINE), which chooses films from among the winners for showing at foreign film festivals.

Public Invited To Meeting On Riverside Plan

The Aldermanic Land Use Committee will hold a special open meeting on the Riverside Associates proposal for an office park at Grove St. and Rte. 128. The meeting will be held at City Hall on Tuesday, Dec. 14, at approximately 8 p.m.

The Newton Conservation Commission, the Newton Conservators and the Charles River Watershed Association, the Newton Planning Board, representatives of the city's Building and City Planning Depts. all have been invited to attend, as well as the petitioner, Thomas Sears.

"I am hopeful that the President of the Board would be a link with the executive department. With a Republican Mayor and a Democratic majority on the Board of Aldermen, we are in a position of friendly opposition to the executive. Perhaps it was felt that a Democratic officer could relate better to the Board in this situation," commented Cohen.

More important than the President's role as Parliamentarian and moderator, according to Cohen, is his potential role in keeping tabs on measures as they go through committee.

"I would like to work more strongly with all committees, so that problems, details, and questions are worked out in the committees, and we don't have to spend so much time in debate on the floor of the Board," he declared.

The job of the President would be to attend as many committee meetings as possible and to push docket items toward a satisfactory conclusion. "to follow things through, to see what the story is, and to try to get the Aldermen together."

Commented Cohen, "The public doesn't know much about the workings of the Board. I don't think they realize what a devoted bunch of guys they have up there. I don't think they realize, regardless of the vote, the amount of work and time they put in."

In order to make the best decision on an item, the aldermen must study maps, charts, and documents relating to the item. Declaring that it is vital for every alderman to "get his homework done," Cohen asserted, "I intend to get on everyone's back. I work hard and I intend to see that everyone else works hard."

In stating out the boundaries of his new job, Cohen added, "I want to state my admiration for Board President Wendell Bauckman. This is no reflection on the individual or his capacities. He is a fantastic individual, and the greatest civic servant this city ever had or will have."

The new City Charter designates the President of the Board as Acting Mayor in the event of sickness or absence of the Mayor. The President is also given the power to call special meetings of the Board.

In addition, the Rules of the Board, adopted informally at Thursday night's caucus, give the President the power to decide which aldermen are to serve on each of the Aldermanic Committees, and to appoint the Chairman of each committee.

The committee chairman, according to Cohen, is "the motivating force. As strong as your chairman is and as much work as he does, that's how much the committee does. He has to do his homework so the report will be accepted, and he has to get the members of the committee to do their job. I have to think that the committee chairmen are going to do their jobs, or I might change them."

Cohen would like to see two additional aldermanic committees established: a standing committee on Housing (turned down by the caucus Thursday night) and a Memorial Committee to supervise the establishment of a veterans' memorial in Cold Spring Park.

The president's influence as Parliamentarian is most important in the meetings of the full Board of Aldermen because of his power to decide questions of order.

During the past year, the President was called upon to give several key interpretations regard the proper use of the "charter objection", by which a single alderman may cut off discussion and prevent a vote on an item for one meeting.

The President may also divide a question into two parts to be considered separately, may decide which committees should consider items not covered by the Rules of the Board, and may decide which committee should review an appointment made by the Mayor.

As moderator, he decides who speaks first when two aldermen rise at the same time.

Before beginning its election of officers, the Board debated for nearly an hour on whether to hold the caucus in executive session.

Alderman Edward C. Uehlein declared that "The question is whether voters are entitled to know why A. B. or C was elected to an office. Alderman-elect Richard McGrath, Ward Alderman from Ward 4, asserted that the caucus was "a family affair", not an official action.

Aldermen Joseph M. McDonnell of Ward 1, Matthew Jefferson of Ward 3 and Ernest F. Dietz of Ward 6, maintained that the caucus had traditionally been closed to the public and press. Declared Dietz, "I can never remember an open caucus, and I see no reason to start now."

Jefferson urged the aldermen not to set a precedent by opening the caucus. McDonnell maintained that the caucus was the internal business of the Board. Ward 6 Alderman Sidney T. Small declared that "the caucus wouldn't be a caucus" if it were open to the press.

Aldermen David W. Jackson of Ward 4 and Jason Sacks of Ward 7 argued for an open meeting, contending that if the meeting were closed to the press, some aldermen might leak biased versions of the proceedings afterward.

Alderman Alan S. Barkin of Ward 8 asserted that the state legislature acts in executive session "all the time" and declared, "Let's not feel we're doing something underhanded."

Pointing out that the caucus was not an official meeting of the Board and was therefore not subject to the open meeting law, Harrington declared nevertheless that he had no objection to the presence of the press. "We have a tendency to go into executive session to protect our mistakes," he asserted. "But we should recognize that we're only human. If we say something wrong, we can correct it or apologize later. With the press here, we might even be more cautious and deliberate."

The vote was 14-8 in favor of executive session, with Aldermen Jackson, Harrington, Egelson, Sacks, Crosby, Uehlein and Tennant and Alderman-elect Edward L. Richmond voting against a closed session. Alderman-elect Robert Gaynor absent, and Alderman Bauckman abstaining.

Miss Stephanie Krumm Is Bride of Mr. Paul Croci

A wedding trip to St. Thomas and the Virgin Islands followed the pretty four o'clock wedding Saturday afternoon (Nov. 27) of Miss Stephanie Krumm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald F. Best man for his brother was Edward P. Croci of Framingham, while Mr. Alexander Adams, brother-in-law of the bride of North Andover, Mr. Louis Demers of Ashland and Mr. David Tomassini of Framingham, seated the guests.

Last year's production, delightful entertainment to open the Christmas holidays. This is the third season for Newton's semi-professional Civic Ballet Center Company which is under the artistic and administrative direction of Miss Marjorie I. Medland. The thirty performers are drawn from ballet schools in the greater Boston area on the basis of open auditions. They range in ages from 10 years to adult.

Cavalier to Miss Fitzgerald will be Mr. Carl Topliffe, former director of the Prometheus Academy Ballet School in Waltham.

Clara, the little girl who dreams her Christmas nutcracker came to life, will be danced by Vivian Messer of Waban. In addition, Alex Cicelsky will dance the role of the Nutcracker and Uncle Drosselmeier, the toymaker, will be played by Andrew Messer of Waban.

Refreshments may be purchased during the intermission of the ballet. At the end of the performance the audience may meet and talk with the dancers on the stage. Co-chairmen for this delightful program made available to the public by the Waban Woman's Club are Mrs. Henry A. Lambert and Mrs. Richard W. Husher. Mrs. Ingo Kaack heads the committee to provide refreshments.

Ward Seven Democratic Committee Hears County Citizen's Chairman

The recent meeting of the Ward 7 Democratic Committee opened with discussion of the recent election results with comments from Alderman Harry Crosby, Ald. Eliot Cohen, Ald.-elect David Cohen, and defeated Alderman candidate Frank Fitzpatrick.

The next meeting of the Ward 7 Democratic Committee will be on December 14th at 8 p.m. at Grace Episcopal Church, Eldridge St., Newton Corner. The topic for discussion will be "The Newton Redevelopment Authority and Newton Lower Falls" and the guest speakers will be Donald Daniels, Vice Chairman of the Newton Redevelopment Authority, and John Young, 2313 Washington St., Newton, Chairman of the Lower Falls Area Project Committee. The meeting is open to the public.

There was a motion passed at the November meeting by the Committee to urge Senator Kennedy to press further with his opposition of Mr. Renquist to the Supreme Court and to ask Senator Brooke to join him. The Committee also discussed the Gas Tax petition, and Rep. David Mofenson advised those with petitions how to deliver them to the proper place.

Guest speaker was Charles Clough of Concord, Chairman of Citizen's for Middlesex County, a group devoted to county government reform. Mr. Clough opened his speech with an explanation of the function of county government and some of the glaring deficiencies. One of these is the Middlesex County Hospital, a beautiful chronic care facility with a capable staff and director who, according to Mr. Clough, turn away 4 out of 5 patients because they lack professional staff and have too many non-professional people.

Mr. Clough feels that with reorganization we could break even financially here and not lose 1 million dollars a year. He also noted that it costs $8000 per year to keep a boy in a county training school which has poor facilities, the increase in budget and the number of workers in the highway department keeps going up, and the Agriculture Extension Service program is not productive. Mr. Clough feels that these problems exist because patronage determines the level of competence in staffing of facilities.

As a first step toward reform, Mr. Clough would like to see the jails transferred to the state and then reorganized on a regional level, since jails and houses of correction account for about 70 percent of the County System.

Citizen's for Middlesex County will be holding an open caucus in February to find administratively capable candidates to run for county office, with the eventual goal of reforming county government to be efficient and economical.

Newton High Hockey And Hoop Prospects Bright

Newton Hockey Hopes High; Nine Lettermen Returning

By DAVID SOLOMON

Six years without competing in post-season play is a long time. Especially for a team from Newton High. The Tiger hockey team barely missed a Tournament berth last winter, and this year they appear to be strong candidates to finally make it for the first time since 1966.

Last season, the skaters finished fourth in their league, with a 10-8 record. With nine varsity lettermen returning, this year's squad will be, according to Coach Francis Kinlin, "much more experienced and solid." Kinlin is now in his twelfth season as hockey coach at Newton.

Most of Newton's experience is in its forward lines. Last year's first line of Wally Cox between Jimmy Fay and Mark Howley returns intact from last year. Fay and Cox are co-captains, and Cox was Newton's leading scorer a year ago. He accounted for fifteen goals and four assists. These three seniors have six years of varsity experience between them.

The second line will most likely consist of Mark Connolly at center, Mark Donovan at right wing, and Dirk Pittman or John Connolly at left wing. Donovan and John Connolly are seniors; Pittman and Mark Connolly are juniors. All played for Newton's varsity in '70-'71 except for Pittman. He played center for Newton South, before transferring to Newton this fall.

Positions on Newton's third line are still up for grabs, with several boys in contention.

"Our offense has been skating well so far," commented Kinlin. "We're ahead of last year's pace, and our experience will be of great value to us."

Newton's defense is not quite so well set. The Tigers have one strong pair in Steven Chapman and Ted Todd. These two players skated together on last year's team and will be the cornerstone of the defense. The team's biggest question at the moment is who will be the other two regular defensemen. "We're not terribly experienced at defense," noted

Plans Developing For Gym In New Newton High School

By DAVID SOLOMON

It may be little consolation to juniors and seniors, but when the new Newton High School opens in two years, it will contain an extremely modern and flexible gymnasium.

The present archaic athletic structure contains approximately 14,000 square feet in floor area. The new complex has a total floor space of nearly 80,000 square feet, and although this includes locker rooms and other non-gymnasium features, the facility is a tremendous improvement over the existing structure.

Architectural firm of Perry, Dean and Stuart, in close cooperation with the Newton athletic department is responsible for the planning of this section of the new school.

Viewed from the current campus, the athletic complex is on the extreme left of the new school. There are two gyms, each comprising one and one half floors of the three floor complex. Each gym is over 65 feet high.

The upper gym has been built as a simulated outdoor area. This section has 23,000 feet of open floor space. According to the modern approach to the building of gymnasiums, Newton's gym was designed to serve as a field house type of facility.

This upper gym contains an indoor track, three indoor tennis courts, and a basketball court, as well as standard gym space. Special bleachers will be provided that double as room dividers when folded up. All of this area is floored with an artificial synthetic surface. At this point it has not been determined exactly which brand of surface will be utilized. Newton High Boys' Athletic Director Reggie Smith is pleased with the artificial surface. "It lends itself to a variety of activities and allows them to be played under ideal conditions. Not only can basketball be played on it, but tennis and all of the activities used in our physical education program."

No longer will a basketball game or other event make it impossible for other students to use the athletic facilities. The new school's lower gym has electric doors which will divide the gym into three sections so other activities can go on during a game.

This downstairs "exhibition gym" has a floor space of 15,000 square feet. It contains three small basketball courts besides the regular-sized game court. Instead of the court being surrounded by bleachers, built-in bleachers will provide seating for about 700 spectators. When not in use these bleachers fold into the wall.

The Newton Centre Pony League Basketball Team posted a 51-48 comeback exhibition victory over Hawthorn, behind the final stanza heroics of Peter Hite. Hite accounted for 10 of his 14 points in the last quarter. The Centre was trailing 43-48 when Hite hit two quick jumpers and then stole the ball on an inbound pass and scored on a layup. The surge boosted N.C.P. into a 49-48 advantage. Neil Levitan tossed in two charity throws to ice the victory, 51-48.

an indoor swimming pool, and although it is not perfect, the pool is certainly adequate. As a result of a compromise between what would ultimately be desired and what space exists, the pool is a rectangle, 75 by 42 feet. This is about one-half the length of an olympic-size pool. The pool will be three and one-half feet deep in the shallow end, and twelve feet at the other end. Two diving boards, of one and three meters loom above.

Mr. Smith recognized that the swimming area is not an ideal one: "A swimming area should be divided into uses. One pool for diving, one for instruction, and one for competition. Space limitations did not allow for this, however."

Another big plus for this new athletic facility is some of the special rooms. No longer will students be cramped into tiny, stuffy locker rooms. Between the gyms and the swimming pool will be three floors of locker rooms. This space will also include an expanded equipment room, team rooms, and a dance room.

Now that Newton has provided its high school students with such a modern and exciting athletic complex, there are several questions which still loom important.

It is possible that the change in location will affect the setup of the athletic departments. Presently they are divided into girls' and boys' sections, but they may be combined in the near future. Mr. Smith commented about this situation that except for the locker rooms, "all of the facilities are designed for joint use. There are no boys' or girls' areas per se."

Plans keep changing about what will happen to the old school, but right now all three existing buildings are being planned to be torn down. This entire area will then consist of athletic fields. Near Building One and the Drill Shed will be more outdoor tennis courts. As for where specific sports fields will be located, plans are not yet definite in this area either.

One other questionable area is the topic of after-school use. No official plans have been made, but it is highly possible that the complex will be open to Newton residents on evenings and weekends. It is hopeful that students will have priority, for after all, aren't they those for whom a school is built?

Newton South High Football Wrapup

LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Newton South High's football eleven compiled a 3 record and finished third in the Dual County League this fall, for its second straight winning campaign.

The Lions' mark duplicates their 1970 finish, but is a great improvement over the winless teams of 1968 and 1969.

South began its season auspiciously, dropping a 19-6 encounter to Bedford, eventual Dual County runner-up.

The gridsters started to move the following Saturday, pulverizing Lincoln - Sudbury for their first triumph, 28-8, and kept on moving past Weston, 28-13.

The Lions were then halted by Class C champion Wayland, 28-0, before ripping off three straight victories over Acton - Boxboro, Lynnfield, and Westwood. South was shooting for its best record in five years entering its season's finale, but was cut down by St. John's Prep.

No running back in Newton South history ever enjoyed as fine a season as senior halfback Howie Haines produced this year.

Haines set nine school records en route to his mind-boggling statistics of 110 points scored and 939 yards gained rushing at a rate of 6.5 per try.

The 5-8, 170-pound flash established South standards for most yards gained rushing, one game - 312; most attempts, one game - 38; most points, one game (tied) - 24; most touchdowns, one game (tied) - four; most points, one season - 110; most touchdowns, one season - 18; most yards gained rushing, one season - 939; most points, career - 152; and most touchdowns, career - 24. Haines' 110 points was the sixth highest total in the state.

Haines was the sparkplug for the offense and the mainstay of the backfield, but he had plenty of help. The Lions were blessed with a well-balanced, explosive group of four behind the line.

Co-captain Dave Leichook was "Mr. Inside" to Haines' "Mr. Outside". He was a bull in defense, which allowed 142 points, was 230-pound Roger Cooper. He got tremendous help from Adelma, Levine, Moynihan, Backer, Dolitka, Dennis Anastasia and Paul Patton. Cooper led the forward charge from his defensive tackle post, but Backer, a deadly tackler at middle linebacker, called the signals.

Most of the first unit will graduate, but there are plenty of replacements on hand. Staulo, Brian Corcoran, Jim Caruso, Roger Fontecchio, Walt Fatini, Tony Lombardo, Art Murphy, and Paul Kelly, all saw action this year and should advance to the front line next season.

The Lions lose a lot with graduation, most notably, Haines and Leichook from the backfield, and Levine, Backer, Adelma and Cooper from the line, plus a few other important performers, but there is a lot of depth and a solid nucleus remains. A good sophomore crop could make the difference between a fair team and a good one.

Ben Press Elected Captain Of Newton Basketball Team

Wander into that dingy old gym some cold winter afternoon or evening, and you're likely to be enlivened by the sight of the "most exciting basketball in the state." Be assured that these optimistic words of coach Jerry Phillips refer to the Newton team, and not the implement of their desires.

The hoopsters had their best record in twenty years in 1970-1971. Rated to finish fifth in the league, they responded by placing first with a 13-3 record. The Tigers are again picked to finish around fifth in the league this year, and once again they'll try to upset the predictions. Only this year the team is without superstar Chuck Pendergast, and thus will require some changes in Newton's form of play.

"We have a more balanced team this year," noted Phillips. "We won't be able to depend on one player, but rather we'll expect strong performances from all five players. We should have five boys scoring in double figures each game."

"We have the biggest team in the history of Newton," continued the Newton coach, "and this has to be considered a big plus. We'll have much greater rebounding strength."

Phillips is not yet sure of the starting lineup for the season: "Our talent runs deep, and of our eleven boys it is still hard to point out five definite starters."

At this point, probable starters will be captain Ben Press, Steve Platt and Peter Laskaris on the forward line, with Dan Curtis and Ken Billings at guard. Newton's forwards possess an average height of 6'4", with the backcourt tandem averaging 5'11". Platt and Press are seniors, and along with Curtis are the only returning members from last season's championship squad. Press was elected captain at team meeting last week. He is a serious, tough competitor, with a great team attitude. Billings played J.V. last season, while 6'5" Laskaris is a sophomore from Weeks.

Regardless of our record, though, the boys can have a lot of fun by working together as a team. If each individual puts out 100 percent both mentally and physically we will achieve many goals, some of which are intangible... as a coach, I know it will be great to watch and work to help such talented individuals.

Last season Newton had its best year since 1951. On December 17th the Tigers will begin trying for their best season since 1971. Newton South will be their first opponents. Hopefully it will not take another twenty years. At least in two years the gym won't be the same.

South Has Six Grid All Stars

Newton South High cleaned up, last week, placing six men on the Dual County League football all-star team.

Howie Haines, multi-school record holder from his halfback post, and Tackle Leny Adelman, were named to the first eleven. Co-captain fullback Dave Leichook and Linebacker Alan Packer were named as utility back and utility lineman, respectively, on the first squad.

Co-captain end Bob Levine and Tackle Roger Cooper were listed as starters on the second team.

All six players are seniors and will graduate from this year's 5-3 Lion team. (Lewis Freedman)

When one begins to mention the great brother combinations etched in the annals of sports greatness, the tandems of the Deans, the Dimagios and the Mahovichs all come to mind but, how about the Cullen brothers?

Larry and George Cullen both lead their respective divisions with 9-2 and 8-3 slates. Two more victories will insure them of championships. But, the road ahead will not be an easy one for the Cullens. Next week George faces Bob Worden, who remains only one game off the pace and in the final week he meets Steve Pozzi. Larry faces Al Friedman and in a match of the Titans Neil Levitan challenges for the title in the final week.

Those clinching playoff spots in the individual competition are Larry Cullen, Doug Pepper, Neil Levitan, Dave Fishman, and Saul Rubin. Others include Steve Pesky, Chris Peters, Brian McNulty, Bryan Cutrone, Bob Worden and George Cullen.

In team play the Vikings have a solid lead over the Giants. The Chiefs and Chargers are in a dogfight for third place, 20 pins separate the clubs.

The following letter was received by the Newton Graphic in regard to its Newton South Flashback story, by Lewis H. Freedman, which appeared Nov. 25.

Dear Mr. Freedman,

As always I am proud of my son's athletic prowess for Newton South High, but I was disappointed that you did not mention my son, John, under the families for Newton South.

John was one of the first "eleven" for Newton South under Coach Ronayne. He was Co-Captain in '61-'62. He was, I believe, an outstanding halfback.

Sincerely yours, Mrs. John V. Parnell, Jr.

(Note: The writer of the letter is the mother of John, Steve and Nicky Parnell, three of Newton South's finest athletes. Apologies for only mentioning two of them.)

Freedman's Sports Talk

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Three highly touted sophomores have moved into prominent positions this winter, and are supposed to boost the Boston University basketball team to its best season in years. Sophomores, returnees, or newcomers, notwithstanding, however, the man who matters most is the man in the middle, James Garvin.

'67 center Garvin will be the key to the hoopsters' championship fortunes. He was superb last year, gunning in 16.4 points a game and ripping off 13 rebounds per contest but not even his talents could rescue a 7-18 team.

With the Terrier season opening tonight in the first round of the annual Beanpot Basketball Tournament at the Boston Garden, Garvin can already detect a difference between this year's and last year's squads.

"Our hopes were up for the team last year but after the first scrimmages and games we found out we weren't as good as we thought. We didn't play up to our mental standards. There is more enthusiasm and spirit this year. The freshmen were spirited, and those guys brought the spirit with them this year. It makes it easier."

The 205 - pounder is a marvel to watch on the court. He's 100 per cent hustle and a beautiful portrait of strength and co-ordination. He worked hard to improve an awkward outside shot and is now a deadly corner shooter. Inside, he is unstoppable and battles for rebounds like a boxer in fighting.

Watching Jim Garvin run, rebound, and shoot is impressive; watching him play defense is breathtaking. A player is dribbling to the hoop; he fakes, he turns, he shoots. And out of nowhere a large black hand appears and bats the ball into the third row. On a second attempt Garvin may just pluck the ball out of midair with both hands and keep it.

The first word that comes to Garvin's mind when asked to analyze this year's BU team is "great. We're really up for the season. This could be BU's best team ever. Personally, I am very excited because I've played on some really lousy teams. The only good one I've ever played on was in my senior year at Phelps Vocational High (Washington, D.

C.). That was my best year. I averaged 19 points and 20 rebounds a game, and we had a lot more good ballplayers. Our bad luck was playing in the same league as McKinley High. They were best in the country that year and we lost to them three times. The third time we were down by 31 points in the first half and actually got the lead, but then we lost by two points."

The 21-year-old School of Education junior is very conscious of his own role on the team.

"Last year we were too individual whereas this year we're more cohesive. Last year my job was to get points. But I'm not really a specialist. I try to be an all-around player. If we need scoring, or rebounding, or defense, I'll do whatever the team needs in a particular game to win. That's what is important to me. If I get 15 points and maybe 15 rebounds a game, I can't ask for any more."

Garvin views his new coach Ron Mitchell (The first black head coach in BU history, Mitchell was the football team's defensive coach.) with awe akin to reverence; not Bear Bryant fear reverence, but a reverence born of respect.

"Coach Mitchell is a wonderful guy," said Garvin. "He's not the traditional, 'I'm the coach, you're the player, so do what I say' type. He talks to us on a man-to-man basis. He wants us to see and accept responsibility individually and be able to contribute to one team effort. He brings out respect. You want to play for him. He's not very authoritarian and he's not very liberal. He bears down when he has to and he knows when to give leeway. I'll take it one step further. Coach Mitchell is revolutionary among basketball coaches."

One thing that has bugged Jim Garvin over the last two years is athletic fan support in general, and basketball fan support in particular, or the lack of it - at Boston University.

"I was disillusioned when I first came here, but now I'm kind of used to it. I'm still optimistic, though. We had great support at our Assumption scrimmage, last month. I was very surprised. It's good for team morale to look around and see people."

"There's a lot of competition for fans here in Boston, with hockey. Look at the Celtics. I could never understand that. They won and won and still didn't draw the people. Boston's a hockey town and it just depends how good the hockey teams are. Here at Boston University, though, despite the Boston precedent, I think the fans will go with a winner, even if we do have the competition of the NCAA champion."

"Washington is the opposite of Boston. I guess because it's in the South and the climate is better, but basketball is very big. Kids here are brought up on hockey. There are pee wee hockey teams, but very little basketball for kids. It must be the organization. It's strange, too, because basketball allows for greater participation.

"Hockey is for wealthier people. Not every kid can afford the equipment you need to play, so kids play the thing that's cheapest. It's easy for black and white kids in slums and ghettos to play basketball. All's they need is a ball. That's why you'll find a lot of great ballplayers coming from poor regions. The kids are reared on basketball because of finances. Most poor people, you'll find, are very practical."

The Terriers appear much stronger this year than last. So much stronger, in fact, that Mitchell has predicted an NIT berth. Garvin agrees.

"We're gonna be tough. A lot of teams will find that out soon enough. We don't play the toughest schedule, but we'll surprise plenty of people. I think Oral Roberts, Harvard, Rhode Island, Rutgers, Georgetown, and Dartmouth will be our toughest opponents, but there isn't a team we can't beat."

James Garvin has suffered with mediocre teams through junior high, through most of high school, and his first varsity season at Boston University. He's kind of tired of losing.

James Garvin thinks the time has come today and he knows when the young Terrier team reaches its potential it's going straight to the championship.

ASK COLLEGES TO PAY UP

The mayors of some of the cities in which units of the State University of New York are located are seeking legislation making colleges pay for police and fire protection in addition to other public services.

Although state law excludes colleges from paying for these services, officials complain that expanding campuses draw more and more from community general funds. They claim colleges should now pay a fair share of the cost of security and other services.

Mofenson Speaks To UMass Group

Over 180 delegates at the University of Massachusetts (Amherst) 13th annual student workshop on activities problems (SWAP) conference recently heard Newton Representative David J. Mofenson speak on the role of the individual in legislative affairs. Representative Mofenson stressed the need for people to be involved and in contact with their representatives so as to influence and, therefore, legitimize the actions of the Commonwealth's law-making body. He emphasized the involvement the university community should have with the General Court.

Representative Mofenson emphasized that "The University should not be heard only in the context of a tuition increase; it should be actively supporting or opposing bills in the legislature that deal with education. The university," he contended, "is one of the best resources in the state — it should be involved in the Commonwealth's affairs to a greater degree than it is today."

Guzzi Files Bills To Change Counties

Newton State Representative Paul H. Guzzi and Representative Chet Atkins of Concord have filed a bill with the Massachusetts Legislature that would allow counties to elect a charter commission to prepare recommendations for revision of the county charter.

The bill was modeled on the state law which permitted Newton to elect a Charter Commission and then to vote on its recommendations.

The bill for a county charter commission would allow revision of such aspects of county government as the three-commissioner executive branch, which some critics have contended makes it difficult to pinpoint responsibility for mismanagement in county government.

Guzzi, who is working with a reform group called Citizens for Middlesex County, has submitted several other bills that could produce sweeping changes in county government. One bill, filed jointly by Guzzi, Newton Representative David J. Mofenson, and Mayor-elect Theodore D. Mann, would transfer to the state the costs and control of all county hospitals, courts, and correctional institutions.

The measure, which has been advocated by Sheriff John J. Buckley although it would eliminate his present job, is a resubmission of a measure that was buried in committee last year.

"Eventually we'd like to do other things, such as purchasing and budgeting on a regional basis, to gain economies of scale. Regional

Wrangling Over Riverside Free Concert On Splits Board of Aldermen Dec. 18 At JHS

Two hours of parliamentary maneuvering on the Board of Aldermen Monday night culminated in the "charters" of petitions for a zoning change and permissive use on height limitations for a proposed nine-story office park on the Charles River at the intersection of Grove St. and Rte. 128.

The city charter gives any alderman acting alone the right to halt action on an item by "charters" it the first time it comes to the Board.

Amid rumors of pressure from politicians at the state level for approval of the project, aldermen debated about whether the proposal was legitimately on the floor, and whether it could be sent back to committee if it had never been officially reported out by the committee.

In prior meetings of the Aldermanic Land Use Committee, proponents of the project, including Aldermen Peter F. Harrington and Joseph M. McDonnell, argued that the city stood to lose some $400,000 in tax revenues - $1 to $1.50 on the tax rate - if the proposed $5 - $6 million structure were not approved by the first of the year.

Thomas Sears, vice-president of Sprague Industries, the general partner in Riverside Associates, claimed that the principal tenant, Sun Life Insurance Co. of Canada, would begin to look for another site after the first of the year.

Opponents, most notably Lower Falls Alderman Louis I. Engelson, charged that the project would cause insurmountable traffic problems, due to an influx of more than 30 cars in the Grove St. - Rte. 128 area.

At hearings in October, the project was opposed by conservationists, who contended that buildings would infringe on flood plain land and would scuttle plans for an MDC recreation area on the Charles River in that area. Representatives of the Newton Lower Falls and Auburndale Improvement Associations also spoke in opposition to the plan.

At the last meeting of the Land Use Committee, proponents of the development argued that plans had been substantially altered, eliminating one of two proposed buildings and a parking area that would have required fill of flood plain land.

Recommendations from the city traffic consultant, suggesting that with certain road widenings and traffic signals the area could handle the additional flow of traffic, were received just prior to the meeting.

The Newton Conservation Commission sent a letter to the aldermen Nov. 29 stating continued opposition, despite the changes in the plan. The Commission still felt the land should be taken as part of an MDC Nature Area. In addition, the letter cited a proposed expansion of the Riverside MBTA Terminal, which it was contended would create more traffic in the area, "increasing the importance of maintaining the narrow, wooded screen" separating the terminal and the Jordan Marsh warehouse from the recreation area.

Although traffic recommendations had not been discussed, proponents of the plan urged that the Land Use Committee bring the matter onto the floor at the Dec. 6 meeting of the Board of Aldermen to avoid the possibility that the item would be chartered if brought to the Full Board for the first time at the last meeting of the year.

Land Use Committee Chairman Alan S. Barkin introduced the proposal to the floor of the Board by saying, "The Committee voted to bring the item out on second call, and here it is." He refused to discuss the item further.

Contending that a new hearing was needed on the proposal, Engelson charged that the plans had been substantially changed, and that citizens in the area ought to have a chance to review the changes.

Donald M. Budge, President of the Newton Lower Falls Improvement Association, in a letter to the Aldermen, reported continued unanimous opposition to the plan at a Nov. 30 meeting of 100 Lower Falls residents.

In the same letter, he mentioned that one resident questioned why substantial investments had been made in an access road prior to approval of the project by the Board of Aldermen, unless it was felt that the project was certain to be approved.

Urging the Board to give primary consideration to the sentiment of the community, Budge suggested that the office plan be denied for the Charles River site and be incorporated into the Lower Falls Redevelopment Area.

A decision on the proposed office may be made Dec. 20 at the last 1971 meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

MDC To Develop Bicycle Path Around River Basin

The MDC has launched the first phase of a major new program to develop a 20-mile bicycle path around Charles River Basin.

The Commission approved last week a contract to develop a 4 1/2-mile stretch of bicycle route along the Cambridge shore from the Longfellow Bridge to the Eliot Bridge. The contract provides for a six-foot-wide bituminous concrete path which will include pedestrian walkways.

Phase II will continue the path from the Eliot Bridge to Watertown Square, and down the Newton and Boston shoreline to the Charles River Dam at the Museum of Science, then linking up with the Cambridge end at Longfellow Bridge. Design work is nearly completed on this section.

"Bike riding is one of the fastest growing recreational

Stores In Court On Complaints

Complaints of violations of the city sign code by a block of stores on Commonwealth Ave. in Newton Centre were heard in Newton District Court last week.

Area residents have complained for several years about noisy trucks making nighttime and early-morning deliveries, and about sign code violations by the stores — a delicatessen, a butcher shop, a bakery, and a grocery.

Residents have also complained about accidents caused by poor visibility due to trucks and customers' cars parked in front of the stores.

According to city solicitor Melvin J. Dangel, the stores have taken certain recent actions to comply with the code, such as removing neon signs from picture windows and name signs from awnings.

Complaints against the butcher shop were temporarily dismissed due to a change in ownership.

Holiday Program At Upper Falls Church On Sun.

The All-Church Christmas Program of the First United Methodist Church of Newton Upper Falls will be held this Sunday (Dec. 12), starting with a pot luck supper at 6:30. Those attending are asked to sign the sheet at church or call Eleanor Downs (444-8676) to indicate what they will bring.

Following the supper a nativity program will be held in the sanctuary, after which Santa Claus will visit with gifts. Closing the evening will be a Christmas crafts and decorations workshop for all ages. All members and friends of the church are invited.

Next Wednesday (Dec. 15), at 6:30 p.m., a spaghetti supper will be served at the church, open to the public. This will support a youth fellowship-sponsored project to provide Christmas boxes for residents at Middlesex County House of Correction in Billerica. Reservations must be made by December 13 by calling 527-3964.

Other programs on the church calendar are: December 19, Christmas Sunday worship at 10:45 a.m. and caroling with Mary Immaculate of Lourdes Church at 6:30; and December 24, Christmas Eve candlelighting service at 7:30.

Bill Filed Directing MDC To Take Gilligan Property

Newton Representative David Mofenson has filed a bill for the 1972 session of the legislature directing the Metropolitan District Commission to take two lots owned by Thomas Gilligan and a small lot owned by the Penn Central Railroad Company.

All three lots are situated along the Charles River in Newton Lower Falls. Representative Paul Malloy, Paul Guzzi, and Weston Representative Edward Dickson have also signed the bill.

The representatives filed the bill to implement the 1968 recommendation of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council that all of the scenic stretch of the Newton river bank between the Park Road section of Route 128 and the Penn Central Railroad spur, and the Penn Central Railroad bridge from Newton to Weston, be left in its natural wooded state with the existing footpath which parallels the Charles River.

Rep. Mofenson says "the Newton 1969 Recreation-Open Space Plan also calls for land purchase of the 7.10-acre Gilligan property which screens the Riverside MBTA terminal parking lot and the Jordan Marsh Warehouse from the River and from the Weston portion of the MDC Riverside Recreation Area which the MDC wants to restore."

Since 1967 the Newton Conservation Commission has annually requested the MDC to purchase the Gilligan property. "Therefore," says Rep. Mofenson "we legislators are assured of Conservation Commission support of the bill."

"Of course," Mofenson points out, "the cost of MDC taking of the property is bound to be affected by what the Newton Board of Aldermen does this month on the Riverside Associates rezoning and permissive use petitions for construction of their proposed eleven-story office building and parking areas on the Gilligan land."

"The price tag for the MDC taking is almost certain to go up if the Aldermen approve the Riverside Associates petitions," predicts Mofenson. "The 1971 legislature approved Chapter 840, 'an act establishing a system of scenic and recreational rivers and streams in the commonwealth.'"

Chapter 840 applies to the entire length of the Charles River and permits the commissioner of natural resources, following due notice to landowners, to adopt orders restricting alteration of river and stream shorelines not to exceed one hundred yards on either side of the natural banks of such rivers and streams.

"The Gilligan land," states Rep. Mofenson, "lies within 100 yards of the Charles River shoreline and its taking by the MDC is therefore consistent with the objectives adopted by the legislature in Chapter 840."

Sacred Heart Sponsors Education Conference Forum On December 7

A group of students involved in a course in "New Alternatives in Education" at Newton College of the Sacred Heart in Newton sponsored the first education conference of its kind in Massachusetts on Dec. 7 at Newton College.

The conference focused on a theme derived from a quotation by Martin Luther King — "Where do we go from here: Chaos or Community?"

The purpose was to provide a forum for people interested and involved in education to discuss the future of education.

John Bremer, academic dean at Newton College and founder of the Parkway Program in Philadelphia — the first school without walls, was the keynote speaker. Bremer was named an Outstanding Educator this year by the Outstanding Educators Awards Program.

Dr. James J. Whalen, president of Newton College, welcomed those attending the conference. Participants included students, teachers, parents, community leaders, education administrators, representatives of education oriented groups such as Action for Children's Television, the Children's Museum, the New Perspectives School, the C.I.T.Y. School Without Walls, Newton College's Graduate Program on Open Education, the Palfrey St. School, and Concerned Black Parents for Better Education in Cambridge.

The student organizers expressed the hope that the conference marked the first of many informal meetings of this type, and provided the impetus for other student groups to take similar action. The decision to hold the conference stemmed from a class at Newton College taught by Kuumba Singers At Church Sun.

This Sunday (Dec. 12) at 3:30 p.m. the Kuumba Singers will present an evening of Black Spirituality at the Myrtle Baptist Church, 21 Curve St., West Newton.

The Kuumba Singers were organized in November of 1970 by Black students of various colleges and universities in the Boston area, who felt the need to create some vehicle for Black musical and poetic expression. From its beginning, the group has consisted of Brothers and Sisters from Harvard, Radcliffe, Northeastern, Boston College, Simmons, and MIT. Thus the choir has not only served as a source of spiritual inspiration but also as a source of unity and strength.

Miss Debora Johnson, a Newton resident and a student at Boston University School of Fine and Applied Arts, will be appearing as guest soloist in several selections.

New Service Centers Sponsors Winter Weekend Camping Prog.

A unique weekend camping program for 7-to-12-year-olds is currently being conducted by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. at the 1000-acre Robert Sever Hale Camping Reservation in Westwood.

An outgrowth of the popular and successful Summer Day Camp, the Saturday Camp is jointly sponsored by the Centers and the Boston College School of Education and is co-directed by Mr. G. Michael Gardner, Summer Day Camp

Director and Dr. John S. Dacey, Director of the Educational Psychology Division of Boston College.

The program was developed as a means of reaching youngsters who exhibit great personal potential, but who do not seem to be able to fully develop it in school. It is hoped that each enrollee will gain through the program an improved self-concept, a deepened interest in discovering and improving his environment, an improved ability to interact with children whose social, ethnic, racial, and religious backgrounds are different from his own, and the sense that life can be a pleasant, happy, and frequently joyful experience.

Staff, under the supervision of Dr. Dacey and Mr. Gardner, are graduate and undergraduate students enrolled in the Boston College School of Education. All volunteers, these involved and creative collegians have been giving up their Friday nights and Saturdays for the opportunity of working with youngsters in an other-than-classroom setting.

In commenting on the staff Mr. Gardner stated: "It is difficult for me to articulate my feelings concerning this dedicated group. They are truly an outstanding selection of individuals. Each is a unique, vital, creative, and involved person. They bring such qualities of warmth and understanding as well as enthusiasm to the program that an extremely positive experience for all concerned is inevitable."

Going on to explain the origins of the Saturday Camp, Mr. Gardner said "Our Summer Day Camp this year utilized B.C. students enrolled in the summer school. Working as counselors at the camp, they met at the end of each day for a class in educational psychology. These classes (under the direction of Dr. Dacey) were largely responsible for the overall quality of the program."

The summer program having proved so successful and enjoyable, we determined to attempt a similar winter program. As I mentioned earlier, I am extremely impressed with the individuals involved."

According to Mr. Gardner, activities at the camp have been varied with nature hikes, athletics, games, crafts projects, sewing and other offerings. Some of the campers have even been learning techniques of mountain climbing. Others have been involved with working on the lodge (where most indoor activities occur) in an attempt to create an aesthetically pleasing environment.

With the coming of the colder months such things as dramatics, skating, ice fishing and other survival related activities are being planned. In all cases youngsters are encouraged to play an important role in the planning and selection of activities.

"I am rather proud of what we're doing out here," continued Mr. Gardner, who has been with the Newton Community Service Centers since 1968. "My one regret is that we are unable to pay this outstanding staff even token salaries. The fees we charge participants are spent on program items with nothing left over to pay for the valuable services rendered."

"Of course we have investigated sources of funding, but with no real success," he went on. "Any financial assistance (tax deductible) would be greatly appreciated and extremely helpful. These people really ought to be paid for the valuable and meaningful work they are doing."

The Saturday Camp, which began in October and is slated to run through May, has an enrollment of 40 youngsters aged seven through twelve. It is the newest activity offered by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. of 429 Cherry Street in West Newton.

City Headstart Needs Workers

Opportunity knocks at Newton Headstart for volunteer assistance with many aspects of the program according to Mrs. Lester Steinberg, Coordinator for Volunteers. Of primary need at this time is for some classroom help for Fridays.

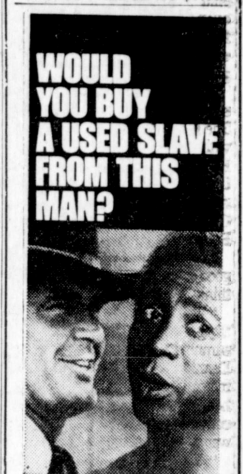

There is no experience necessary, only an interest in pre-school children, a Friday morning commitment of time, and a desire to learn and participate as a member of the Newton Headstart staff family.

In addition to the volunteer opportunities, the federally subsidized program is also in the process of locating a paid cook. This task involves meal planning, ordering, and preparation Monday through Friday for 30 youngsters daily. Inquiries relative to this position should be made to Mrs. Kitty Eames at 527-6689.

Chief Perkins Lists Fire Safety Points

As we again approach the season of Christmas, Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr. of the Newton Fire Department wishes to bring the following Safety Points to the attention of all citizens of the City so that we may all have a very "Safe and Merry Christmas":

Keep Christmas "Merry" by keeping fire out of holiday activities! Christmas trees, lighted candles, arrangements of evergreens — traditional decorative touches which spread the holiday mood — can also spread the horror of fire unless great care is taken.

warns the National Fire Protection Association. Here are some important points to follow in keeping fire safety high on the list of things to remember this Yuletide.

THE TREE — Select a firm, fresh one, and put it at once in a cool place with its base in water. Before setting it up, cut about an inch off the base to help the tree absorb water. Be sure the water level stays above the cut — check it daily.

Locate the tree away from heat and where it won't block exits. Take it down as soon as possible after Christmas Day — the more it dries out, the more of a hazard it becomes. Don't rely on do-it-yourself flameproofing treatments.

If you select an artificial tree of the plastic type, check labels before buying tree to make sure your tree is on slow-burning materials.

LIGHTING — Never use lighted candles on a tree or near any evergreen decorations. Check sets of electric lights closely, for worn insulation, broken plugs, loose bulb sockets, and use only set with Underwriters' Laboratories (UL) or Canadian Standards Association (CASA) label. Use extension cords sparingly. Never hang sets of lights on a metallic artificial tree. To avoid possible shock hazard, use only indirect spot lighting on such a tree, which should carry the UL label if it has a built-in electrical system.

Turn off all indoor tree and decorative lighting when leaving the house or retiring for the night. Outdoor lighting needs special equipment.

DECORATIONS — Use materials which are non-combustible, such as glass and asbestos or which are flame-retardant. Keep natural evergreens and polystyrene foam decorations — which burn readily — away from lighted candles and other open flames.

Be sure holiday costumes and masks, such as Santa suits and whisks and children's pageant outfits are fire retardant.

WRAPPINGS — Pick them up while opening gifts and put into covered trash containers. Never burn wrappings or certons (or evergreens, either) in the fireplace — they may flare up dangerously.

GIFTS — For safety's sake, electric toys should carry UL or CSA label. Avoid pyroxylin plastic toys and dolls. And remember that toys operated by gasoline, alcohol or kerosene are especially dangerous in children's hands.

Parents, especially, are urged to keep these precautions in mind as the Christmas season nears.

Keep children from playing under or too close to the Christmas tree. Be especially careful with matches and smoking materials. Review the family's home escape plan for quick exit in case of a fire emergency.

Never leave children alone without proper supervision, even when tempted to do so under the pressure of last-minute shopping and errands.

McDonnell, Rosenblum Question Athletics Plan

Alderman Joseph McDonnell has voiced criticism of a $14 million plan for athletic and lacrosse, relocating of the facilities at the site of the new varsity baseball diamond, and Newton High School.

The plans, unveiled by architect Albert Bohner at an aldermanic hearing last week, would involve tearing down Building 3 to make room for parking, and synthetic playing fields. McDonnell contends that the plan is a waste of money.

The plans were criticized by Ward 2 School Committee member Eleanor S. Rosenblum as not providing enough athletic fields for the girls' program.

The plans, prepared by the firm of Willoughby Marshall, would include additional tennis courts, "flexible fields" to be used for soccer, field hockey, and improvements to the stadium and the track.

Suggested options include lights for football, softball, baseball, and tennis, additional Building 3 to make room for parking, and synthetic playing fields. McDonnell contends that the plan is a waste of money.

PAKISTANI COMMANDERS ASK FOR CEASE-FIRE
PAKISTANI COMMANDERS in East Pakistan asked India for a cease-fire Wednesday as Indian troops and tanks drove to nearly a mile from the besieged eastern capital of Dacca. India called a bombing halt and gave the Pakistanis until 9 p.m. Thursday (10:30 p.m. EST Wednesday) for a complete surrender. A dispatch from Dacca reported India and Pakistan did not seem to be too far apart on terms for stopping the fight in East Pakistan. India said it had set up a "hot line" radio link with the East Pakistan commander to facilitate his reply to Indian terms. At the United Nations, Pakistan's foreign minister walked out of a Security Council meeting Thursday afternoon, bitterly denouncing the world body as a "fraud and a farce" and declaring it would have no more to do with the council's discussion of the Indo-Pakistani war. Foreign Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto charged the United Nations was delaying action on the war until India could capture Dacca—and perhaps all of East Pakistan. Bhutto said the Security Council was filibustering while "my country and people are dying." Bhutto said there was hand-to-hand fighting in Dacca and "thousands are being killed" while the Security Council debated futilely. The Pakistani bid for a cease-fire was disclosed by an Indian government spokesman who said a message from the military commanders in Dacca had been received through the U.S. Embassy in New Delhi. The New Delhi spokesman said India accepted the Pakistani request for a cease-fire and dispatched a message—again through the American Embassy—containing terms of surrender.

COMMUNISTS CUT OFF 3 BRIGADES OF CAMBODIAN TROOPS
COMMUNIST forces firing massive mortar and rocket barrages have cut off an estimated three brigades of Cambodian troops at the forward position of Taing Kauk 50 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, military spokesmen reported in Phnom Penh Wednesday. "The situation is very serious," one spokesman said. Thousands of civilian refugees were reported fleeing southward. In Phnom Penh, high command sources said Premier Lon Nol moved to shore up his deteriorating political position by promoting eight key colonels to brigadier general rank. Lon Nol has been under sharp criticism recently from army officers for ordering withdrawals and for other direct and indirect intervention in day-to-day military operations, according to U.S. sources. They said there had been talk of a new political crisis and a possible cabinet reshuffle. About 50 miles to the east, South Vietnamese paratroopers and tanks moved into the 100-mile square Chup plantation in force early Wednesday from the south and east in an attempt to throw back North Vietnamese soldiers believed hidden inside against the Mekong River to the west. An estimated 6,000 South Vietnamese and 4,000 Cambodian regulars were taking part in the operation. Allied intelligence estimated as many as 9,000 North Vietnamese troops were in the area. There were no reports of major fighting in South Vietnam itself.

DRINAN REVEALS PLANS FOR TOUR OF PRISONS
REP. ROBERT F. DRINAN, D-Mass., announced Wednesday in Washington members of a House subcommittee will tour three Massachusetts correctional facilities this week as part of an investigation into the nation's prison systems. Drinan said a special panel of a judiciary subcommittee would make the tour Friday and also hold a public hearing in Boston Saturday. Drinan is serving as acting chairman of the panel. He hopes to "determine the problems faced by state institutions, and by the prisoners incarcerated in them." The subcommittee members planned to visit the Massachusetts correctional institutions in South Walpole and Norfolk, and the Brooke Halfway House in Boston. Among those scheduled to testify Saturday are: Joseph Higgins, acting commissioner of the state Department of Corrections; Jerome G. Miller, commissioner of the state Department of Youth Services, and James A. Magan, president of the Massachusetts Correction Employees Union.

CONGRESS STARTS TO END BARRIERS TO ADJOURNMENT
CONGRESS began eliminating the final barriers to adjournment of the first session of the 92nd Congress Wednesday. Only mass absenteeism and the threat of a filibuster against foreign aid appeared to stand in the way. There was no clear target day for Congress to go home for the holidays. It hinged on a small band of senators and their still indefinite plans to thwart funds for foreign aid. The House was geared to give routine approval to a temporary foreign aid appropriation which would fund the program until March 15 at an annual rate of $2.9 billion. Chairman Allen J. Elender, D-La., of the Senate Appropriations Committee predicted that the Senate would pass its version of the legislation Wednesday night. It would provide for about $450 million less than the House. Attendance, which could become critical if senators demanded roll call votes, was dipping sharply.

FEDERAL JUDGE INDICTED BY U.S. GRAND JURY
FEDERAL APPEALS Court Judge Otto Kerner, former Illinois governor and chairman of President Johnson's riot commission, was indicted by a federal grand jury in Chicago Wednesday on charges of bribery, mail fraud, tax evasion, perjury and conspiracy in a race track stock scandal. Three former Illinois state officials who served in Kerner's administration in Springfield and the personal secretary of one of the men also were indicted. Kerner, 63, is only the fourth federal appeals judge in history to be indicted by a federal grand jury. He was named to the 7th U.S. circuit court of appeals by Johnson on April 22, 1968. The indictments were announced in Washington by Attorney General John M. Mitchell and in Chicago by U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson, newly appointed to the post by President Nixon.

Opponent of the proposed $8 million Riverside Office Park were talking about a taxpayers' suit as the Aldermanic Land Use Committee voted 5-2 Tuesday night to grant a zoning change to the property bordering the Charles River at the Grover St. intersection of Rte. 128.

If not approved by Dec. 20, the petition for a zone

Who Can Defeat Pres. Nixon? Wisconsin Pols Say Nobody

The newsmen, the radio broadcasters, the talented telecasters and the just plain working stiffs we chatted with across Wisconsin were mostly interested in the approaching Green Bay Packer football game in Lambeau Stadium, the 10-inch snow storm and the cold weather.

You conceded that it wasn't at all cold unless you wanted to get involved in a long-winded unwinnable argument.

enough to fit him? He wouldn't look right in a minirobe."

He cautioned the 700 to 800 formally attired dinner guests, "I wouldn't want to lead Monte on, and I wouldn't want to lead you on."

"He opened the door - and then he slammed it shut" commented one long-time Republican after the speech.

An aide to the Governor denied Tuesday that the remark implied that no judgeship was in store for Basbas.

"If anything," said the aide, "the word was taken loud and clear that Mayor Basbas is an excellent candidate, and while there was no commitment, he is certainly under consideration."

Declaring that Basbas has had a "long and continuing relationship with the people," Sargent stated, "I hope I can help him in this respect."

To Mayor-elect Theodore D. Mann, Sargent said, "Monte is a big man with big shoes. Ted, you're going to have to fill those shoes."

Information on Sargent's speech was relayed to the press by the Mayor's assistant for public relations David L. Lurensky, who asserted that due to a series of oversights, the press was not notified of Sargent's visit until after the Governor had gone.

Other tributes to Basbas came from Mayor-elect Mann and from Wendell R. Bauckman, president of the Board of Aldermen. Bauckman, who said that as president of the Board of Aldermen, he was one of the men responsible some 20 years ago for selecting Basbas to fill the post of city clerk, declared that Basbas had "fulfilled all expectations," and had "impressed" and "endeared himself" to the citizens of Newton.

Mann, pointing out that Basbas had been elected president first of the City Clerks' Association and then of the Mayor's Association, said, "Monte always rose to the top, and he always will."

Retiring Alderman Adelaide R. Ball presented a gift to Mrs. Audrey Basbas, the Mayor's wife.

Benjamin F. Shattuck, speaking on "The Basbas Years," asserted that Basbas had "confronted more problems than any other mayor," despite "the nit-picking of proliferating pressure groups".

In an allusion to a current dispute over landtaking for a proposed addition to the Underwood School, Shattuck said, "During Monte's administration, there was more new school building than during any of the previous administrations. The chairman of the School Committee congratulated him on his record of attendance at School Committee meetings. Yet the other day I heard a young mother complain that he was spoiling plans for the school by refusing to take three houses by eminent domain. In these days, when two people constitute a pressure group, the mayor can't win. He must call the shots as he sees them."

Shattuck also praised Basbas for efforts both in conservation and promotion of developments such as Gateway Center.

William Glovsky, in a rhymed tribute, declared, "Monte is one who knows how to use power. He could never sit in an ivory tower."

While the band played "For he's a jolly good fellow," Dr. Burton D. Levine, Dinner Chairman, presented Basbas with the keys to a 1972 Buick Electra.

In his reply, Basbas called himself "a carpet-bagger from New Hampshire" and said that he was "pleased that you accepted me." Announcing that he did not intend to leave Newton after stepping down from the Mayor's post, Basbas expressed thanks to the Aldermen and City Department Heads and to all city employees, "from the man in the corner office to the little fellow who picks up debris in Newtonville Square. You made me look good," he said.

He praised the "village pride." "Each little group, interested in their section, has maintained this city," Basbas said.

The benediction was given by Rabbi Murray Rothman and the invocation by the Rev. W. Seavey Joyce, president of Boston College. Rothman, who commented that he had shared "the rubber chicken circuit" as Basbas sometimes called speaking engagements, with Basbas for 18 years, praised the Mayor's "buoyancy," and said he had "the quality of being both the servant of the people and their leader."

The head table was a panorama in tuxedo black, broken only by the bright dresses of Basbas' wife and his daughter Audrey Ann. Also seated at the head table were Basbas' sons, John T. and Monte G. Basbas, Jr., Shattuck, Bauckman, Glovsky, Mann, Rabbi Rothman, Rev. Joyce, Dr. Levine and Master of Ceremonies Randall W. Weeks, Executive Director of the Boston University Law School Alumni Association, of which Basbas is an active member.

Other members of the head table included former Newton mayors Donald S. Gibbs and Howard Whitmore, Jr., Secretary of State John F. X. Davoren, State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane, Governor's Councilor Herbert L. Connolly, and Judges Franklin N. Flachsen, Joseph S. Mitchell and Haskell C. Freedman.

Also in that long black line at the head table were the Mayor's close friend Philip L. Lowe, Attleboro Mayor Thomas Piggott, president of the Mayor's Association, J. Willard Marriott, John J. Nyhan, bank executive, News Tribune editor Thomas J. Murphy, and Peabody Mayor Byron Matthews, president-elect of the Massachusetts Mayor's Association.

Guests included Aldermen and other city officials, members of the American Legion, the police and fire departments, and many others.

Among women at the dinner long gowns predominated.

Hostesses were: Mrs. Robert L. Tennant, wife of the alderman and Miss Charlotte Thornbury, Co-Chairmen; Miss Adelaide B. Ball, Mrs. J. Philip Berquist, wife of the clerk of the Assessors, Mrs. Harold Burg, Mrs. Morgan S. Campbell, Mrs. Guido Cetroni, Mrs. Elliot K. Cohen, wife of the alderman.

Also, Mrs. Dino DiCarlo, Mrs. Mario DiCarlo, Mrs.

Arrangements were made by a Dinner Committee made up of the following: Haskell C. Freedman, General Chairman, James F. Bergantino, Paul J. Burke, Guido Cetroni, Dino DiCarlo, Mario DiCarlo, Basbas' campaign manager and former Redevelopment Authority Chairman, Mr. and Mrs. Rubin Dragoff, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard H. Dresner, I. Freedman was general chairman of the event.

A gigantic white-tiered "Presentation Cake" was made by Master Chef Ernest J. Montilio.

Temple's "Fiddler" Plays Before Capacity Crowds

Fiddler On The Roof, presented Dec. 4 and 5 by the Temple Mishkan Tefila Forum and directed by Harriet Wilson of Newton, played to a capacity audience. The cast, all local residents, immersed themselves in the story.

Harvey Silverman of Newton, in an interview on the Gus Saunders show Dec. 2nd, remarked that he really could identify with Tevya The Dairyman.

Micki Banner, of Brookline, in her debut as "Golda" infected the audience with her warmth and humor.

Fine performances were turned in by Selma Stone, Barbara Stone, Marilyn Stein, Avis Pritzker, Wendy Silverman, Karen Nyman, Jill Paul, Beth Farber, Stan Robbins, Dan Paul, Mira Birnbaum, Ralph Aserkoff, Ronald Pritsker, Bill Stein, Jean Paul Weinstein, Harmon Stone, Irving Lemack, Jon Stone, Gerald Stepakoff, Phil Nyman, Alan Michelson, Irwin Stone, and Paul Rosenthal, and by the chorus.

The production staff was headed by chairmen Phil and Sandy Nyman of Newton.

present wave of criticism of denominational executives have served as presidents, except for the presidency of the only layman, Mr. Richard R. Higgins of Dedham. He served from 1967-1969. Dr. Bartlett served during the 1960's as president of Colgate Rochester Divinity School in Rochester, New York. He was instrumental in the formation of the Rochester Center for Theological Studies, a close affiliation of four theological institutions, two Baptist, one Episcopal, and one Roman Catholic.

country's foremost preachers, Dr. Bartlett delivered the famous Lyman Beecher Lectures at Yale in 1961.

He served as minister of churches in Syracuse, New York, Columbia, Missouri, Evanston, Illinois and Los Angeles. During the 25-year period he was heard regularly on radio.

In his acceptance speech, Dr. Bartlett told the Annual Assembly that he saw the churches as "the way God is working to bring new life to the church."

The 1971 Annual Assembly of the Council reflected a growing concern for the future of the ministry of local congregations.

In two major addresses, the Rev. Leroy S. Rouser, professor of Philosophical Theology at Boston University School of Theology, analyzed the plight of churches in a changing culture and urged churches to lay the claim on modern man.

"It is time," Dr. Rouser claimed, "to say 'enough' to the dance around the golden calf of modernity. The church is a humanizing community because the gospel is a response to the human problem."

He said that instead of accenting the question, "What has modern man to say to the church," the question should be, "What has the church to say to modern man?"

Eight two-hour workshops dealt with the theme of the Assembly, "The Church as a Humanizing Community." The workshops were on Delivery of Health Services, the New Spirituality, Prisons and Prisoners in Massachusetts, the Black Ecumenical Commission, the Spanish Community, Drama and Liturgy, Women in the Church, and Humanizing Education.

Other officers elected include as vice-presidents the Rev. Harry Hoehler, Minister, First Parish Church, Weston; Mrs. Clarencu Dauber, former president of Church Women United, Boston; and Mrs. Erna Ballantine, Roxbury. Miss Dr. Massimo is the team psychologist for the U.S. National Gymnastic team, a U.S. mens' official, and chief psychologist of the Newton schools. Miss Jane Covitch, former Newtonite, is a National Women's coach, and medical researcher. Mr. Thomas Steeves is a gymnastic coach at Newton South High School, and is a Massachusetts state gymnastic official.

Demonstrating on the girl's equipment, uneven parallel bars, balance beam, and tumbling was Miss Lisa Cain, an Olympic candidate who is also first in the nation in tumbling. Miss Cain recently passed through the first Olympic trials and is rated 15th nationally. Miss Gail McCarthy, a senior at Newton High, and a former Angier student, performed on the uneven

Reception To Mayor-Elect Jan. 2 at 8

Invitations to the Inaugural Reception in honor of Mayor-elect Theodore D. Mann have been sent to residents throughout Newton, it was reported today.

The reception is being held at 8 p.m. Sunday evening, January 2 at the Marriott Motor Hotel and is open to the public.

An aside noted difficulty of sending out so many invitations and the possibility of inadvertent errors and omissions.

Those who have not yet received invitations and wish to attend the reception are urged to call the Inaugural Reception Committee at 969-4715.

Formal Inaugural Exercises will be held at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, January 1, at Newton City Hall, the day before the reception at the Marriott Motor Hotel. These are open to the public also.

Yvonne Powell of Boston was elected secretary, Mr. Albert O. Wilson of Lexington, treasurer, and Mr. Louis G. Perry of Newton, chairman of Finance.

The Council also elected the Rev. Robert Quinn, C.S.P., as the first Roman Catholic member of the Board. Other board members elected were Mrs. Walter A. Bostick of Worcester, Miss Barbara West and Mrs. Stanley Clark, both of Wellesley.

The Assembly approved a budget of $230,081 for 1972, a figure $32,017 below 1971.

The Massachusetts Council of Churches is the major cooperative agency of Protestant denominations in the Commonwealth. Fifteen denominational bodies have membership in the council.

Holiday Burglary Warning Given By Chief of Police

Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department issued a holiday warning to Newton citizens.

The Chief stated, "It is sad that as we approach the holidays, we must increase our vigilance for burglars, handbag snatchers, pickpockets, car thieves, and drinking drivers." He went on, "Each year we receive reports of houses being broken into while people are out shopping, or cars broken into and Christmas gifts stolen, or we take victims of drunken drivers to hospitals. I would suggest extra thought on the part of each citizen to protect himself, his family and property, and perhaps by following these simple rules, we might minimize the problem this year."

1. Have a light burning at home if you shop evenings; notify neighbors, a good neighbor is the best form of protection.

2. Lock all gifts in the trunk of the car rather than the back seat where they are highly visible and an invitation to a possible thief.

3. When traveling on buses, ladies should take a firm grip on their pocketbooks and avoid using bags with long or shoulder straps that might be an invitation to an agile thief.

4. Carry pocketbooks with a hand on the clasp to discourage pick-pockets.

5. Carry only necessary amount of money and a minimum of personal papers, keys, etc., in the event a bag is taken.

6. Drive carefully and defensively at all times and in particular where there may be holiday parties.

The Chief went on to state that with the excitement generated by the holidays, many of us drop our guard, and a happy holiday becomes one remembered by loss. Vigilance could guarantee a happy holiday.

A Wonderful Gift

The Christmas-New Year holiday season is faced with a degree of misgiving by the agency responsible for providing our hospitals with supplies of blood—those involved in the Massachusetts Red Cross Blood Program.

Experience over the years shows that while the frequency of accidents go up, blood donations go down.

The increase in accidents is understandable. There are more cars on the road during every holiday period. Drivers are tired. Some of them operate under the influence of liquor. For many time is short—there are so many things to do and there just doesn't seem to be enough time to do them all—one has to hurry from place to place.

Massachusetts Hospitals use close to 1,000 pints of blood daily. The Red Cross finds daily collections normally keep the supply fairly constant. However, on any given day in December statewide collections are slightly more than half the needed blood donations.

Why? The answer again is understandable. People are busy. People are in a rush. The Red Cross depends for its maintenance of blood supplies on about five percent of the State's population of around 5,700,000. When, regardless of the reason, less than five percent do not donate, the general blood supply goes down.

Last year at Christmas-New Year time on the calendar, the supply became critically low and one emergency appeal followed another.

Doctors, nurses and technicians can't help patients needing blood without the assistance of the voluntary donor.

In this time of giving no gift is more important than the gift of life. Those who take time out of a crowded schedule in the days immediately ahead, to give their blood will know the deep satisfaction that goes with the realization — "I did something really worthwhile for some one."

Fishing Rights

It's no longer breath-taking, pulse-quickenening news when an American shrimp trawler finds itself under the bared guns of an Ecuadorian naval ship and pre-emptorily ordered to the nearest port in that country.

A seizure has become pretty routine. Once in port, the captain of the trawler is served some papers, his catch is confiscated and as soon as the routine fine is paid by the United States government, the captain and his crew are free to head back to their home port and, if they elect to do so, ponder the strange vagaries of international law.

It's good business for Ecuador and Brazil, Chile, Peru, Argentina, Panama, Uruguay, Nicaragua and El Salvador, who've begun to dabble in the same game to greater or lesser degrees.

Key to the popularity of the practice is the quick and ready source of American dollars. Not to be sneered at at by our good South American friends is the economic value of the free catches which must pay for the overhead cost of the operation of the little navy boats with guns on their decks.

Fidel Castro undoubtedly counts heavily on quick American dollars to maintain his airport in Havana on the revenue brought in by hi-jacked American planes. No doubt Fidel considers Cuban fees for use of the airport, even though it's involuntary, and the hotel and food costs exacted from crews and passengers are quite reasonable.

Now that the Russians have discovered the North Atlantic fishing grounds, once the official domain of New England and Canadian fishermen, folks in this part of the country can appreciate what those on the West Coast, particularly Californians, have been experiencing off Ecuador for 20 years.

The South American problem revolves around the 200-mile sea control pattern set up by Ecuador and Chile in the '50s.

That, of course, just doesn't conform with our own long-held conception of a 12-mile limit.

In Stockholm in 1973, sea-faring nations of the world will hold a Law of the Seas Conference. Mr. Castro's plane-hi-jacking business will still be going full tilt at the time. He won't be there. However, here in New England, there'll be a lot of folks who'll be sincerely hoping a common-sense equitable, enforceable international fishing code comes out of that conference.

Native Residents Paris—about one-half the residents of Paris were born and reared in this city.	Cooking Fuel Washington—About two-thirds of the human race still uses wood as a cooking fuel.
Running Water Washington—Only 42 percent of the nation's farm homes has running water.	Cavern Visitors Santa Fe—More than one-half million persons visit Carlsbad caverns each year.

LETTERS

"Leash Law" Letter Of Police Chief Answered

Dear Editor:

A couple of comments, an apology, and a suggestion in response to Police Chief Quinn's response to my recent comments on the Newton leash law.

Agreed: one of the contributing factors to continued attacks on our dogs has been the fact that, until the last incident, we did not make any reports to the police.

The rash of sympathetic phone calls after you published our letter on November 18th indicates that others in our neighborhood have gone through the same thing we have - and, for the same reason, did not report the incidents.

The reason: Good Neighborliness. Obviously an error in judgment, and one that will not be propagated.

If nothing else is accomplished by this exchange of letters other than to convince Newtonites to report incidents, as suggested by our police department, we will have taken a giant step forward.

Police Chief Quinn's investigating officer has a very retentive memory (he was quite cooperative and sympathetic) - but, in reporting that we "accepted $45 from the attacking dog's owner - and then . . . refrained from notifying this department" one might assume that we accepted "a payoff." The fact is that the owner reimbursed us for the vet bill - and we did not report the incident in response to his "plea."

The apology is for the use of the word "apathy." It was not referring to the Animal Control Department, but to the fact that the officer on duty that night would not accept the details and asked us to call the following day.

My suggestion: The thought veterinarians who treat dog owners (like myself) who feel they just can't report a neighbor's animal.

Cordially,
Roy M. Green

There was relatively little interest in the recent baseball trade between the Boston Red Sox and the Milwaukee Brewers. Milwaukee is bigger than Boston populationwise, in case you ever want to show how much you know.

But to show what genial hosts they are, the Wisconsinites conceded that Greater Boston is bigger than Greater Milwaukee. (We never did meet anyone who knew just how big Milwaukee actually is.

There was a very mild burst of interest in the baseball trade among one group. "That George Scott we got from you guys is one of the greatest fielding first basemen in the history of the game," said one baseball-minded member of a faction in Green Bay.

"That's probably why we're going to play him at third base."

"He can't hit a high inside curve ball either."

It took quite a bit of strenuous pulling and hauling to get the conversation around to politics and next year's Presidential election.

One of the most important Presidential primaries in the United States next year will be held in Wisconsin early in April. But you could never tell it from anyone you talked with in Milwaukee.

Here is a consensus of the sentiment we found in Wisconsin which is regarded as a relatively liberal state. (The hard hats don't disagree very much from the long-haired.)

These are not necessarily our opinions. But they do represent a computer-like computation of the answers we asked. Here we go:

President Nixon probably is unbeatable in next year's Presidential election.

Ted Kennedy is probably the strongest candidate the Democrats could back against President Nixon. But Nixon would defeat Ted on the basis of the sentiment in the Mid West and the South. That's strictly theoretical because Ted will not run.

The fight in the Democratic Presidential Primary in Wisconsin will be between Senator Muskie and former Vice President Hubert Humphrey.

When Senator Tunney endorsed Senator Muskie, it was a sure sign that Ted will not run for President.

If Senator Muskie wins in some primaries and loses in others, there will be a big attempt to draft Ted Kennedy. It almost certainly will not get anywhere.

Right now it looks as if Hubert Humphrey is about as strong as Senator Muskie in the Middle West. If they break about even, you can forget them both.

Eugene McCarthy is a joke. He hasn't even got an issue this time. Senator George McGovern looks and acts like someone's kind uncle. With Ted Kennedy watching the fight as a spectator, it's difficult to find one person around whom the Democrats could rally.

Senator Muskie will come out of the first-in-the-nation Presidential primary of New Hampshire the victor. He's now the front runner.

Then comes Florida. If Governor George Wallace of Alabama runs and wins, it means nothing. Wallace isn't going anywhere.

Next is Wisconsin. If Muskie wins, he probably will go on to get the convention endorsement. If shopworn Hubert Humphrey upsets Muskie, the latter will be carried out feet first and the Democrats will try to draft Ted Kennedy.

This will be the moment for which New York City Mayor John Lindsay has been waiting. Bartender, another bourbon and tap water, and take it easy on the tap water. Lindsay will be even weaker in Wisconsin than he is in New York.

No Time For A Tragedy!

Fences Need Rebuilding If Sarge Really Plans To Run

Governor Francis W. Sargent apparently has not yet learned one of the basic rules of politics. That is to let someone else be the buffer between himself and the general public when something unpopular but economically necessary must be done at the Logan airport.

Persons who travel around the country a great deal and use other airports of major cities come to realize that Edward King, the executive director of Massport has done a good job.

He knows airports and he knows what must be done. He has tried to do those things and to spare other persons the blame for doing them.

John Larkin Thompson, a staunch supporter of Governor Sargent has been named by the Governor to serve as chairman of Port Authority which has jurisdiction over both the Airport and the Port of Boston.

hen gradually it became apparent that Governor Sargent instead of putting on an act in his quarrels with Chairman Thompson and Director King was actually playing for real.

He wanted to put the airport and the port under the secretary in his cabinet. What the M.I.T. professor actually knew about either the port or the airport wasn't clear.

Sarge in a surprise move demanded the resignation of Thompson as chairman of the Port Authority but requested that Thompson continue as a member. It appeared that he desired to place his secretary of transportation in as chairman.

At about this time overnorn Sargent disclosed that he intended to run for re-election to another term in 1974.

No man in modern time has served 100 consecutive years as Governor of Massachusetts, and it would be quite a stunt for Mr. Sargent.

But none of overnorn Sargent's brain trusters had the presence of mind to remind him that John Larkin Thompson had been a very effective supporter in the 1970 campaign campaign and that he undoubtedly would be equally in the 1974 contest.

It's an unfortunate situation. One of these days Thompson will decide that he has stood enough from Sargent and will walk off the job. When that happens, Sargent will lose a department head who is far more capable than some of the so-called cabinet members he has chosen.

If Governor Sargent really is serious about running for another term in 1974, he would do well to start rebuilding some of his political fences which show decided signs of crumbling.

DOLLARS AND SENSE

GEORGE T. McLAUGHLIN
President

Sending a daughter or son off to college in the very near future? . . . Do you have any idea of the cost to you? . . .

Are you planning to apply to your child's college for financial assistance? . . . Each college determines the amount parents should pay themselves by a basic chart which consists of a financial breakdown for no-problem families, based on gross income and number of dependents . . . For example: if you have two children and your gross income is $10,000, you'd be expected to pay $1,080 toward your child's tuition and expenses . . . One child at the same income means a payment of $1,690 . . . A two-child family with an income of $8,000 would be expected to pay only $630, while a one-child family grossing $12,000 should contribute $2,420 . . .

Pay yourself first. Put your savings to work at the NEWTON SOUTH CO-OPERATIVE BANK. Inquire about our systematic savings plan at 5 1/4% interest. Our paid-up shares in $200 increments—earn 5 1/2%. NEWTON SOUTH CO-OPERATIVE BANK, Newton Highlands and Newton Centre, both convenient locations open 'till 3 pm daily. "Your friendly bank with the co-operative bankers."

The proposed plan calls for a fourth weighted group which would be based on 12 points for an A. The reasoning behind the proposed change is that since two points separate Curriculums I and II, the same should apply to Advanced Placement courses.

CURRICULUM REVIEW
A structure for students and teachers to review and possibly change curriculum is now in its second year. Each department has organized a curriculum review board under the guidance of an overall board. The departmental boards vary greatly—from science where membership is limited and selective to English where various committees are formed as problems arise.

Headlights and Highlights From Newton South High

BY JANICE E. KAPLAN

The enthusiasm surrounding Newton South's Year of the Greek has been heightened by several very exciting activities. A major upcoming highlight will be the presentation of the musical "Zorba". In addition, plans for the April vacation trip to Greece are now well underway.

"Zorba" is a major undertaking for the Theatre Arts department as it involves a large cast and numerous dances and songs. The play centers on the enthusiastic and extraordinary Alexis Zorba. It is liberally sprinkled with Zorba's wild dances and his loves: wine, women and song! Richard Levine will play the title role.

Nikos is Zorba's boss and companion. He loves the Widow—a woman living alone and afraid to love. Hortense is Zorba's lover. She is a Frenchwoman who lives in Crete. The leader, Lynnie Greene, conducts and supervises the action.

Nanci Glass has been selected to be Hortense. Lewis Blair will play the part of Nikos with Suzanne Peck as the Widow.

The spring trip to Greece is slated for April 14—April 22. The trip will cost approximately $350. All members of the Newton South community are invited—until the plane is full!

CLASS RANK
The belief that Honors classes at Newton South are not being given fair recognition was the basis for a proposed change in the rank-in-class system. The Constitutional Review Committee, under the chairmanship of Harvey Kaufman, has suggested a higher point value for all honors and advanced placement courses.

Class rank is based on a cumulative average of every course in which a student receives a letter grade. Weighted averages are assigned to courses by curriculum. An A grade in an Honors course is worth 11 points, a B 9 points, and so forth. Grades in Curriculum I courses are rated one point lower (an A is 10 points, etc.) while Curriculum II falls two points behind (an A being 8 points, a B is 6 points and so forth).

Rank-in-class is used primarily as a criterion for college admissions. The proposed plan calls for a fourth weighted group which would be based on 12 points for an A. The reasoning behind the proposed change is that since two points separate Curriculums I and II, the same should apply to Advanced Placement courses.

The Overall Board will most likely consider the class-rank proposal. Nevertheless, while the proposal is receiving much attention, its ultimate acceptance or defeat will affect very few students because of current administrative policies. Newton South reports a student's class rank only by decile. Actual grade point averages are not revealed. The inadequacy of this policy is demonstrated by the fact that the present cut off for the top decile is about 8.7 while some students have averages of approximately 10.5. Perhaps the entire class-rank system will be appraised by the Curriculum Review Boards.

NEW
Newton elementary school students are once again being given the opportunity to participate in a creative curriculum enrichment through Newton Educational Workshop.

Stephanie Schwam, director of the program, expects well over one hundred fifty grade school students to participate. The fourth, fifth, and sixth graders come from the Angier, Hyde, Beethoven, and Emerson schools.

All courses in NEW are taught by Newton South students. Classes meet on Saturday mornings, and the courses offered are many and varied. They range from poetry, flute, and drama to ESP, jug band, and Cosmic Council. The Council is a mini United Nations where students create imaginary civilizations and discuss universal problems.

Newton Educational Workshop was initiated in 1968. It has boasted a highly successful and creative program since its inception.

NEW Saturday morning classes will begin shortly.

Burlington Mall To Send Holiday Messages To GI's

Holiday messages will be transmitted by voice and teletype to many American servicemen abroad through the courtesy of Air Force Mars (Military Affiliate Radio System) from the Burlington Mall all day Saturday, December 18th from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

During this time "Mars Radiogram Messages" will be sent to armed forces personnel from the Burlington Mall to such distances as Vietnam, Europe, Africa, Antarctica and wherever our forces are located.

Nor will distance matter. Only those A.P.O.'s on active duty in combat zones, who cannot be reached directly by wire, will, unfortunately, miss out on this gigantic communications effort.

Messages will be sent in 25 words, with the service person's name, rank, serial number, military unit, and A.P.O. or F.P.O., and signed by the name and address of the sender. Within minutes these messages will start on their way to their destinations. The sender will actually be able to see and hear his message begin its journey around the globe.

Licensed Ham Radiomen (all volunteers connected with the Air Force Mars Program) will be on deck to transmit the best greetings from friends and Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sateen gown featuring the Juliet look with a semi-bell silhouette, Juliet sleeves, and a ruffled neckline. A combination of Alencon and Venice lace accented the bodice and sleeves and edged the skirt hemline and detachable chapel train. Her matching, beaded headpiece held in place an illusion veil, and carried a bouquet of white flowers. As maid of honor, Miss Isabel Scichilone of Needham, sister of the bride, wore a gown which had a sapphire blue velvet bodice with a set-in short velvet sleeves extending into sheer sleeves cuffed in velvet. Co-ordinated color braid encircled the sleeves and the gown also had a jewel neckline and free flowing skirt of sheer dacron.

Similarly attired in pink, emerald and plum, respectively were the bridesmaids, Ann Marie Scichilone and Nancy Scichilone, both of Needham and sisters of the bride, and Roberta Ciacchella of Newton. Heidi Bright was the guest book attendant.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Scichilone chose a romance blue gown, while the bridegroom's mother was attired in a gown of hot pink.

Serving as best man for his brother was Mr. Robert Blomstrom of Canton, and ushers included two brothers of the bride, Mr. Al Scichilone and Mr. Sammy Scichilone, both of Needham, as well as another brother of the groom, Mr. Ronnie Blomstrom on Mansfield.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside in Framingham. (Photo by Hawthorne Studio)

Camp Fire Girls Seek Used Tents

Although the camping season is over for all but the hardest of souls, Newton Camp Fire Girls are looking ahead to the season to come, in an effort to expand camping opportunities.

Camp Fire Girls provides training in outdoor skills, beginning with simple walks for the youngest members and progressing to overnight camping — a requirement for achieving the rank of Fire Maker in the 6th grade.

While camping sites are available which provide shelter, Camp Fire Girls would like to encourage tenting, which thus far has been possible only with borrowed equipment. The organization hopes to build up a supply of tents which Camp Fire groups can use for their outings.

If any such camping equipment is available, in reasonably good condition, Camp Fire Girls will gratefully accept donations. Please call Mrs. Gordon Vawter, camping chairman of the Newton Camp Fire Girls Town Committee, at 244-2959 for further information.

Teacher At NHS Name To NCTE

Miriam Golstein Sargon of the Department of English at Newton High School has been appointed as one of seven 1972 Distinguished Lecturers for the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE), a professional organization of approximately 125,000 members and subscribers at all levels of this subject field, from elementary school through graduate school.

The aim of NCTE is to increase the effectiveness of teaching of the English language and its literature in the nation's schools and colleges. The organization conducts national conventions, regional meetings, and institutes on current issues in the teaching of English, publishes books and professional journals, and furnishes recordings and other teaching aids.

The NCTE Distinguished Lecture Program, for which Mrs. Sargon has been appointed, is designed primarily to serve teachers who, because of geographical isolation, rarely have the opportunity to attend professional conventions and conferences and meet national authorities on the teaching of the English language arts.

Mrs. Sargon received her A.B. from Hunter College and has done graduate study at City College of New York, Boston University, and Northwestern University (as a John Hay Fellow). She has taught in the Harvard-Northeastern M.A.T. summer program, a Commission on English (CEEBS) summer institute, and an inservice course for teachers in Andover.

Parker Sees Big Medical Changes

Dr. Jack S. Parker, president of the Newton Wellesley Hospital's medical staff warned the guests at the hospital's annual dinner that patients, doctors and hospital administrators are likely to be jolted by major changes in the ways Americans get medical care during the next few years.

Patients, Dr. Parker said, will be hit with rising costs either in insurance or taxes. Under Senator Edward Kennedy's proposed health care system 50.4 billion dollars would be added to existing federal health expenditures, according to Dr. Parker.

Also ahead, he predicted, is a new concept of ambulatory service which will reduce utilization of expensive in-patient facilities. It will include not only pediatric and psychiatric care, but many aspects of minor surgery. In fact, the medical staff president anticipates that routine hernia and many other simpler operations will be handled by the so-called eight hour admission program now being instituted at Newton-Wellesley.

The most radical changes will be faced by physicians themselves, according to Dr. Parker. The doctor will have to adjust to legislation encouraging greater group health care, to some system of national health care, to new systems of compensation and to periodic review of the right to practice.

The bride is a graduate of George Washington University and is presently teaching special education in Prince George County, Maryland. Her husband is vice president of Kasendorf, Incorporated.

The newlyweds will make their home in Alexandria, Virginia. (Photo by The Nourises)

Whether you're looking for an overnight babysitter or a long-term home caretaker, University Home Services can arrange to have all your home needs taken care of by reliable young married couples.

We know it's a problem. You want to take a trip or vacation but don't want to entrust your home to strangers or impose on relatives — and you shouldn't have to.

That's why University Home Services was established. We select and screen local young married couples — most are college students or recent college graduates — who are qualified to care for your home and your children while you're away.

But we're not the only ones who screen our couples. You do, too. Our policy is to give all of our clients an interview with the prospective sitting couple before any assignment.* We don't assign couples; you select them.

All of our couples can provide references and have been personally interviewed by UHS to make sure that they reflect a high degree of judgment and sense of responsibility. (You see, it may be your home but it's our business.)

Jazz Greats Pay Tribute To Newtonite George Wein

Jazz greats contemporary and traditional joined forces last Thursday night at Boston Garden in a tribute to Newton-born impresario George Wein, producer of the Newport Jazz Festivals.

Highlighting the stunning five-and-a-half-hour concert were vocals by Roberta Flack and Aretha Franklin. Miss Flack's powerful but restrained delivery brought out new depths in her songs, most strikingly in her version of a song done by the Shirelles in the 1960's, "Will You Still Love Me Tomorrow?" Her strong, almost stern delivery contrasted with the joyful bobbing of her body on the piano bench as she played.

Provocative introductory statements were part and parcel of the songs, as in the saucy "Reverend Lee" and the death lament "Sister Jones," songs which Miss Flack presented as "aspects of the black experience."

Miss Franklin, who came on after midnight to top off the show, brought the audience to their feet with what seemed like a full fifteen minutes chanting "Got the spirit," that left the boards trembling on the Garden floor. Miss Franklin took to the keyboard with stirring piano interludes and accompaniment.

Master instrumentalists shared the stage, including a quintet composed of Dizzy Gillespie, Thelonius Monk, Sonny Stitt, Charles Mingus, and John Burks.

When this group, the Jazz Giants, was followed by a trio featuring bassist Mingus, pianist Dave Brubeck, and drummer Art Blakey, one could hear the audience chortling in anticipation. "There's Mingus, there's Charles."

The traditional sound was brought to life with vocalist Eddie Jefferson in the old Crooner style.

Gene Krupa on the drums teamed up with trumpeter Bobby Hackett, Boston-based Larry Ridley on the bass, and pianist Earl (Father) Hines for a traditional song — "Angel Eyes," "Some Day," dedicated by Hines to Louis Armstrong, and a Krupa drum solo on "Caravan."

Among the older musicians, there was a moving sense of politeness, a tentativeness, almost formality, as each made sure to give the other artist his due.

Another fine keyboard musician, Jimmy Smith, handled the organ with an all-star group, Art Blakey, Gary Burton, Kenny Burrell, James Moody, Irv Green, and Joe Newman.

Illinois Jacquette on the horn teamed with Joe Jones on the drums and Milt Buckner at the keyboard for a humorous set topped when Jacquette gave a peek on the cheek to "Jazz Priest" Father O'Connor, and announced, "Now I know I'm going to heaven."

Closest to rock sound was "The Weather Report," which opened with a rather blurred and noisy piece on tambores, sax, organ, drums, and bass, but improved greatly with their second number, a rather pensive piece featuring a Brazilian Mardi Gras instrument, of African

Newton High School Teams Ready For Summer Season

NHS Tracksters Tabbed "Potentially Strong"

By DAVID SOLOMON

If performance were based entirely on playing conditions, the Newton High Indoor Track Team would be in deep trouble. Not only must the squad be content with practicing in Newton's archaic Drill Shed, but now they must contend with the hazardous meet conditions of the Fargo Building. But despite poor facilities the tracksters will be going strong for another league championship under head coach Lamoine Boyle.

Boyle commented about the chances of this team in the rejuvenated Metropolitan League. "We have an experienced team, with over fifteen sophomores. The deciding factor for our success will be the speed at which these new boys can adapt and improve. No one can be sure of quick development, but we have a potentially strong team." A great amount of Newton's strength and experience comes in the running events. Only in the 300 can the Tigers be considered to be lacking at this point.

Top candidates for the "very strong" fifty are junior Jim Shaw, senior Tom Kelleher and sophomores Joe Marella, Peter Waxman and Alan Rubin. Shaw and Kelleher both have varsity experience in this event.

Coach Boyle commented that the 300 is still a "question mark." We have brand new kids here, and we're not sure how they'll develop." With regular 300-man Gordon Manter out indefinitely with appendicitis, the race is wide open. Senior Larry Nussbaum, and sophomores Paul Magliocca, Jerry Kelleher and Ross Doherty will all be battling for spots at this position.

The strength of the 100 will lay largely upon captain David Douglas, as his performance alone Newton should be strong in this event. Douglas was second in the state in this event last year, and has to be considered one of the two or three best runners in the state. Joining Douglas will be sophomores William Seaward and Steven Renthal.

Newton will be "pretty strong" in the 600. Junior Sean O'Brien returns from last year and will be joined by two rookie seniors, Mark Herendeen and Jim Schpeiser.

Although these two boys have never competed in track, Boyle feels confident that their natural athletic ability will be enough to help them adapt.

The mile and two mile will also be very strong events this winter, with eight cross country runners out at these two positions. Peter Wrenn, Ken Gorfinkle, Paul Souliotis, Don Ferguson, David Kingsbury, David Fray and Mark Van Trees are all out for the two mile, and except for Van Trees, all have been on the cross country squad.

In the two-mile it will be Bob Carleo and Ralph Gott. Newton's four man relay team will be picked from such running standouts as Jim Shaw, Mark Herendeen, Dave Douglas, Gerry Kalleher, Larry Nussbaum and Jim Schpeiser. Newton's strength in the high hurdles will be provided by two skillful seniors Bob Womboldt and Peter Fair.

Bill Fulton, Robert Keefe and Andy Douglas are also competitors in this event. The inexperience of the Tigers shows especially in the high jump. The quick development of such boys as Jim Shaw, Mark Herendeen, Gerry Kelleher, William Seaward, Greg Mollono and James Averbach is hoped for in this event.

The shot put is an event of the future for the Tigers. Three sophomores and one junior lead a consistently developing squad. Jay Murphy, Mike Wargin, and Bob Grossman are the sophomores, while junior Lee Levinson is also a top man.

This large group of boys will be competing in most of their meets at the old Navy Fargo Building. The slippery, hazardous wooden floor, equipped with traffic

South Varsity Teams Ready

Four Newton South High Varsity sports teams kick off their winter seasons in the next two days.

The Lion basketball team, under second-year coach Chandler Phinney tap off at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon against arch-rival Newton High, at Newton. South will have a rough game on their hands fighting off the reigning Suburban League champion. The Tigers advanced to the semi-finals of the Tech Tourney, last year, but graduated most of their team. The squad is still tough, however.

South's grapplers, second in the state, last winter, also open tomorrow, versus Needham. The Lions suffered important graduation losses, but still field a strong line-up from last year's 15-1 slate.

On Saturday, Don Sutherland's tracksters and Neil McPhee's hockey team open their quests for Dual County League titles. The trackmen face Bedford at the Wayland Field House and the pucksters face-off against the Whalers in Billerica.

cones for the corners, is part of the terrible conditions which are faced by indoor track Boyle said that he "hopes this will be our last year there." The facilities planned for the new school should provide a center for the foundation of a new Suburban Track League. The Met League is standing on its last legs, no doubt, especially with the political problems involved in the building of a new track complex in the city of Boston.

Defending Champ Newton will compete in seven dual meets this winter, with the toughest opponents expected to be Brockton and Natick. Waltham could also turn out to be a strong sleeper.

South Has Veteran Basketball Team

LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Two years ago the Newton South High basketball team, with new coach Chandler Phinney, finished 1-19, and the whole team graduated. Last year a new group compiled a 2-14 record in a new league, but this time almost the whole team is back.

Phinney begins his third season at the Lions' helm and for the first time he may have something to look forward to. South returns thirteen of fifteen players who saw varsity action last winter, including the top three scorers.

The backcourt will be strong. Senior Doug Noble was tops in scoring in 1970-71 with 137 points and he is an excellent shooter and passer. 5 foot, 11 inch Ned Moan will start at the other guard post. He finished up with 136 points last time out. The two should provide a deadly backcourt.

Up front the first three are 6-1 junior John Staulo, who came on very strongly at the end of last season to wind up with 131 points. Staulo exhibited tremendous potential as a sophomore and tallied a high game of 18 points. 6-2 Bob Levine, a capable scorer and rugged rebounder will also start. The third man up front should be 6-2 Randy Lampert, who came on strong to score 73 points in a late-season rush. Jimmy Oppenheim will be a swingman between the front and backcourts and most likely will be the first sub in any situation. Ron Izen should see plenty of activity in the backcourt. Izen, a slick ballhandler, notched 49 points last year.

Six other returnees saw varsity action during the 1970-71 season and two showed good potential, though they haven't really had a chance to respond under pressure. 6-4 Al Grupp, who shuttled between the jayvee and varsity last winter, could be the answer to the Lions' perennial rebounding problems, although this team, overall, appears to have greater board strength than traditional Newton South teams. The other player with the potential to crack the top group is guard Bob Sherman, who also played with the jayvee and varsity squads.

Scott Casty, Scott Green, Rich Duffy and Chuck Adcock should lend added strength to the bench. Though competing in the Dual County League the Lions will get a stiff early-season test from non-league rival Newton High, tomorrow afternoon at Newton, in the season's opener. The Tigers, defending Suburban League champs, lost a lot through graduation, but will unveil sophomore Pete Laskasis, a junior high superstar last year.

Things look better for the Newton South basketball team this winter. However, unfortunately accidents usually crop up and destroy Lion hopes early. For once, the Lions will be lucky.

Tri-captains Loom as Key To Newton Wrestling Hopes

By DAVID SOLOMON

The progress that the NHS Wrestling team has made since its inception in the winter of 1969-70 has been tremendous. In their first year, the matmen had the status of a school club and were not able to muster a win. But last year, the team showed tremendous desire and effort while compiling an impressive 9-4 record. Now in their second year as a member of the Suburban League, the Tigers could well improve on last season's second-place mark.

Coach Norman Walker is still unsure of who will wrestle matches in certain classes; "Several spots are still wide open. It will be another week or so before we're sure of our starting lineup."

Three boys who are sure to start are tri-captains Phil Pescosolido, John Geary and Peter Carvelli. All three had extremely good seasons a year ago. Pescosolido defeated the number one seed from Western, Mass. in the State Tournament. Geary lost to Springfield Tech's Orlando Wright, about whom Walker commented, "He was the outstanding wrestler in the tournament. Carvelli amassed a phenomenal personal record of 12-1 in his 157 pound weight class."

Two other starters from last year are returning again this season. Richard Mullen and Mark DeWolfe are both expected to do well as repeat regulars.

Other veteran wrestlers vying for starting spots are John Pozzi, Mark Baker, Dave Egelson, Tom Durkin, Tony D'Amico, John Womboldt, Don Sostek, Jason Randall, Randy Wilson, Steve Van Tress, Jack Doolin and Andy Lampert. These twelve boys will provide ample experience for the squad, and there are also several sophomores who could possibly break into the starting lineup. Doolin and Lampert are the only previous lettermen among this group.

Coach Walker commented about this year's team; "We have a good returning group this season, along with about twenty sophomores who look real good. Our only disappointment so far is that five of our starters last year didn't come out this year."

Newton South Wrestlers Have Tough Act To Follow

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Newton South High's 1971-72 wrestling team has a tough act to follow. Last year's 15-1 squad was the best in school history and placed second in the state championships.

Nine front line grapplers, carrying a combined 91-17-8 record, departed through graduation, but fifth year coach Aredis Kojoyian doesn't seem worried. He shouldn't be. He's faced the same problem before and his new squads have responded well enough to give him a 48-5 career coaching record.

"Last year's team was my best team," said Kojoyian, "and a lot of guys are going to be hard to replace. However, there are a lot of boys back with varsity experience. In addition, last year's jayvee was very strong and a number of those people will help."

Mike Forman, a 107-pounder, leads the returnees. Last winter he wrestled to a 12-2 mark and captured third place in both the Eastern Sectional and State Championships.

Dave Lechhook, a 157 pound grappler a year ago was up to a sturdy 200 pounds when he played fullback for the football team this fall. During last season he compiled a 6-0-1 record and looked like a real plus for this year. Unfortunately with two games left in the football season Lechhook tore ligaments in his knee and now his status is undeterminable. A healthy Lechhook could be important to the success of the season.

Rich Hill, in the 128-pound division is back and dangerous. He sported a 7-4 mark last season and looks like a potential regular victor for the Lions.

Kojoyian will select most of the rest of his first-string group from an experienced collection of back-ups from last year, and the strong jayvee team.

Dave Berkowitz, 3-0-1, Alan Backer, 2-0-6, Paul Murphy, 4-2, John Ramirez, 3-2, Lenny Adelman, 2-1-1, Howie Frutkoff, 0-1-1, Al Gird, 3-0-0, Mark Frankel, 0-1-1, and Jon Sack, 2-0 each saw varying amounts of action, but looked good in spots and all look improved this year.

Steve Bucavales, Mike McDonald, Adam Nissen, Rick Hyman, Brian Corcoran, Wayne Vespa, Steve Lanes, and Rich Sullivan may move up from the jayvees.

Kojoyian's optimism seems to be based on solid grounds. The grapplers don't seem to be as deep as the '70-'71 team, but the front line looks rugged.

One problem the Lions face, perhaps the biggest obstacle, is Wayland High. The Warriors edged South for the state title, last year and the Dual County League and Sectional crowns as well. The Warriors also handed the Lions their only dual-match loss, 30-12, before an incredible 2,000 fans at Wayland. Wayland will be tough again, but South has a long way to go - 10 matches - including tomorrow's opener versus Needham, before it has to confront the problem.

Receives Awards For Army Duties

Army Lieutenant Colonel Richard C. Martin, son of Mrs. Catherine M. Martin, 31 Highland Ave., Newton, recently received the Legion Of Merit and his third through sixth awards of The Air Medal while serving with The 196th Infantry Brigade near Da Nang, Vietnam.

Lt. Col. Martin earned The Legion Of Merit for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding service as commanding officer of The 3rd Battalion of the Brigades 82nd Artillery. This medal is the second highest non-combat award for achievement.

Lt. Col. Martin received the air medals for his meritorious service while participating in aerial flight in support of ground operations in Vietnam.

Wilensky on the parallel bars and the rings. Mr. Jessup and his assistant coach Bill Martin expressed their feelings about the season in an early-season handout: "Expect one of the toughest conditioning and training programs you have ever experienced. We have a great deal of work to do, and are already behind many schools. Many gymnasts have been to summer camps and have continued to work out at various clubs or at their respective schools on an intramural basis. We have a great deal of catching up to do if we expect to maintain the fine tradition your former classmates have established."

Chances for a Newton title are, at best, dim. "We'll be lucky to finish second," admitted Jessup. Brookline is the pre-season favorite to top the league. "We need a lot of polishing," professed Jessup, "and it's going to be tough making progress. There can be no coasting. We're going to have to buckle down hard... One plus is the great attitude of our sophomores and juniors."

The Tigers begin their regular season in early January. Eleven meets are scheduled; the first against Winchester on January 7th. Not to be overburdening with cliché, but here's another that might apply. "Never count a Newton team out of the running."

In response to a question about whether stores were required to have scales in their produce departments, she was referred to J. Ellis Bowen, Sealer of Weights and Measures.

Stressing the importance of consumer complaints, Mrs. Linsky stated that she had filed a complaint after spotting vermin droppings on food in the window of one store. On her next visit, she declared, the store was sparkling clean.

Regular CRC business included report on the survey of membership policies of Newton's private clubs, by Sister Margaret Gorman, a progress report by Mr. William Ramsey on enforcement of the Mayor's Directive on Employment Practices by city contractors, reports on the recent all-day CRC housing conference for local public officials and the breakfast in support of Community Schools, by Mrs. Florence Rubin and CRC Chairman William M. Glosky. In addition, an extensive report on youth activities in Newton was presented by CRC youth committee chairman, Mr. Al French.

Sister Gorman, reporting for Interreligious Committee Chairman Rev. Robert L. Griesse, said that there was reason for dissatisfaction with the quality of some responses to a questionnaire on club membership policies mailed out during the summer. Although a high statistical return was received, she said, some organizations did not complete the questionnaire although they seemed to feel that they were complying with CRC's request for information.

In addition, she said that there appeared to be a conflict between stated policies of non-discrimination and evidence of actual practices gleaned from responses to the questionnaire and other sources.

The Interreligious Committee sought and received CRC approval of its proposal that in such instances, the clubs in question be sent another letter and questionnaire. In the event of their failure to respond, they would be asked to appear before a public hearing of CRC.

Mr. Glosky explained that, since all CRC meetings are open to the public, a review of membership practices with club representatives on such an occasion would constitute a public hearing.

He added that CRC does not possess the subpoena power and, in any event, "every effort should be made not to embarrass anyone." He stated however that "CRC meetings are public and, if they refuse to come, that refusal would be made public."

Mr. Ramsey reported the provisions of Employment Directive 13-69, now two years old, needs to be strengthened. Compliance reports, he said, show 9.5 to 11 percent minority workers on the Newton High School site and 0 percent on the Day Jr. High School site. "Both figures have been historically true," he said. "What this means is simply that the contractors at Day Jr. High School have not come up with an affirmative action program."

Newton's was one of the Jr. High School have not early "home town plans", he said, with the Directive, as with similar plans is that it permits unions to control supply of labor unless and until their hiring halls are unable to fill the work orders."

"Times have changed," he concluded, "and the Directive should be strengthened."

Mrs. Rubin reported that the housing conference for local public officials held Dec. 4 at YOUTH CONCERT COMMITTEE — Making arrangements for the semi-annual Youth Concert to be presented in Newton's Meadowbrook Junior High School this Saturday (Dec. 18) are Newtonites (left to right) Mrs. Stanley Becker, Mrs. Marvin Wool, Mrs. Martin Schreiber and Mrs. Sheldon Landau. The free concert, by the Newton symphony, is for elementary school children in grades 2 through 6.

Sacred Heart College had been "lively and productive".

In response to a request made at the conference, she sought and received CRC approval to organize a task force to work with state legislators from Newton to submit a late file petition for a change in Massachusetts law which would permit housing authorities to build housing for mixed income occupancy. Present regulations restrict housing authorities to provision only of low income housing.

Since Massachusetts, unlike most states has its own housing authority legislation there is a possibility of altering the restrictions either through a late file petition, and late file bill, or Governor's Motion.

Mrs. Rubin also received approval of plans to hold a follow-up conference for the officials to tour MHFA financed developments in the Boston area with Mr. William White, MHFA Executive Director and to ask further questions of Mr. White and Mr. Myron C. Roberts, a developer of low and moderate income housing. Mrs. Rubin said that both had been panelists at the Dec. 4 evoked numerous questions.

A housing conference open to the public may be co-sponsored by CRC with another organization in the near future, as well, according to Mrs. Rubin.

Mayor-Elect Theodore D. Mann attended the all-day session, she said, and addressed the group briefly in the afternoon, expressing appreciation to Mrs. Rubin and CRC for starting the educational process and declaring the intention of his office to cooperate and coordinate housing action.

Mr. Tom Dalton, an employment Councilor, working with Newton South High School's Wheeler House Project, requested CRC aid in finding pre-Christmas jobs for students who have not had "a success experience" either in school or in the community. This will require sympathetic and sensitive understanding on the part of employers, he said, adding that students would pursue their jobs under Mr. Dalton's supervision. A number of suggestions were offered by CRC members of potential employers.

Sunday Services At 1st Church of Christ Scientist

What is the source of all that is good in nature and man?

This is a question to be considered at Christian Science churches Sunday in a Bible Lesson - Sermon entitled "Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?"

"The earth is full of the goodness of the Lord," a Scriptural passage to be read from Psalms states.

Opening the commentary from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy is this citation: "In the Saxon and twenty other tongues 'good' is the term for God. The Scriptures declare all that He made to be good, like Himself, - good in Principle and in idea. Therefore the spiritual universe is good, and reflects God as He is."

Services at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 391 Walnut St., Newtonville, begin at 10:45 a.m. All are welcome.

Income Group Reflected In Reading Tests

Studies at Emory University indicate that children from lower socioeconomic classes are not as attentive and observant in school as middle-class children.

Dr. Irwin J. Knopf, chairman of Emory's psychology department, in testing groups from various classes found that children from the lower social level rated as "good" readers in their classrooms performed at the "poor" level of reading among middle-class students.

Knopf said a possible explanation is that children in the lower socio-economic level have not had prior experience in activities which require time and patience and for which they were rewarded.

Eventual goal of the research is to determine what helps children increase their powers of observation and thereby learn more.

Lawmakers Rewriting Newton Rubbish Rules

A proposal and separate collection of garbage and trash, recycling of newspapers, an appropriation to clean up Hammond Pond, the end of winter salting, and a ban on rubbish compactors, were all on the agenda of the Aldermanic Public Works Committee at its most recent meeting.

The Committee approved, 5-1, a resolution by Alderman Matthew Jefferson recommending that city trucks collect both garbage (wet materials, such as food) and trash (dry materials) in one package. At present, garbage is collected separately by a private contractor at a cost of nearly a million dollars annually, or one dollar on the tax rate, Jefferson declared.

His proposal, based on the rubbish collection system now used in Lynn, would eliminate metal trash barrels. Instead, both trash and rubbish would be mixed together in plastic bags. Each plastic bag would be placed inside a second plastic bag, and set outside for pickup.

As long as two plastic bags are used, Jefferson said, there are no problems with odor or with animals getting into the garbage. Collection of the bags would be cleaner and easier for city workers, Jefferson maintained.

The proposal received the support of Public Works Commissioner Willard S. Pratt, who says that the incinerator is built to handle garbage as well as trash, according to Jefferson.

The Ward 3 Alderman adds that burning of garbage may help to solve the problem of fly-ash by lowering the burning temperature of the Rumford Ave. incinerator. If the garbage is loaded properly, stirred, and not allowed to pile up, there should be no problems with odor, Jefferson said.

If passed by the Board of Aldermen, the new system would go on trial on one collection route in 1972 and would be extended to all routes when the present garbage collection contract expires in 1973.

A proposed trashmasher ban was referred to the new Board of Aldermen, pending results next March of tests being conducted in Atlanta, Georgia by the Federal Government.

Three ecology measures came before the Committee, and two received approval. An appropriation of $1000 for removal of weeds threatening to choke Hammond Pond was given unanimous approval. Weeds grow up in the process of aging of the pond, which will eventually result, if not checked, in the pond's turning into a swamp and eventually into dry land. The proliferation of weeds is often caused by phosphate detergents.

The state matches Newton's weed-control appropriation with a $3000 allotment. After the close of the weed control program, the pond will be stocked with bass for sport fishing.

A proposal to recycle newspapers, magazines, and cardboard presented by Alderman William Carmen, was approved on a limited basis. During a trial period, only newspapers will be collected. The newspapers will be required to be bundled separately, and will be picked up by city workers on city trucks, to be sold to waste-paper dealers. The profits from sale of the paper are expected to cover the costs of the separate collection.

If the proposal is approved by the full Board, flyers will probably be distributed by regular rubbish collection crews announcing the date

For her wedding Miss Konheim chose a princess style gown of white silk faille with ruffled inserts on the skirt. Her bouquet was of stephanotis, lily of the valley and white roses.

Attendants for the couple were Mrs. Victor Greene as matron of honor for her sister and Mr. Arthur Polansky as his brother's best man, with Miss Jill and Miss Pamela Heffron, nieces of the bride, and Mark Polansky, the groom's nephew, as junior attendants.

A proposal to end salting of snowy winter streets was which voted however to change rejected by the committee, which voted, however, to change the ratio of sand to salt to 3-to-1 this winter, and 10-to-1 next winter. At present, main thoroughfares receive a very high proportion—sometimes 100 per cent—of salt. Aldermen reasoned that salt already purchased by the city should be used up.

Speaking against the proposal to ban salt, Public Works Commissioner Pratt contended that a switch to all sand would cost the city more money and would not be effective in controlling snow and ice.

Iceland Has Waiting List For Prisons

Some people wait four or five years to get into prison in Iceland.

There are just two prisons in the country, one in Reykjavik, the capital, and one in Akureyri in the north. Each holds 40 persons.

Usually they are full so there is a waiting list of people out on bail or free in their own recognizance.

The low crime rate makes it unnecessary to build new accommodations, however. Reykjavik's main prison was found to be too big and was turned into the Prime Minister's office.

Most prisoners are inside because they were drunk and disorderly. Petty robbery is the second main reason.

Project - and take at Tuesday's meeting.

Opponents of the project, including Newton Conservation Commission Secretary Hilday Heyn and a number of Lower Falls residents, chorused that approval of the zoning was tantamount to approval of the project.

"I think if you grant the zone change, the die is cast, and the public hearing is just frosting on the cake, to prevent a possible taxpayer's suit," charged Nathan Krasnigor, of 90 Clearwater Rd., Newton Lower Falls.

A January hearing was slated to consider permissive use on height for the proposed 11-story building.

Arguing that approval of the zone change would drive up the price of the land and prevent acquisition for conservation and recreation purposes by the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC), Mrs. Heyn declared, "I think the MDC can't help but interpret this as meaning we don't want the land to go to them." The MDC plans to consider at a meeting next week taking the property by eminent domain.

Alderman Michael Lipof, who voted for the zone change, explained that as a member of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) he had originally been opposed to the project. Revisions in the plans had answered his objections both from an ecological viewpoint and in terms of traffic problems, he stated.

The revised plans eliminated a parking lot which would have required the filling in of a lagoon along the riverbank. Comments from the city traffic consultant indicated that with some additional signals and the widening of some streets, the existing roads could handle the estimated 300 additional cars of persons working in the building.

Challenging whether Lipof accurately reflected the view of the MAPC, Mrs. Heyn said she would like to see a vote taken by the MAPC at a public hearing and a letter forwarded by the Planning Council.

To Land Use Committee Chairman Alan Barkin's protest, "You're acting as if we're a bunch of ogres," Mrs. Heyn replied, "We were given 10 years to come up with a plan for the Charles River, and we did it. And now you're wiping it all out."

Opponents of the project also presented a report by Traffic Consultant Dennis

Neuzil challenging the conclusions of the petitioner's and the city's traffic consultants. Neuzil's report, submitted by Alderman Louis J. Egelson and Lower Falls Improvement Association President Donald Budge, indicated a high probability of wrong-way left turns leading to head-on collisions with cars leaving the site.

Strongest proponents of the project were Aldermen Joseph M. McDonnell and Alderman Peter F. Harrington. McDonnell asserted that he was ready to vote on the request for permissive use as well as the zoning change.

Harrington disputed the need for another public hearing on the revised plans. "I question whether the public has not had a chance to express themselves," he declared. "I think it's a good deal, a good use of the land. That land is going to get used some way for some business development any way."

"First people were opposed to the project on ecological grounds. Then they were opposed because of the traffic problems. Now I think they're just opposed — period," Harrington charged.

The opposition was led by Lower Falls Alderman Louis I. Egelson. Land Use Committee members most opposed to the project were Michael Antonellis and Arthur Sullivan, both of whom contended that there had not been adequate weight given to community opposition. "I'm not satisfied. There are a number of questions which haven't been answered," Sullivan declared.

Speaking in favor of the petition was William A. Shugrue, an official in the Department of Commerce assigned to bring new industry to Rte. 128.

When it was pointed out that there is more than a million sq. ft. of vacant office space on Rte. 128, Shugrue replied that Sun-Life wanted to build to its own specifications.

Also testifying in favor of the development was Keith Willoughby, vice-president of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce.

Land Use Committee members voting in favor of the zone change were Lipof, McDonnell, William Carmen, Harrington, and Barkin. Voting against the rezoning were Sullivan and Antonellis. Alderman Matthew Jefferson was absent.

Among the Newton Lower Falls residents testifying against the proposal were Joel Leighton, Chairman of the Lower Falls Project Area Committee, concerned with the Redevelopment Project, Budge, Philip A. Saunders of Clearwater Rd., and Krasnigor.

Among the questions of Lower Falls residents was a query as to why the Sun-Life building could not be included in the Lower Falls Development Area.

Alderman Egelson also questioned whether the project would bring in the anticipated amounts of tax revenue. Income from a comparable project, Gateway Center, was far below that expected, he maintained.

Seventy-eight-year-old Gideon Cohen of Arlington is shown his works at the Edith Fox Library in Arlington, the Beth Israel Hospital, the National Shawmut Bank at Cleveland Circle and at Symphony Hall Gallery as well as in Needham and Providence, R.I.

Mr. Cohen, formerly of England and Canada, discovered his artistic talents only after his retirement from the fur business at the age of 70. Ever since, he has been painting with enthusiasm, skill and fine precision, often on as many as five paintings at once.

Floral Symphony, a large painting with masses of brightly colored garden flowers, reflects his love of music and gardening. His finely detailed paintings of such familiar and historic spots as Dunster House in Harvard Square, the Tapestry Room and the Interior Gardens at the Gardner Museum and the Witches' House in Salem have brought him awards and artistic recognition.

Entirely self-taught, Gideon Cohen uses a palate that is soft and mute in tone. He works with charcoal and occasionally does water colors, but he prefers the detailed effect he can achieve with oils.

Mr. Cohen had a one-man show at the Circle Theatre Gallery, Brookline and has tive Staff and a Senior Clinical Instructor in Surgery at Tufts University School of Medicine. He is the second active physician to be elected to the Hospital Board as a representative of the community.

The Hospital's new president, Mrs. Adams, has been a resident of Newton all her life. She graduated from Dana Hall School in Wellesley and attended Wellesley College. She first became associated with the Hospital as an active volunteer in the early 1950's when she took a Red Cross course to become a Nurse's Aide.

The Hospital has remained her major interest. As a Director of the Hospital Aid, she was Coffee Shop Chairman for two years prior to her election in 1965 for a three year term as Aid President. Thereafter, she resumed chairmanship of the Coffee Shop and has seen it through its recent relocation in new quarters in the hospital's new West Wing.

Both Mrs. Adams and her late husband served on the Board of Trustees and Board of Governors. Mr. Adams was first elected to the Board in 1957. Mrs. Adams became a Trustee in 1960 and was elected to the Board of Governors in 1967. She has served on both the Hospital's Plant and Personnel Committees.

Mrs. Adams has two sons and four grandchildren and has been active in the Auburndale Garden Club and the Auburndale Congregational Church and in Wellesley College alumni activities, including the chairmanship of her 40th reunion next June.

Mr. Groubeck, who becomes Second Vice President, was elected to the Board of Trustees in 1969 and to the Board of Governors in 1970. He is President of the Continental Cablevision, Inc. Mr. Wright, who is now Clerk of the Board, joined the Trustees in 1966, was Assistant Treasurer from 1966-1967 and Treasurer from 1968-1969. Mr. Wright is a member of the firm of Haskins and Sells.

New Trustee William H. Cruikshank joined David L. Babson & Company, investment counselors, shortly after his graduation from Babson College. He is a town meeting member in Wellesley, Chairman of the Wellesley Housing Authority, a member of the Board of Managers of the New England Home for Little Wanderers and an incorporator of the Hibernia Savings Bank, Boston.

H. Bradley Perry, a graduate of Harvard and Harvard Business School, and also associated with David L. Babson & Company, moved to Wellesley from Brookline 15 years ago. He is a former town meeting member in both communities and a Corporator of the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank.

Dr. Gerald G. Garcelon, who interned at Newton-Wellesley, is a Senior Surgeon on the Hospital's active staff, and a past president and Chairman of the Executive Committee of its Medical Staff. Currently, he is chief of the Hospital's Tumor Clinic.

A resident of West Newton, he is an instructor in oral pathology at Tufts University Dental School, an Honorary Director of Massachusetts Blue Shield, a Past President

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Blue Cross announces a new choice for Federal Employees.
The Harvard Community Health Plan. You don't have to be sick to benefit from this revolutionary health care plan.

Now Federal Employees from the greater Boston area can choose between two totally different types of Blue Cross health care methods. Both give you the best when you need it the most. That is, both give you the maximum health care protection available.

The first is our traditional method. The way it works is like this: you pay a premium; then, when you need health care services, Blue Cross reimburses the provider afterward. Federal Employees can choose the High Option Plan. It's a service benefit plan, which means there's no fixed dollar limit on the basic benefits you receive. In most cases, full coverage is provided without deductibles for 365 days a year. And there is also a Low Option Plan, an indemnity plan that's lower in cost.

The second method is the new choice, the Harvard Community Health Plan. It's a Health Maintenance Organization, which means that it emphasizes preventive medicine. You don't have to be sick to benefit. Here's how it works. Your premium pays for an annual physical and eye examination for you and your family. If the physician detects anything that should be taken care of, he can treat you right at the Center. If special treatment is required, you will be treated by an affiliated specialist or admitted into one of the four affiliated hospitals. Your premium covers this, too. And of course, it also covers you in case of unexpected illness, hospital stays and accidents.

The Harvard Community Health Center is located in Kenmore Square. Besides the doctors' offices, the Center includes laboratory and X-ray facilities, 24-hour emergency call services, a pharmacy, counseling services offices and health education facilities. It's actually a one-stop health center.

When you join the Harvard Community Health Plan, you still get the nationally recognized Blue Cross card. Which means you can get into any of over 7000 hospitals across the country.

So when it comes time to choose your health care plan for next year, remember our two choices. One of them is sure to be right for you and your family. And isn't it nice to know that whichever one you choose, you'll be getting the best when you need it the most?

Christmas Seal Donations Are Urged by County Ass'n

Strange sounding phrases like "black lung," "brown lung," and "asbestosis" present real threats to American workers and real reasons for supporting the 1971 Christmas Seal Campaign, according to George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO.

The Norfolk County Newton Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association said the labor leader cited Christmas Seal education and research programs for industrial lung diseases in letter endorsing the annual effort of the nation's more than 1,000 Christmas Seal Associations.

"Of course, all of us are familiar with tuberculosis, a disease that still strikes nearly 40,000 Americans every year, and emphysema, the lung-crippling disease that is taking an increasing toll of lives," Meany said in the letter to John H. Biddle, president of the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association (NTRDA). He said the NTRDA was a leader in the effort to eradicate respiratory diseases.

The Norfolk County Newton Association noted that respiratory diseases are the fastest-rising single group of ailments in the U.S., and that emphysema alone costs $100,000,000 each year in Social Security disability payments. "We're going to have to do more to bring these diseases under control. Local citizens can help by giving more to Christmas Seals. It's a matter of life and breath."

CHAIRMAN OF ISRAEL GALA — Are Mr. and Mrs. Phil David Fine of Waban, who have arranged this year's Bonds Ball and Gala as the conclusion to the campaign for the Israel Bond effort. Guests of Honor at this season's social highlight Saturday (Dec. 18) in the Sheraton Boston Hotel will be His Excellency Yitzhak Rabin, Israel's Ambassador to the United States and Mrs. Rabin.

Israel Bonds Ball And Gala Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Phil David Fine of $1,000 in Israel Bonds during 1971.

Inaugurated in 1958, the ball marks the end of the campaign year for the Israel Bond effort. Envoys of Israel who have been honor guests at the ball have been Abba Eban, now Israel's Minister for Foreign Affairs; Avraham Harman, now president of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, and Ambassador Rabin, the brilliant military strategist, who is credited with being the chief architect of Israel's quick victory in the Six Day War of 1967.

Expressing their pleasure at being named chairmen of the ball and gala, Mr. and Mrs. Fine said: "We shall do everything we can to achieve the objectives of this event — a delightfully social gathering and the maximum in Israel Bond sales to provide Israel with development dollars. It is our hope that we shall not only have a record attendance, but even more important, that we shall obtain for Israel a record amount in Israel Bond funds. While eligibility to attend this function is the purchase of at least $1,000 in bonds, we will try to have as many men and women as possible purchase greater amounts in Bonds for this occasion."

Chairman of Special Purchases for the Israel Bond effort, Mr. Fine is a well-known attorney with offices in Boston and Washington. Mr. Fine is a member of the board of the American Jewish Committee; former vice president of Brandeis Associates; a member of the board of the Anti-Defamation League and former co-chairman of the Employees Division of Combined Jewish Philanthropies.

He is a former national deputy Judge Advocate of the Jewish War Veterans of America, and a veteran of World War II, serving with the army in Italy.

Mr. Fine is a member of the board of governors of the Boston Stock Exchange; a member of the board of directors of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce; chairman of the board of the Commonwealth Bank and Trust Company, managing trustee of the Stadium Realty Trust, and first vice president and director of the Hull Cooperative Bank in Hull.

NHA Postpones Decision On Upper Falls Project

No response was forthcoming last week from the Newton Housing Authority, after the Board of Aldermen on Dec. 6 approved a sale price of $12,000 for a 50,925 square foot parcel of city-owned land at Circuit Ave. and Thurston Rd. in Newton Upper Falls.

The Aldermanic resolution, which specified that four units of low-income family housing and 50 units of housing for the elderly should be built on the land, was the aldermen's version of an initial NHA proposal for 50 units of housing for the elderly on Thurston Rd., and 75 units of low-income family housing on three other sites.

The NHA, which had specified that it did not wish to mix family housing with housing for the elderly, had originally offered $7,638 for the Thurston Rd. parcel.

NHA members declared that they would study the aldermanic proposal, and would confer with residents of the Upper Falls community.

Noting that design of the site would present a problem in creating some shielding or separation between the elderly and family sectors of the proposed project, NHA chairman Anthony Medaglia suggested it might be possible to have an architectural competition for design, or it might be possible to place the family units on Eliot St. across the street from the proposed site for the elderly.

NHA members had earlier suggested that the federal government might not fund a proposal for only four units of low-income housing, but Medaglia reported that the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) official George Weidenfeller had assured city officials at a conference on housing funds would be available for a four-unit development.

NHA vice-chairman James Miller commented that he would proceed on the project as soon as federal funds were cleared.

NHA members have also expressed doubt as to whether they could get developers to submit bids for a small development. The Authority may ask bids simultaneously on a proposal for 25 low-income units on a privately-owned site on Beaconwood Road in Newton Highlands, and may try to persuade the aldermen to approve 25 units of low-income family housing on at least one of two city-owned parcels: Victory Field in Nonantum or land abutting the Myrtle Baptist Church in West Newton. The Authority feels that to get a good price from developers, they should be able to ask bids on 100 units at once.

Now that the 7% excise tax is repealed, you'll save money on all of our cars. But that's nothing new from us.

For the past 24 years, Volkswagens have had the justified reputation of saving people money.

And now that the 7% federal excise tax has been repealed, you can save even more.

In fact, even if you happened to have bought one of our cars before now but after Aug. 15, the 7% will still be refunded to you at your Volkswagen dealer.

If you bought one before Aug. 15, don't feel deprived.

You're still saving over the average car about $1500 on the car itself, over $100 a year on gas, and $who-knows-how-much on repairs.

Toolmaker-Sculptor's Work Exhibited at ICA

Sculptures and paintings by Newton native Frank Jasset, a 78-year-old former toolmaker, are on exhibit this week (Dec. 9-17) at the Institute of Contemporary Art at 33 Beacon St., Boston.

Jasset, who works under the pseudonym "Fan Toomas," constructs his sculptures out of mechanical parts he makes or finds. They are not welded or glued together, but fastened mechanically, with screws and bolts, etc.

Jasset's paintings, as well as his sculptures, reflect the artist's feeling for the importance of scientific theory in the process of life, especially geometry and astronomy.

The sculptures include "Wars and Rumors of Wars," a construction of mechanical pieces all made for war, such as prisms made for the Frankfort Arsenal, ball bearings for rockets, grinding tools, a piece of a Nike Missile starter, and a test plug built at the Watertown Arsenal for testing metals.

Other sculptures include "Comptronics I and II," "Circulars and Cycles," "Angular Motion," and "Matter, Molecules and Atoms," often relating to mathematical and geometrical relationships.

The painting "Astrogeopyrotechnics" is an abstract relating to astronomy, geometry and fire technology. Other ("Evolution and Divinity") and astronomy ("Saturnity"). "Irenology (The Science of Peace)" is a collage with pictures of former President Eisenhower and Dr. Paul Dudley White. It is for sale, with the proceeds to go to the Heart Fund. The painting is on loan from Dr. White's office.

A toolmaker for eight years beginning in 1910, Jasset returned to Middlesex Medical School in 1926 to become a Podiatrist. He is also an amateur astronomer, and built his own Cassagranian telescope 40 years ago.

Jasset has been making mechanical sculptures for about five years, and painting for 55 years. He has exhibited at the Old Arlington Gallery, Henry Studio Gallery, Dunbarton Gallery and the Nexus Gallery.

Gallery hours are Monday through Saturday, from 10 to 4:30 o'clock. Admission is free.

Court Of Honor Held For New Eagle Scout

On Friday, Dec. 3, David Allen Woodruff of Newtonville was given a Court of Honor ceremony for achieving the rank of Eagle Scout. The event was held at the United Methodist Church in Newtonville.

David became a scout in Troop 1 in March, 1967, and a First Class Scout in 1969. David served as Senior Patrol leader for the troop from Sept., 1970 to Sept., 1971, and he now holds the rank of Junior Assistant Scoutmaster.

First speaker at the ceremony was Fred Berman, who was the Scoutmaster of Troop 1 when David first entered. Mr. Berman told of David's scouting background, in addition to his background as an honor student at Newton High. David sings with the Troubadors and is a member of the wrestling team.

Dolf Anderson, Scout Executive of Norumbega Council, made the presentation of awards, and gave a talk on the meaning of Eagle to the scouts and the community. Scoutmaster William Berquist read a letter from National Headquarters to David, and presented him with his Eagle Certificate.

David's minister, Rev. Robert C. Mezoff of United Methodist Church of Newtonville, who is also a former Eagle Scout, gave the closing remarks and the benediction.

Refreshments were served by the mothers of the scouts in the troop. Flowers were presented to Mrs. Woodruff, along with an Eagle pin for her. Mr. Woodruff received an Eagle tie clip from his son.

James Boates and Stephen VanTrees, Eagle Scouts of Troop 1, acted as honor escorts at the ceremony, which was attended by over 60 scouts and friends.

PRETTY PIXIES, part of the Nonantum Children's Association, are shown with Santa Claus, whose arrival by helicopter at Hawthorn Field this Sunday afternoon will highlight the Christmas Party for the 72nd straight year by the local organization.

Nonantum Xmas Party Will Be Held Sunday

The 72nd annual Nonantum Children's Xmas Party will be held this Sunday (Dec. 19) with the arrival by helicopter of Santa Claus at 1:30 p.m. at Hawthorn Park. The Xmas Party itself will take place in Our Lady's Auditorium following Santa's arrival.

The Xmas Party Association was founded in 1899 by Edwin O. Childs. It is responsible for many activities which help underprivileged and unfortunate children.

This year's Party Committee is composed of the following members: Anthony Pellegrini, Chairman; Domenico Bianchi, Jr., Treasurer; David J. Berkeley, Assistant Treasurer; Nick Gentile, Financial Secretary; and John A. Weber, Recording Secretary.

Co-sponsors of the event are Sons of Italy Lodge 1069, St. Mary of Carmen Society, American Legion Post 440, and Italian American War Veterans, Post 50.

The Nonantum Association has assisted the Senior Citizens, Cerebral Palsy, Pop Warner, N.A.A., Police Athletic League, Boy's Club, Elks, Newton K of C, and Special Class at Peabody School. Its Pixies have visited the Children's Hospital, the Veterans Hospital, and have held a party for the Fernald School children.

Chairman Pellegrini expressed his thanks recently to all those persons who have contributed to this organization: "Through your kind generosity in the past, we were able to give bags of gifts and goodies to more than 3,000 children. Your continued generosity will insure a Merry Christmas for the many children in our community."

Freedman's Sports Talk

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Basketball in Boston is hockey's weak sister. The Celtics take a back seat to the Bruins and even to the Braves these days. In college, it's even worse. In some Boston area schools the students hardly even realize there's a team.

Boston College has been a national power in recent years, during the tenure of Bob Cousy, but lately the team is slipping. During the Cousy reign the Eagles were the most prosperous college team in the area and hockey rode in the back of the bus at the Heights. The hoopsters are good, but they aren't as strong this year, and hockey is on the upswing, so this winter there's going to be some fan competition.

Over in Cambridge, at Harvard, the basketball players have spent their entire existence in benign neglect. Cooney Weiland's pucksters were always good and the Crimson B-ball players not so good. Weiland is in retirement this year, but the leemans are still very dangerous. There is one change, though. The basketball team is loaded and starting to draw people. Coming off a 16-10 record, the best in Harvard history, the basketball team was rated as high as 12th in some preseason polls. There are only three teams in the nation with four high school All-Americans on their roster. Harvard is one of them.

Downtown, Northeastern is also coming off its best cage season. The Huskies were 17-4 last year, but four-fifths of the starting line-up is gone. As usual, the Huntington Avenue bunch is a well-coached, well-disciplined unit. The Huskies also have limited competition from hockey because the hockey team hasn't been so hot lately.

The remaining school of the big four is Boston University. The Terriers have generally been a doormat in the group over the last few years, but this winter things have changed. The Sleeping Giant of Commonwealth Avenue has awakened. Unfortunately, the Terriers face the worst competition for hockey fans of the four schools. The BU skaters are defending NCAA champions and also have a new rink, which is a tremendous improvement over the St. Botolph St. eyesore, otherwise known as the Boston arena, and is also more accessible.

Last week the first round of the second annual Beanpot Basketball Tournament was played at the Boston Garden. Only 2,000 fans showed up to watch four really good clubs, including one with national promise. The same four schools will draw 15,000 in February for the hockey Beanpot. Obviously, there is more interest than the natural rivalries of the four neighborhood schools.

Those who weren't at the Garden missed some basketball. Northeastern, battling against a gigantic and heavily favored Harvard team, scared the living daylight out of the Crimson with a stall that had the score at 54-54 with 50 seconds left. By all rights the Huskies shouldn't have been in the game. All but three NU players are from Massachusetts, and few of them were all-state. One of the out-of-staters, 5-foot, 6-inch Kevin Lecy, was the smallest player in the tournament, and he started.

Harvard, meanwhile was starting people like 6-6 James Brown at guard, not to mention 1971 New England leading rebounder Floyd Lewis, 6-7, and 6-8 Tony Jenkins. But the big names weren't doing the job and the little people like Jim Moxley and Mark Jellison, who scored a game high 23 points, almost stole the game.

At the end though, the shaken Harvard group pulled through on a clutch three-point play by Jenkins and some tough outside shooting by dead-eye Jim Fitzsimmons.

The second game was closer and had a similar desperate finish. The Eagles lost sparkplug Jimmy O'Brien to the pros, and as a result are not as sharp in their overall floorplay. 25 turnovers, herses, when O'Brien was in control, undid BC, as the fast-breaking Terriers edged to an 85-83 win.

Led by captain Pete Schmid, 22 points and 10 rebounds, and Dave Walker, 17 points, the Eagles made a game of it in the final minute, rallying from a nine-point deficit to striking distance.

First-year coach Ron Mitchell got a scare as the Eagles nudged closer, but his big men regained control and set things straight. Sophomore Kenny Boyd, himself an ex-high school All-American, scored 35 points in his varsity debut and his forecourt running mates, leaping Jim Garvin and rugged Tom Taylor contributed 12 points each and helped monopolize the boards at key points.

The two games were not picture-perfect. All four teams experienced opening night unsteadiness, but it was good, balanced basketball; the best college basketball in the Greater Boston area in quite a few years.

Tea Drinkers

Four-fifths of all tea consumed in the U.S. is drunk within private homes, the industry estimates.

Mint Area

Two-thirds of the peppermint and spearmint oil production of the U.S. is said to come from Indiana.

Highway Opens

The Alaska highway from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Dawson Creek, British Columbia, was opened to tourist travel during the summer of 1948.

Police Gazette Is Granddaddy Of the Tabloids
By FRED DOWN
At the extraordinary age of 126, the Police Gazette rated the diamond belt as America's oldest magazine award.
The one-time bible of the barbershops, once saved from financial collapse by a president of the United States, is still titillating its readers with a brash diet of sports, sex, scandal and shockers.
And the headlines screaming up from newsstands are the key to the Police Gazette's longevity, according to Joseph Azaria, publisher of the Daily and Sunday Express in Montreal, who took over control of the Police Gazette in 1968.
Azaria emphasizes newsstands, for that's the secret of why the Gazette has survived while other giants have folded.
"We want newsstands sales," Azaria said. "The only subscriptions we want are the ones that are fully paid. We could have five million subscriptions tomorrow if we'd subsidize subscription agents or offer tremendous discounts or valuable giveaways. These subscriptions would cost us more than we would be getting."
Boxing has always been the Police Gazette's big draw next to sex, of course, and the magazine can indeed claim that it was responsible for boxing being legalized in this country.
Boxing was an underground sport when the Police Gazette came on the scene in 1845. The magazine sponsored boxing bouts and defied the law to stop them—the police did. Gazette lawyers argued in court that the matches were an "exhibition in the art of self defense." The judges agreed and became a legalized sport.

It was the Police Gazette that took the unknown Boston strong boy, John L. Sullivan, and publicized his battles until he became a household name, the greatest sports hero of the 1890s.
The Police Gazette had a trophy for everything. It gave medals to champion walkers, to champion oyster openers. Its most famous award was the Police Gazette Diamond Belt, emblematic of the world heavy weight boxing championship.
The importance of the Police Gazette in U.S. journalism cannot be denied. It developed editorial formulas which remain the basis for many leading magazines. It is the granddaddy of today's sensational tabloids. It pioneered newspaper sports page, and sports magazines. The true detective magazines were an outgrowth of the popularity achieved by the crime stories originating in the Police Gazette.
The first pinup of leg art appeared in the Gazette. Its woodcuts of buxom beauties in tight corsets shocked Victorian Americans in the 1890s. The Police Gazette girls became famous in song and legend, and prompted Irving Berlin to write a popular tune of the day, "The Pretty Young Brunette" on the Pink Police Gazette.

This Week's Best Buys

Courtesy Massachusetts Department of Agriculture

The traditional Christmas plants — poinsettia, Christmas cactus — are available in profusion for the holidays, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture. Grown in Bay State greenhouses, these plants are colorful and long-lasting, and make excellent Christmas decorations.

A tropical American shrub, the poinsettia is often thought only to be an import into Massachusetts. Many thousands are cultivated annually under glass here, and they arrive fresh and healthy at retail outlets and roadside stands.

In addition to the traditional red flowers, the poinsettia now appears with yellow or pink flowers as well. It is one of the longest-lived potted plants we have. With reasonable attention, it will continue to bloom into March.

Also available is an excellent harvest of cut flowers: carnations, scarlet for Christmas (as well as other colors); roses, mums and other native greenhouse-grown flowers.

If you plan to send flowers to someone out of town for Christmas, it would be well, says the MDA, to anticipate your needs. The earlier you advise your florist, the better able he is to make delivery on time in some distant city, and the better choice of merchandise you will have. Some clever and beautiful Christmas arrangements are being offered by FTD members, for example, and an early visit to your local florist would be in order. In other words, avoid the last-minute rush.

Sharp Rise In Home Spending Expected Now

Consumer spending for housing and furnishings in the first five years of the 1970s will grow faster than the total consumer market, according to B.F. Goodrich.

Housing expenditures are expected to rise nearly 9 percent a year, reaching $130 billion in 1975, compared with a 7 percent annual increase in total personal spending, a BFG study shows. The reason will be a marked population growth in the household — and family-formation ages — primarily the 20s.

More households will require more furnishings, so BFG expects the bills for furniture and similar products to be $46 billion in 1975, an increase of $15 billion over 1969. The company is a major supplier of vinyl raw materials and products, carpet underlay and sponge rubber products to the buildings and home furnishings industries.

Leaders Discuss Funding For Community Schools

About 30 community leaders came together for a breakfast meeting at the Marriott Hotel last week to discuss ways of raising funds for the community schools program. The meeting was sponsored by the Newton Community Relations Commission.

The Community Schools program, now operating on a limited basis in several Newton schools, keeps school buildings open after school hours for the use of community residents.

In setting up community school programs the needs of each school community are defined by local residents, and could include Youth and Senior Citizen centers, medical and day care programs, adult education, arts and crafts, etc.

Although school buildings which CRC Chairman William M. Glosky commented are presently idle after school hours, would provide the meeting space, the programs would be run by community agencies, ranging from the Visiting Nurse Association to the Youth Commission.

School Department Media Specialist James Robison presented a slide-show depicting community schools programs at the Lincoln - Eliot and Emerson schools.

The presentation was prepared with the aid of the principals of both schools.

Mayor-elect Theodore D. Mann suggested seeking federal funds for the community schools program.

bo, Executive Director, and David B. Cooper, President of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc.; James M. Pisciotto, Executive Director, and Robert P. Freeto, President, of the Newton Community Council; and Chester Mosher, Executive Director of the Newton YMCA.

Representing the Community Relations Commission were CRC Chairman William Glosky, who presided, Executive Secretary Mrs. Marjorie Zerlin, Mrs. Florence Rubin, Sol Kolack, and John Webber.

Alderman Adelaide B. Ball represented the Council on Aging.

From the schools were Superintendent Aaron Fink, media expert Robison, Emerson School Principal Donald Welch, Emerson P.T.A. President Mrs. Andrew Dean, Lincoln - Eliot School Principal Robert Jackson, Lincoln - Eliot P.T.A. President Mrs. Barbara Mooney, School Committee woman-elect Mrs. Dorothy Reichard, P.T.A. Council President S. Wendell Kravitz, and George Murphy, representative of the Upper Falls - Emerson School Community.

Also present were Jack C. Hoover, representing the Newton Rotary Club, and Oscar Spinner, representing the Chestnut Hill Rotary; Alan Levy, president of Garden City Trust; Mrs. Malcolm N. Jackson of the Newton Federations of Women's Clubs; John B. Penney, Recreation Commissioner; James Bilezikian, Chairman of the Youth Commission; Mayor-elect Mann and James Salter, of Commerce; Anthony J. Bib-

Symphony To Perform Work by Newton Youth

Among the works to be performed by the Newton Symphony at the Youth Concert this Saturday at Meadowbrook Junior High will be "Pastorale and March" a piece composed and orchestrated by David E. Jackson, son of Alderman and Mrs. David W. Jackson of 362 Wolcott street, Auburndale.

Michel Sasson will conduct. "Pastorale and March" was written last year when David was a student in Henry Lasker's Music Theory II class. It was premiered by the Newton High School Symphony Orchestra last spring at the annual concert of original compositions created by the Theory I and II students.

A member of the National Honor Society, David is now a Commonwealth Scholar at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst where he is playing bassoon with the concert band, is a member of the flute section of the marching band, and of the University chorus and is continuing his composition activities.

David's interest in music began at an early age with the study of piano, recorder, and flute at the All Newton Music School. At Warren Junior High and at Newton High he played with various school groups and with bassoon as an added instrumental accomplishment, he joined the High School Band. He was also a member of the Second Congregational Church Youth Choir and Smith Family Singers and Concert Choir at Newton High. In the past, theatrical productions have supplemented his musical activities.

Performances of the Youth Concerts this Saturday will be at 1:30 and 3 o'clock.

Newton Youth Gets Model United Nations Position

James F. Neely of 262 California St., Newton, was recently appointed an Under-Secretary-General to the National Model United Nations. The position has two functions: in an advisory capacity to the Secretary-General and the Policy-making Board; and implementing policy decisions made by that Board.

The NMUN is a forty-five year old organization run entirely by students. The NMUN attracts some 1300 college students representing colleges and universities from across the country. It is a simulation experience involving the representation of all member nations of the U.N. by each University's delegation. Thus, each attending member will be assigned a country to represent throughout the conference. The Conference is an annual one held at the Statler Hilton Hotel in New York City from April 25 through April 30, 1972.

Mr. Neely, a recent graduate of Political Science from Suffolk University, was chairman of his NMUN delegation at Suffolk and a Dean's List student in his Senior year. In his Under-Secretary's job, Mr. Neely will head Public Relations affairs for the NMUN aside from being New England Advisor to those schools attending the Conference from the New England States.

Closer to home, Mr. Neely was involved in both the Drinan and Carmen Campaigns. He has, since January, been Legislative Aide to Newton Representative David J. Mofenson. Having no immediate political aspirations, Mr. Neely plans to work "behind the scene" for a while to gain experience, and so will continue his work at the State House for Representative Mofenson.

Named To American Society of Notaries Arthur Galer of Newton has been elected to membership in the American Society of Notaries, a nonprofit organization of persons who hold the office of Notary Public.

Galer is owner and manager of People's Employment Service in Boston.

BEAUTY AND THE BOOK — While paying attention to the outside of their heads, Mrs. Vi Panaggio, Newton beautician, insures that customers pay attention to their insides by providing books for borrowing, on loan from the Newton Free Library.

NFL Reaches Out To Serve The Community

Bursting forth from the 104-year-old Newton Free Library building and its 11 branches are activities and programs planned by the Newton Free Library staff to "reach out" to the community.

The NFL's plan of action is notably evident in its Outreach Program — the effort of the staff to bring books, information and services to the community, and to bring the community into the Library.

Almost 50 per cent of the community uses the Library, according to Virginia A. Tashjian, Director; "now we want to involve the remaining population."

The Library's services that reach out range from special books and services for business to circulating art collection; from the creative activities thoughtfully planned for children to the Reader's Adviser and home delivery service for the Housebound; from the in-depth reference services to the film programs for all ages; to the Center for the Visually Handicapped, with its specialized one-to-one services for not only the handicapped, but for their teachers and friends.

From space made available to newsworthy and dynamic people who exhibit their paintings, photographs, new books and unusual collections, to the talks-demonstrations and facilities provided for clubs, special interest groups and community organizations, the Library staff indicates its willingness and readiness to reach out and respond to individual and group interests and needs.

While the staff's function to preserve, organize, and be a source of information is primary, the Newton Free Library has broadened its role to include the whole concept of community service.

Because information now has so many forms, including tapes, slides, microfilm, movies, music and computers, media is now all-inclusive and the NFL intends to be right at the center. The Library is not a privileged sanctuary for the few, but a place that's alive and eager to serve the community.

The Newton Free Library is reaching out to people in supermarkets and drugstores, beauty salons and adult education centers, homes for elderly and daycare centers and even is considering passing out paperbacks at ice skating rinks.

Outreach is committed to reaching out to the community to let them know what the Library can do for the community and also what the Library can do WITH the community. Reach out and use your Library soon.

Wave of Purse-Snatchings Reported Throughout City

Newton is experiencing a reported wave of purse-snatchings. A 77-year-old woman was pushed to the ground and her daughter-in-law's hand bag taken at 11:31 p.m. Sunday night when the two women, along with a neighbor, were accosted in front of their home at 38 Charlesbank Road.

Reported Mrs. Jennie Corrigan, 77, "I fought with them. I was determined that I wouldn't give up my bag. When they saw they couldn't get my bag, they kicked me in the shins, and I blanked out for a second and fell down. Oh, what an experience. I was shaking all day Monday."

Susan Hurd of Cambridge reported that an attempt was made to snatch her purse while she walked a baby carriage on Park St. near Burr Park in Newton Corner, at 6:15 Saturday night.

A bag containing $18 — later recovered with the money gone — was reported snatched from Alice Chiasson of Brighton on Carleton St. near Centre St. at 7 p.m. Saturday.

A pocketbook owned by Hilda Carson of Cambridge was taken at 242 Commonwealth Ave., Newton, at 7:15 Monday morning.

In other thefts, a purse belonging to Mary Brayston of Allston was filched from a table at 8 Hartford St., Newton Highlands, and a radio and $23 worth of checks were taken Tuesday from Quint's Greenhouse of 1585 Centre St., Newton Highlands.

The Laboratories employ a variety of sophisticated equipment, including a 2.5 million volt Van de Graaff linear accelerator (located near Auburn, Mass.), spectrographic, x-ray, and ultra-sonic devices.

Newtonite Is Named To Top AFS Position

Stephen H. Rhinesmith, of Newton, a twenty-eight year old former AFS International Scholarships student, has been named to head the twenty-five year old cultural exchange organization.

Edwin R. Mashback Jr., Chairman of the AFS Board of Directors, in a public announcement this week at AFS headquarters in New York City, stated that the consultant in international management will succeed Arthur Howe, Jr. as president on January 1.

Through AFS, the most extensive exchange program of its kind, over 60,000 youths either have come from 80 countries overseas to live and study in American communities or have been sent from American high schools to 59 countries overseas.

Rhinesmith, is a visiting lecturer at Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University in Medford, and the executive director of Development Research Associates, an international consulting group in new educational techniques. He will be the first president of AFS to have been one of its students.

Outgoing President Arthur Howe, Jr., who is retiring for health reasons, served during World War II with the American Field Service volunteer ambulance corps in North Africa and Europe. Following World War II, these drivers and their AFS predecessors from World War I, founded the high school cultural exchange program. Stephen Galati, Sr., an AFS driver from World War I, directed the program until his death in 1964.

Mr. Mashback noted Rhinesmith's "warm presence and great personal strength. We are fortunate to have found our man within the AFS family."

As a seventeen-year old AFS scholar, Rhinesmith went from Westbury, Long Island, New York to live for a summer with a Lutheran minister's family in a small German farming village.

Through friendships and interests formed as an AFS student, he spent the summer of 1962 living with a Norwegian family and working in a steel factory.

While attending Wesleyan University in Middletown, Connecticut, Rhinesmith worked for two summers at the New York AFS headquarters. There he coordinated activities for the over 3,000 students from abroad who arrive each summer in the United States to begin their year's stay.

Rhinesmith, during his undergraduate years, also attended the Goeth Institute in Ebersberg, Germany and the Free University of Berlin. He received a Master's Degree in Public and International Affairs from the University of Pittsburgh in 1966.

In 1968 and 1969, Rhinesmith directed a consulting firm involved in intercultural training and organizational development for government, business, educational and religious organizations. As director of international services for McBer and Company of Cambridge, from August 1969 until August 1971, he administered educational programs for both the Peace Corps and the United National Industrial Development Organization.

Rhinesmith, in addition to heading Development Research Associates, is acting as independent consultant to the U.S. Agency for International Development and is completing his doctoral dissertation for the University of Pittsburgh. He presently serves as national member association for American students who have gone abroad under the auspices of AFS.

He and his wife, the former Kathleen Alys Law, have one son. They currently reside in Newtonville.

U.S. JETS ATTACK MISSILE SITE 82 MILES FROM HANOI

U.S. JET PILOTS, undaunted by losses of five planes in three days, struck into North Vietnam Wednesday to attack a missile site 82 miles southwest of Hanoi in the closest "protective reaction" raid to the North Vietnamese capital in more than three years. Other American jets ranged across the Indochina skies to bombard Communist troops and installations in Cambodia, Laos and South Vietnam. In Laos, the commander of the 2nd Military Region, Maj. Gen. Lang Pao, ordered evacuation of about 10,000 military and civilian dependents from embattled Long Cheng, a key base that was raided Tuesday by Communist commandos. Military spokesmen said North Vietnamese troops who mounted a major offensive during the weekend and reoccupied the Plain of Jars in Laos, had now approached the defensive perimeter of the base and were reported about 12 miles northwest of Long Cheng. In Saigon, the U.S. command said two Air Force F105 Thunderchief jets attacked the Soviet-built missile site in North Vietnam early Wednesday and fired one air-to-ground missile apiece "with unknown results."

UNITED NATIONS ELECTS WALDHEIM AS SECRETARY GENERAL

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY of the United Nations elected Kurt Waldheim as the fourth secretary general Wednesday and bade an emotional farewell to U Thant of Burma, stepping down Dec. 31 after 10 years in the post. Waldheim, Austrian ambassador and career diplomat who has spent 16 years on the U.N. scene and served a term as his country's foreign minister, was recommended for the post in a closed meeting of the Security Council. The council's endorsement of Waldheim, 53, came when China withheld the veto that has killed his candidacy in two previous meetings.

BOMB IN TV SET BLOWS UP BELFAST ELECTRICAL SHOP

IRISH REPUBLICAN ARMY gunmen smuggled a bomb hidden in a television set through roadblocks of British troops Wednesday and blew up a Belfast electrical store, the army said. It was the latest incident in the outlawed group's campaign to reduce the capital to "a pile of rubble" by Christmas. With downtown Belfast swarming with British troops and police, three men lugged a television set into the J. C. Holland Ltd. electrical store, within sight of City Hall, and placed it on the repairs counter. "Then they whipped out guns, announced the television set contained a bomb, and fled," the army spokesman said. Customers and clerks rushed to safety. The bomb exploded 15 minutes later, causing no casualties but scattering glass and debris over a 100-yard area. The IRA, which seeks to unite predominantly Protestant Northern Ireland with the mostly Roman Catholic Irish Republic, vowed an intensive pre-Christmas campaign in retaliation for alleged torture of jailed IRA suspects.

FECTEAU TO SPEND CHRISTMAS AT HIS HOME IN LYNN

RICHARD FECTEAU, held prisoner by the Chinese Communists for 19 years, said Wednesday in Phoenixville, Pa., he would spend Christmas at his home in Lynn, Mass., and then return to the Army hospital where he is recovering from his ordeal. Fecteau, 44, gave newsmen at the Valley Forge Army Hospital a brief memorized statement saying, "fortunately, I'm going home for Christmas." Fecteau would not say when he would leave the army hospital, but sources indicated it might be today. He declined further comment "because there are still people in China. Any statement I make may be misinterpreted to the detriment of those in China." Fecteau's parents, his 21-year-old twin daughters, and his ex-wife live in Lynn. Accompanied by a male nurse, Fecteau told reporters he and Mary Ann Harvert, 26, who was also released by the Chinese Dec. 12, spent last weekend shopping for clothes in a nearby mall. Miss Harbert, taken prisoner when a pleasure yacht on which she was a passenger apparently strayed into Chinese waters four years ago, left Wednesday morning for her home in Palo Alto, Calif.

SEA LEVEL RISING AT AN 'UNPRECEDENTED RATE'

FROM MAINE through Virginia, the sea level has been rising "at an unprecedented rate" since 1963. If it keeps going up, shore resorts and industries will have a problem on their hands. The unusual sea level rise in the region was reported Wednesday by Steacy D. Hicks of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. He is a physical oceanography scientist with NOAA's national ocean survey. The water rise from Maine through Virginia seems small—about three inches in eight years—but the rate appears to be increasing, and this fact is what poses problems for the future. The sea level generally is going up elsewhere along most of our shores, but at a less rapid rate. In a few west coast areas, including Los Angeles, it is going down. Scientists aren't sure whether the sea is actually rising or whether the land is subsiding. Perhaps both events are occurring at the same time.

DPW OKAYS $300,000 CONTRACT TO STUDY HUB AREA PARKING

THE STATE Department of Public Works Wednesday approved a $300,000 contract for a study aimed at producing a master parking plan for the Boston metropolitan area. The year-long study, which will also look into parking problems in Cambridge and Salem, is to be carried out with the cooperation of the City of Boston and the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority. The project, to be conducted by Wilbur Smith and Associates, a transportation planning and traffic engineering firm from Hartford, Conn., would begin immediately after the Christmas shopping rush. It would be coordinated with the Boston Transportation Planning Review.

Mayor-elect Theodore D. Mann has been elected Secretary of the Massachusetts Mayors Association, it was reported today.

NCDF Slated For 2 Months Of Hearings

Crosby Sought For County Candidacy

Stephen P. Crosby, son of Newton Alderman Harry H. Crosby, has been approached by reform Republican Sheriff John J. Buckley, to run for the post of County Commissioner in the 1972 elections.

The chief executive responsibility in the county is shared by three county commissioners, two of whom—Frederick J. Connor and John F. Dever—are up for reelection in 1972.

Although he has not yet decided whether to declare his candidacy, Crosby commented that the 1972 election is "an opportune time for county reform."

"County government is visible for practically the first time ever," he declares.

6 Aldermen Block Approval Of Riverside Office Park

Six aldermanic opponents of the proposed highrise Riverside Office Park staved off a vote Monday night on rezoning of the project site.

The property, owned by Thomas W. Gilligan, is located along the Charles River adjacent to the Riverside Terminal of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority, near the Grove St. interchange of Rte. 128.

Alderman Louis I. Egelson of Newton Lower Falls presented a petition containing nearly 500 signatures yesterday to the Metropolitan District Commission, requesting that the MDC purchase or take by eminent domain the Gilligan property

A request for change of zone to permit construction of an access road connecting to Rte. 128 and an 11-story office building on the site, which borders the Charles River, has been before the aldermen since last summer.

The parcel is composed of two former MDC lots traded to Gilligan for a 30-foot strip of land, much of which is underwater, running along Instructions to enroll every eligible citizen in Newton as a voter have been issued by Mayor-elect Theodore D. Mann to Executive Secretary Alan W. Licarie of the city's election department.

The registration drive is to be launched immediately after Mann assumes office on New Year's Day.

Mann directed the city's election commissioners to draw up a plan to achieve that enrollment for next November's Presidential election.

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Simplicity One Of Wonders Of Birth Of Christ Child

Not the least of the wonders we commemorate this Yuletide season was the simplicity surrounding the Birth of the Christ Child.

A carpenter named Joseph, with his young wife Mary, went up from Nazareth to Bethlehem, the town of his fathers, to enroll for taxation, as the ruling Romans had ordered.

Bethlehem at the time was a simple hill town of no special consequence.

Joseph and Mary arrived late and weary to find that the inn was crowded. So they took shelter in the stable with the other late-comers. It was second-best, but humble travelers could not choose. It was shelter. There in the stable the Child was born.

Memorial School Holiday Workshop Scores Success

The students of Memorial School, grades Kindergarten through six, participated recently in a Holiday Workshop sponsored by the Creative Arts Committee of the P.T.A.

A choice of four exciting gifts were offered - chosen to enable the children to utilize their creative capacities and stimulate their imagination in making gifts for their Holiday giving at this season.

A recipe holder, ready to be assembled, painted and sprayed in a range of bright colors allowed many possibilities for individual taste as it shaped into animals, people, or just fun things; a scrapbook complete with colored paper, festive hard covers finished as you like it and ready to hold those special pictures and notes; macrame handcrafts including a choice of belt, necklace, an dsigned headbands adorned with multi-colored beads.

This project necessitated learning the "square knot technique" which will enable the children to pursue this art form at home. Bulletin boards, a popular selection with the children, provided a delightful gift ready to hang on a wall in pastel colors of burlap fabric covering triboard decorated with felt shapes and smile faces.

Members of the Creative Arts Committee and their assistants for this annual program were on hand to help children select the appropriate gift, work out the necessary ideas, and handle the various materials. A wrapping table was available to dress the gift in Holiday style.

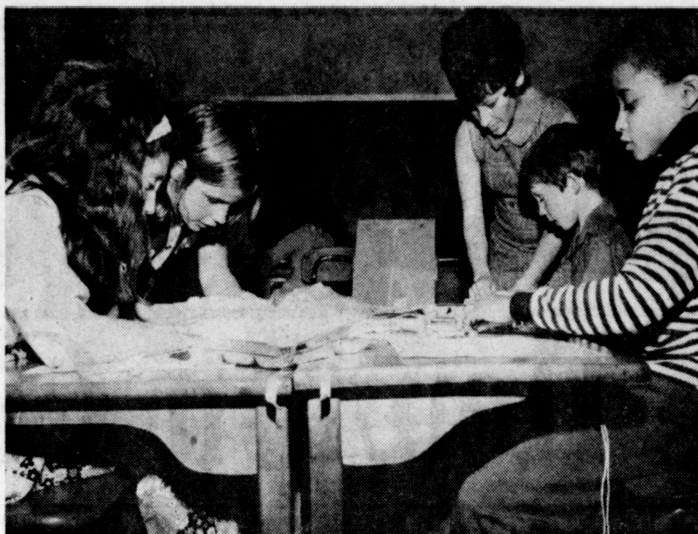

Mr. Jim Morrow, media specialist with the Oak Hill Technology Bank, was present with his portable video tape equipment to record this special event unique to Memorial School for presentation some time in the future.

Much appreciation is due to those who worked on this successful program. Iris Kingsbury acted as program coordinator. The ticket committee was Caryl Ann Feldman, chairman, and Mary Feld; Lorraine Kaplan, Barbara Stewart, and Ann Davidson.

Chairman of the recipe holder committee was Gloria Rosenzweig and members were Ruth Rotman, Elaine Kaplan, Diane Wilcom, Helene Scheinin, Stephanie Shapiro and Marsha Scheinin.

Amy Lezberg was chairman of the scrapbook committee whose members were Charlotte Bailey, Sandy Black, Lillian Newell, Barbara Mintz and Danielle Buckman. The Bulletin Board committee consisted of Sue Ulin, chairman, with members Mimi Cerler, Ina Seidman, Cynthia Steinberg, Marie Hauer and Harlan Hochberg.

The Macrame Committee consisted of Mary Ann Brodie, chairman, Julie Gorn, Maide Scheinfeld, Mary Hosmer, Marion Grennon, Marianne Breitstein and Sandra Rubin. Wrapping gifts were Roberta Seifer and Elaine Gabriel.

Aldermen-

The six aldermen, who cut off debate on the zoning petition by exercising their special parliamentary privilege under Section 11 of the city charter, were Harry Walen, Harry H. Crosby, Louis I. Egelson, Michael Antonellis, Arthur H. Sullivan, and David W. Jackson.

Under both the old and new city charter, one alderman can table or "charter" an item the first time it is brought up for debate. The second time the item comes up, five aldermen must rise to charter it. At both the Dec. 6 and Dec. 20 meetings of the Board of Aldermen, "charters" of the Riverside proposal were initiated by Lower Falls Alderman Louis Egelson.

Alderman Alan S. Barkin, chairman of the Aldermanic Land Use Committee, urged the Board to approve the zone change from unzoned and Manufacturing areas to Business Zone A, "as evidence to the customer (Sun-Life Insurance Co.) and the petitioner (Sprague Industries, general partner of Riverside Associates) that the Board eventually will be favorable to the project."

Barkin told his colleagues that approving the zone changes would not deprive them of control over the project, since the developers would still have to come in for permission to build higher than six stories, and to put the road over the corner of flood plain land.

He mentioned a number of conditions that could be placed on the permit for permissive use, including control over routes used by construction trucks, preservation of the existing footpath along the Charles, and the funneling of traffic from the office building onto Rte. 128.

An earlier NCDF proposal calling for 500 units on 10 sites, was turned down in June by a onevote margin on the Board of Aldermen.

NCDF's appeal is based on the new "anti-snob zoning law," Chapter 774 of the General Laws. Under the provisions of this law, the Housing Appeals Committee has already given the nod to low-income housing proposals in Hanover and Concord.

Hearings will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 9:30 a.m. Housing Appeals Committee offices are at 141 Milk St. in Boston. The Tuesday, Jan. 11 hearing has been shifted to Wednesday, Jan. 12.

Alderman Harry Walen added a coda to the discussion, by warning the aldermen that approval of a zone change could open the way for development over which the Board had no control. He cited "the one vote I regret" 12

Court Rejects Voters-

Heavy emphasis is to be placed on voter education. Election authorities are under instruction to utilize Newton's youth and its retired citizens to as full an extent as possible to assist in the registration, especially on the neighborhood level.

As of the November municipal election, Newton had 51,657 registered voters. The 1970 census reported there were 64,636 persons living in Newton who were 18 years of age or older.

Election officials say they probably would have to deduct between 500 and 1000 persons who claim to live somewhere else as well as about 1000 non-citizens.

It is believed there are 91,066 persons residing in Newton, with approximately 3700 of them in student dormitories. During the last political campaign it was estimated that there were 6661 boys and girls in the 18-19-20-year-old category in Newton and that about 3000 of these were registered. Many of the others, of course, could be students who actually claim to live with their parents in other cities and towns. The federal census counts all students who are living temporarily in Newton as Newton residents.

It also is estimated that 8000 Newtonites over 21 years of age have not registered as voters.

All Newton students now home for the Christmas holidays are urged by Executive Secretary Licarie to Kevin. They flew out on December 14 and returned to Logan International Airport last Saturday evening where they were welcomed home by a delegation from Newton.

BC Protesters On Probation

Six months' probation was meted out in Newton District Court Friday for 15 demonstrators arrested on Dec. 3 for occupying a building in an attempt to stop military recruitment at Boston College.

The protesters were found guilty of trespassing, which carries a maximum sentence of 30 days in jail and/or a $100 fine.

Boston College student Margaret Holland, 20, commented that the sentence is probably "exactly what the school wants."

"Six months — that's June. So they know they won't have any trouble for the year. Suppose they'd given us the maximum sentence. We'd be in jail for 30 days, but after that, we're free," she said.

The group of protesters, which included seven persons not listed as Boston College students, took over Hopkins House on College Rd. in Chestnut Hill, to protest what they called the University's "complicity" in the Southeast Asian War.

register as voters while they are home so they may vote in next April's Presidential Primary or the Municipal Election in March.

Licarie is planning to call a meeting of the Election Commission early in January to map the plan for the big registration drive.

the river channel. The petition asks that the land along with a third lot owned by the Penn Central railroad, be taken as a park.

Land on the Weston side, accessible from the Gilligan property by a footbridge, was formerly a recreation area with a swimming pool, boating, and picnic area, and is listed by the Metropolitan Area Planning Council as an area which should again be developed as a park, with skating, boating, and picnicking.

Egelson speculates that if the MDC does not take the land, and if aldermen vote (a hearing is slated Jan. 10) to approve the Riverside Office Park, citizens of the area may as a "last resort" start a petition drive to have the matter put on the ballot for referendum.

Under the newly-approved city charter, which takes effect Jan. 1, a petition signed within 20 days by 10 percent of the voters registered at the time of the last city election, would force the aldermen to reconsider their action. If the aldermen, upon reconsideration, did not reverse their previous vote, the matter would go on the ballot at the next election.

Egelson states that the approximately 500 signatures presented to the MDC were collected in five days, primarily in Lower Falls and Auburndale. A second petition, circulated in Waban, asked the MDC also to take a fourth lot in Wellesley, Office Building Site No. 6 of the Wellesley Office Park, across from Quinobeguin Rd. in Newton.

Planning Director E. Michael Ferris expressed doubt that the land would ever be taken as a park, whether by the MDC or by the city.

Although ideally, all land along the riverbank should be preserved in its natural state, Ferris said, this was unlikely to happen. Originally opposed to the office park project, he stated that revisions in the plans had answered most of his objections.

The developers had cut down on the density of development, eliminated plans to fill part of the river, redesigned the building entrance to face the MBTA station to encourage use of mass transit rather than cars, and submitted plans to compensate for additional automobile traffic, Ferris said.

The project has aroused extensive opposition from Auburndale and Newton Lower Falls residents, who contend that, together with planned expansion of the MBTA Terminal, the office will create a rush-hour traffic catastrophe.

These deal with the assumption by the State of a number of tax items related to county courts, educational functions, incineration and other factors in the local tax rate.

Commenting on his additional duties, Mayor-elect Mann said:

"From my experience as a legislator at the state level and as a Newton Alderman I am mindful of the great need for the Mayors of the state to maintain organized group action so that the financial plight of the cities and towns and their problems of the tax rate can be effectively highlighted and dealt with intelligently.

"If we are to cope with the problems we face there has to be a closing of ranks by municipal leaders and our elected state officials."

"The Mayors Association is an important instrument for such coordinated and cooperative effort."

"To that end we in Newton have already met and will continue to meet with our legislative representatives and other officials in a continuing effort to gain the desired objectives for the relief of the local property owner and taxpayer."

"My hope is that I can make a significant contribution to the work of the Association and that this will help the residents of Newton," Mann concluded.

the development, since they contend that all the remaining undeveloped riverbank areas along the Charles should be preserved in their natural state.

A reception with light refreshments will follow the exercises and will be held in the Auditorium of the War Memorial which is adjacent to City Hall.

The afternoon's events are open to the public and arrangements are being made to accommodate a heavy turnout.

On the following day, Sunday, January 2, at 8 p.m., there will be a reception tendered in honor of Mayor-elect Mann at the Marriott Motor Hotel.

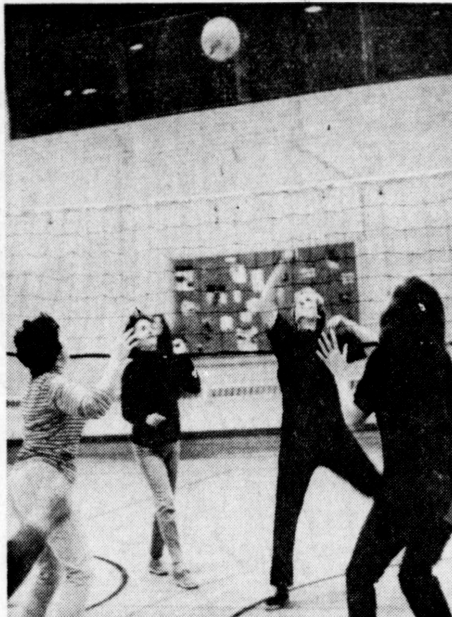

This event, which is also open to the public, is intended to give as many as possible an opportunity to greet the new mayor. Refreshments of coffee, punch, and pastries, will be served at this gathering, also.

Those who have not yet received invitations and wish to attend the Reception at the Marriott are urged to call the Inaugural Reception Committee at 969-4715.

Recreation Department Sponsors Many Programs For Newton Women

What does the Newton Recreation Department offer in the way of programs for the Garden City's gals?

An observer might find a partial answer to the question at the Emerson School in Newton Upper Falls where on Thursday evenings there may be 32 of the fair sex playing Volleyball or Basketball, or engaging in Gymnastics under the supervision of Recreation Leaders Jean Hayes Cole and Donna Hopkinson.

Similar activities for women are available at the Lincoln - Eliot School in Newton directed by Karen Ford, and at the Burr School in Auburndale, the Hyde School in Newton Highlands, and the Carr School in Newtonville. The programs at the latter three schools are co-sponsored by the School Department.

Toneastic Classes
Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle announces that another Toneastic Program has been scheduled for early next year. Beginning on January 11, the program will be conducted Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the Recreation Department Field House on Tyler Terrace, Newton Centre.

Volleyball League
Play in the Women's Volleyball League is underway with 110 women competing on eleven teams. The games are held at the Carr School, the Burr School and the Horace Mann School.

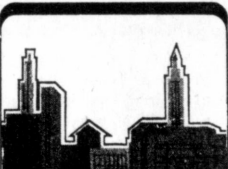

The League officials are Pat McMillan, Carolyn Stapleton and Janice Zobel.

Exercise Class
For those women looking to keep trim and fit there is an exercise class at the Lincoln - Eliot School.

Five Newtonites Attend Nursing Home Institute

Five Newton residents are attending an Institute for Nursing Home Administrators at Babson College in Wellesley. Classes include instruction in the principles of administration, health and safety standards, and economics of medical care.

The five are: Donald White-man of 58 Donna Rd., Newton; Robert Platt of 81 Deborah Rd., Newton; Edgar Karger of 168 Cynthia Rd., Newton; Arnold Neustadt of 115 Andrew St., Newton; and George B. Glass of 62 Fenwick Rd., Waban.

Problems-

An early-morning conference last Friday at 7:30 a.m. brought together Mayor-elect Mann and Public Works Commissioner Willard S. Pratt with private citizens and other department heads to discuss the problem of solid waste disposal. "We're getting input, trying to evaluate, concerned about taking the proper initiative, and trying to decide which way to go" declared Mann.

Planning Director Ferris has conferred with planning directors from Waltham and Wellesley, two communities which are part of a subregional group considering the possibility of compaction and sanitary landfill operations.

Since costs for the landfill program have not yet been worked out, Waltham is still interested in discussing the possibility of cooperation with Newton, Ferris reports.

Sharing of the Rumford Ave. incinerator with other communities is one alternative that the Planning Dept. intends to explore. Other communities could be invited to dump rubbish in the Newton incinerator, in return for sharing in the costs of the facility.

The incinerator has the capacity to take on the increased load, Ferris said, but this alternative would have to be studied to determine if it would aggravate the fly-ash problem, increase the amount of residue, and create additional operational and labor costs for longer hours of operation. The peak efficiency level of the facility must be determined, Ferris stated.

"If it turns out that bringing in other communities would increase pollution and costs to the City of Newton, we won't do it," he asserted.

The Planning Department is in touch with Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) official James A. Miller, who is also vice-chairman of the Newton Housing Authority. MAPC has just completed a study of the waste disposal problem.

In response to a question on the possibility of a regional recycling plant, as proposed by Alderman William Carmen last month, Ferris responded that recycling is an important aspect of the whole waste disposal problem.

He cautioned, however, that the financial impact on the city as well as ecological considerations would play an important role in the selection of any waste disposal plan.

The problem includes both

Named A Federal Reserve Counsel

William N. McDonough of Boston has been appointed assistant general counsel of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, according to an announcement by Frank E. Morris, president of the Boston Fed.

McDonough will assume official responsibilities in the legal department, effective January 1.

Born in Texas, McDonough attended Newton High School and the University of Denver. He received his Bachelor of Laws degree from Boston University in 1968, and his Master of Laws in 1970.

McDonough joined the Reserve Bank in 1969 as an attorney in the bank examination department. He became assistant secretary and assistant counsel in 1970. He previously served on the staff of Gadsby & Hannah, a Boston law firm.

collection and disposal, Ferris explained. There may be a need to increase the level of collection services to handle separate collections of bottles, cans, newspapers, and regular garbage.

"We would have to balance these costs with the revenue from sale of recycled materials," Ferris maintained, and pointed out that this may not be so easy to do. The purchasing department reports that recycled paper, for example, is "substantially more expensive" than the same quality of first run paper, Ferris said.

In addition to initiatives taken by Ferris and Mayor-elect Mann, the City Solicitor has put out feelers to the Environmental Protection Agency in Washington on the possibility of a grant which would allow the city to conduct a demonstration project on improvement of incinerators.

The letter is not an official application, but a suggestion of possibilities. "A lot of agencies are looking now for new projects that might demonstrate how problems can be solved at the local level," maintained Ferris, and he added, "We're beginning we're moving."

LAURIE KAYE

Laurie Kaye Recording Artist

The New England area has another sparkling recording star on the horizon with a soon to be released record featuring Laurie Kaye, a well-known vocalist from Newton Centre.

Both songs on the record were composed by Laurie. The song titles are, "Love Is" and "Just Yesterday." Each of these lovely compositions are representative of today's contemporary approach to what used to be the great and worthy ballads of years gone by. The initial reaction to Laurie's musical offering has been tremendous. A national record release is expected sometime in February.

Laurie Kaye's non-professional name is Mrs. Lorraine Katz. She is the wife of a prominent Boston Pharmacist, Harld M. Katz. They have two lovely children.

Miss Kaye's experiences in the music field are many. She is currently one of the most popular and frequently requested entertainers at all types of parties and functions. The specialized program that she uses as an entertainment format is so warm and personal that the audience's response is immediate and Laurie's engagement book is seldom anything but full. It is interesting to note that the professional career of this charming personality was launched via an introduction by Buddy Hackett at the Concord Hotel in the Catskills.

Laurie Kaye will now be expanding her career to include all types of club engagements and some special appearances on New England and national television.

Football For Christmas

To explain his refusal to cancel scheduled games as the whole nation mourned the death of John F. Kennedy in 1963, Pete Rozelle, then as now reigning head of the wealthy empire of professional football, wasn't given to wasting words.

He simply pointed out the schedule and the fact that a good part of the gate receipts were already in the till.

This year Christmas Day falls on Saturday. It also falls on a day which the National Football League has scheduled for post-season playoff games.

It isn't likely Commissioner Rozelle will become any more verbose as protests mount. If some are rash enough to complain there's some sort of conflict, that's too bad for them and for Christmas too.

Then there's the TV angle. TV has done much in recent years to boost the wealth of Mr. Rozelle's empire. There is probably good foundation for the belief of some that TV has made professional football what it is today. In Mr. Rozelle's book a contract is a contract and pro football's contracts with TV are something sacred. Besides, there'll be a lot of people spending Christmas Day at home and there are few living rooms today without some sort of a TV set.

In the last several years cartoonists, comedians and sports columnists have made much of the over-dose of football to which the nation is subjected on New Year's Day. Hour after hour television and radio sets poured out accounts of college bowl games. Hour after hour 'til mid-evening the "crucial" struggles on the field were related in minute detail to the point when repetitious commercials become like so many welcome punctuation marks.

However, that was New Year's. Somehow, the long-suffering public came to associate TV football with the day itself.

Maybe, professional football and TV can now take over Christmas. Those games carded for Christmas, 1971, are very important, as the announcers will assure TV-watchers time and time again between commercials. They will help decide the finalists in professional football's top extravaganza—the Super-Bowl.

Is it possible Commissioner Rozelle and the TV sponsors never heard about a little word spelled satiety? It has something to do with an old phrase which proclaims, "enough is enough."

24-Hour Ice Rinks

Another generation was obliged to depend on the vagaries of the weather to cut a Figure Eight or play Snap-the-Whip on a frozen ice surface. The few high schools which boasted organized hockey teams drew up their tentative schedules fully aware that a long stretch of above-freezing temperatures or a heavy fall of snow would mean cancellations.

Now, the Metropolitan District Commission announced that six of the rinks under its jurisdiction will be open 24 hours a day on Fridays and Saturdays. On top of that it has increased by 200 hours a week the skating time at 16 other rinks. Five rinks won't turn their lights out and send their patrons home until 3:30 a.m. on weekends.

For hockey and for pleasure skating that's a lot of time.

It isn't enough if the demand is any criterion.

Skating is a vigorous and healthful sport. Today it holds a grip on Boston's Metropolitan area which becomes more all-encompassing every year. And the end of the demand for more rinks is nowhere in sight as legislators well know.

Rinks cost money to build and money to maintain and while constituents can be valuable about the needs of economy and austerity, they can become quite red-faced when a neighboring town finally gets a rink and their town is forced to do without.

What's inspired the vast enthusiasm? Maybe, it's the Bruins. Maybe, it's the lavish ice shows to which Boston became enslaved back in the days when the late Walter Brown risked booking one of those early ice show productions into Boston Garden.

Maybe, it's just a natural development from those frosty days and nights when two cold steel skates were clamped on shoe soles and roaring fires on the shores of natural lakes and ponds made winter king hereabouts.

Yet, even in those days whoever dared dream of 24-hour ice rinks?

Mayor Basbas Praised By School Committee

Ed. note: The following letter was sent to Newton's outgoing Mayor by the School Committee.

To: Mayor Monte G. Basbas

Dear Monte:

We wish to commend you for a job well done.

Your relationship with the Newton School Committee over the years has been a good one. Although mayors and school committees - by the very nature of their offices - often look at community problems from different vantage points, there has never been any question regarding your commitment to public school education.

In very real terms, you have picked up the slack left by your predecessors. More has been accomplished in school construction during your term of office than during any like period in the history of Newton.

As city clerk and as mayor you have served the people of Newton well for 20 years. We are delighted to know that you plan to remain in Newton - and we know that the city will continue to benefit from your energies in the future.

ELECTRICAL SAFETY

For safety, be one-handed with the water-electricity contacts in the kitchen, the National Safety Council cautions. That means avoid touching an electrical current source with one hand while you contact a ground, such as a water faucet, with the other. And also, disconnect appliance cords at wall outlets. Dangling electric cords remain energized - and deadly if they fall into water.

MERRY CHRISTMAS 1971

Donald Welch To Retire As Emerson's Principal

It was with deep regret that the Newton School Committee at its regular meeting Monday night accepted the request for retirement of Donald T. Welch, Principal of the Emerson School, effective August 31, 1972.

Mr. Welch has served in various positions in the Newton School system since he came here in 1958. He was principal of the Claflin School from 1960 to 1962 and 1964 to 1968, Acting Assistant Superintendent for Instruction from 1962 to 1964, and since 1968 has been Emersons' principal.

He is a graduate of the Bridgewater Teachers' College and Boston University, with degrees in science and mathematics, elementary education and administration. Mr. Welch came to Newton with more than twenty years experience as a teacher, principal and superintendent in various Massachusetts school systems. He has published a textbook for mathematics, several articles in educational journals, and been a frequent participant in educational conferences in this state.

As Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink recently pointed out, Mr. Welch is particularly noted in the school system for his "unrelenting efforts to provide more realistically for those children traditionally lost in the academic shuffle, for his tireless determination to develop the idea of the community school within the Emerson community, and for his vigorous leadership in Title I programs throughout Newton."

Within the Emerson School district he has directed his energies to being in continuous touch with all aspects of school and community life - day night accepted the request for retirement of Donald T. Welch, Principal of the Emerson School, effective August 31, 1972. He is liked as well as respected by the children in his school and makes clear to children and parents alike his genuine desire to meet the many needs of the Newton Upper Falls district.

His departure will leave a large gap to be filled.

Frost on the Windows Weeps

It's still Christmas day, though the already-forgotten toys stand waiting in the dim lights of color, for the children to return and re-discover them, evening's coming on, and a girl sings softly from a record. she sings because this Christmas her husband is in jail. she sings of skies falling, and of love, and of saying farewell. (for there is a war in south-east Asia, and one in the middle-east, and one down the block.) she sings sadly and softly. the cat is asleep on the rug. the empty stockings are falling down, the fire has gone out, and the frost on the windows, is weeping.

- POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS -

Thus, the simple beginnings. Add the shepherds on the night hills, the appearance of the Angel, their journey to the stable, and it remains one of the least adorned of all the great stories we cherish.

It is as simple as the Man Himself and His teachings. It is as simple as the Sermon on the Mount, which still remains as the ultimate basis of Christian belief and, in its essence, of the belief of free men of goodwill everywhere.

There were the darks hills, with the little town among them. And in a stable was born One who came to speak to multitudes about freedom and fundamental rights. One who spoke in simple tongue, in terms of the beasts of the land, the birds of the air, the lilies of the fields, and of man's responsibility to man.

The kings and captains were marching up and down the land in full panoply, even as He was being born. In the end they seemed to silence Him.

But it is His simple words which still live, not theirs. It is the Birth in the stable we commemorate this holiday season, not the gathering at the crowded inn.

The moral involved seems to belong in a political column.

Kids Were Short-Changed In World War II Christmases

The kids were short-changed 30 years ago this Christmas and the three Yuletides to follow in 1942, 1943 and 1944.

The nation went immediately on a wartime economy. The lights were dimmed, and in some cases they went out.

On a sunny Sunday, later known as a "Day of Infamy," Dec. 7, 1941, the world as we knew it came tumbling down around us.

Things were grim and gloomy on that Christmas, 1941. They were worse than either we or our enemies realized.

There was no lack of patriotism as there is today about the war in Vietnam.

We were patriotic enough. We just weren't ready to fight a war against two powerful enemies—German and Japan—two nations, incidentally, whom we were later to boost into a great peacetime prosperity.

The news was mostly bad in the 18 days between Pearl Harbor Day and Christmas in December, 1941. Our troops retreated to Bataan.

Most of our Navy lay in shambles at Pearl Harbor. Two great British battleships were sunk. The American Firsters went underground. Tankers bringing us oil were sunk by Nazi submarines off New Jersey.

We had to do with what we could get for the kids for Christmas.

Christmas, 1942, was no better. Hitler's empire seemed invincible. Rommel ruled North Africa. But the tide was beginning to turn. We invaded Guadalcanal in August, 1942, we bombed Tokyo.

Brave men died in the icy waters of the North Atlantic as they tried to get merchant ships through to Murmansk.

We were building to the day when we could send powerful forces crashing into Hitler's Germany.

It was a long time coming, but it came in early June in 1944. The second front was opened, and we rejoiced.

But just before Christmas in 1944 Hitler's generals made one last dying gasp.

Out of the fog, the mist and the murk came an attack by von Rundstedt and great German tanks American intelligence didn't know existed. It was an attack planned to reach the Atlantic Coast - an attack that could have extended the war for years if it was successful.

But on Christmas Day, 1944, the sun came out, and American bombing and fighting planes turned the tide in that Battle of the Ardennes Bulge.

Brave Americans died by the scores, the hundreds and the thousands that Christmas Day of 1944. But their sacrifices won the war in Germany six months later.

In the days just before Christmas in 1941 men stood in line waiting to enlist in the armed forces—to fight for freedom and a free America.

Let's hope that this Christmas, 1971, we are on our way to ending a strange war on the other side of the world that will give us the best Yule gift we could have—a period of peace and goodwill among men.

McCarthy Should Be Running For Poetry Professor Post

What is a source of constant wonderment to this observer is the gall of some persons who ask the voters to elect them to high offices of trust and responsibility which also require qualities of ability and leadership.

Former U.S. Senator Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota is a case in point. A campaign button reads: "Gene Lives." That, according to a McCarthy aide, by some form of interpretation, is supposed to mean that Gene is alive, has pitched his tent somewhere and is willing to give the people an alternative in the selection of a President.

Somehow, that does not throw us into a state of excitement.

Recently, we were in the Middle West. We mentioned Eugene McCarthy, and several persons looked at us as if we should be hauled off to the funny house.

The Midwest is an area where McCarthy is well known.

It is not completely clear from where we sit whether McCarthy is running for the Democratic nomination for President or for leadership of a third party.

McCarthy got about every favorable break a candidate for President could get in the race for President four years ago.

Under a rather complicated system, in which McCarthy's name was on the ballot and Lyndon B. Johnson's was not, McCarthy's vote was undivided and Johnson's was split four ways LBJ polled a bigger vote than did McCarthy, but the then Minnesota senator defeated Johnson in New Hampshire. At least that's what the political experts said.

Robert Kennedy realized that Eugene McCarthy wasn't qualified to be President. So he rode into the fight against him and was assassinated in a Los Angeles hotel.

The hard but simple case against Senator McCarthy offered by the members in the U.S. Senate who like him and know him best is that he is not qualified to be President of the United States.

They say he would make a good professor of poetry at some college. They declare that he is disorganized, that he does not have the self-discipline a President must have. They say that at the close of the battle for the Democratic nomination for President in 1968 McCarthy's campaign was about as disorganized as it is possible to be and that his aides never were even sure whether he would keep an appointment.

After travelling through the Middle West, where McCarthy has no support whatever, this writer would the faculty of some university which doesn't mind if a faculty member occasionally forgets he has an appointment.

What Should Brooke, Sarge Do To Get Help From Nixon?

This writer recently travelled through the Middle Western heartlands and found the recovery of the economy was generally better in most of those states than in Massachusetts.

Unemployment was lower in areas such as Wisconsin and Illinois and other states which help to produce Republican Presidents because those sections generally are getting better treatment from the Nixon administration than in Massachusetts.

That raises an intriguing question which stems from a strange situation.

Massachusetts has two U.S. Senators, one Republican and one Democrat, and a Republican Governor, all hostile to the Nixon administration and its policies.

One can exclude Senator Edward M. Kennedy who is leading the Democratic criticism of Nixon.

Now the question arises whether Senator Brooke and Governor Sargent should put aside their policies and principles once in a while in order to get some federal funds for jobs for their constituents.

A good case can be made out to show that they should not do that, that they should stand by their principles and not worry about the hungry and jobless. A good many would disagree with that argument, especially those who are out of work and can't buy things they want for their children at Christmastide?

We're posing the question of what Brooke and Sargent should do for the people in their state. And we're pointing out most respectfully that Nixon probably will be in office for another five years.

Strange Situation Pops Up In Boss Daley's Cook County

An unusual controversy involving a protege of Mayor Richard J. Daley has developed out in Cook County in Illinois. It points out the importance and absolute necessity of giving a man a speedy trial after he has been indicted.

Men have been broken in health, spirit, financially and just about every other way under the strain of waiting to be tried after being indicted. Some such as former Republican House Leader Charles Gibbons have been cleared of any wrongdoing and then have died a few months later, not living long enough to really enjoy their restored respectability.

On the other hand, if they have done something for which they have been punished, they should be convicted and made to pay whatever penalty is imposed on them.

The story of Edward J. Hanrahan, a Daley protege and a great vote-getter out in Cook County, is an interesting one.

Mr. Hanrahan is the top legal officer in Cook County. He has been under indictment for two years. He was one of 14 police officers and legal aides indicted for conspiracy to obstruct justice in a raid on Black Panthers in December, 1969. Two of the top Black Panther leaders in Illinois were killed in the pre-dawn raid.

Now Mr. Hanrahan's first term is coming to an end, and the question arises whether he should be suggested that McCarthy apply for a job as professor on renominated to run as the Democratic candidate for a second term.

Should a man be prevented from running for reelection even though he has not actually been found guilty of any offense?

Should an elected office-holder, especially a law officer and the state's attorney for Cook County, be allowed to go before the voters and ask to be reelected?

Mayor Daley believes that the people should decide whether Mr. Hanrahan should be retained in office or thrown out and that a jury should decide whether he is guilty or innocent of charges levelled against him. Hanrahan is standing for a second term. The Democratic organization headed by Daley put him on its slate.

Not all Democratic leaders are enthusiastic about the idea. Senator Adlai Stevenson, 3rd, and Congressman Abner J. Mikva have blasted the action. Black leaders have criticized the move and have declared that it will cause thousands of black voters to shift to the Republican column.

Hanrahan is a graduate of the Harvard Law School and an extremely strong vote-getter. Polls indicate that he is leading all the Democratic candidates in Cook County.

He led the county ticket in 1968, topping his Republican opponent by 316,000 votes, picked up a strong law and order image and cut into the GOP vote.

As matters presently stand, things look bright for the Democratic party in Illinois and especially for Hanrahan who insists he will be vindicated. It also shapes up as an intriguing situation.

Crosby-

Edward Brooke, Crosby says, will probably be a shoo-in for re-election. Nor will the Drinan campaign be a "cause celebre" this time around, asserts Crosby.

In addition, reformers working for change in the prison system will discover that they must contend with the hole of county government in administering the prisons. It was through work on prison reform that Crosby met Pat Bensetter, chairman of "Citizens for Middlesex County" (CMC).

For all these reasons, the county commissioners' campaign is likely to attract the support of the bell-ringers and petition-passers necessary to challenge a local incumbent.

With a strong county-wide political organization left over from Buckley's successful campaign for Sheriff (against County Commissioner John F. Dever) in 1970, Crosby thinks prospects are good for a reform campaign.

CMC is holding a caucus in mid-February — probably February 19 — to nominate candidates for the County Commissioner's race.

Since the Republicans in Middlesex County have rarely fielded candidates for the Commissioner's post, Crosby is unlikely to have much trouble winning the Republican nomination.

But before he resigns his present post as administrative assistant to Lt. Governor Donald R. Dwight to devote his energies to a county campaign, Crosby is weighing the chances that CMC candidates may defeat both incumbent Commissioners in the Democratic primary.

CMC members are primarily Democrats, Crosby says. If CMC-endorsed candidates win both slots in the Democratic primary, "the Republican will be left holding the bag," Crosby declares.

The organization has not yet decided whether to run two candidates in each primary.

Crosby also feels that he may have influence over a broader range of policies through his position as Dwight's administrative assistant.

In this post, he is responsible for interviewing of personnel, and is Dwight's right-hand man on the Lt. Governor's newly designed special areas of responsibility, which include education, manpower, and consumer affairs, and economic development.

Presently involved in developing the legislative program in educational affairs, Crosby is unsure whether he wants to leave his present job to run for county commissioner. "Middlesex County is a small piece of the pie, but on the other hand I would be more independent there," he states.

How did Crosby, whose father is a Democrat active in Newton politics, end up on the Republican side of the fence? "You have to understand it in the context of state politics," declares Crosby.

In 1967-68, Crosby, then a Democrat, began thinking about running for state representative in the district now represented by Paul Guzzi and Paul F. Malloy.

He went to talk to several state officials, including present State Senator Irving Fishman and Brookline Representative Martin Linsky, and was much influenced by Linsky's thoughts on the importance of maintaining a two-party system at the state level, Linsky asserted, party alignments should not be based on ideology.

"I can vote however I choose on the national level," explains Crosby, "but on the state level, the Democratic party is so full, so fat, that a new, young,

At this meeting the sum of $49,500 was pledged, which now brings the total pledges to over the half million dollar mark.

Sentimental Farewell For Board of Aldermen

Aldermen lingered until 2 a.m. Monday night for a sentimental send-off for the 1970-71 Board. Two large white cakes decorated with blue and orange lettering, designed and baked by Mrs. Emily Lipof, praised the aldermen for "A Job Well Done."

The cake was served in the committee room, which is decorated with pictures of past Boards. "That's my life on that wall," Board President Wendell R. Bauckman mused earlier. He is now moving to the post of President.

emeritus after nearly 20 years as leader of the Board. In a sentimental flurry, he called for pictures of the farewell cake, and thanks to Mrs. Lipof and Mrs. Sheila Farnese who prepared coffee for the aldermen.

Aldermen stood in silent remembrance of the late Pasquale J. Antonellis, recently deceased father of Alderman Michael Antonellis.

Then the Aldermen paid tribute to outgoing president Bauckman, who will remain as a member of the Board.

Retiring Alderman William H. Wolf praised Bauckman's "exemplary fairness, integrity, and wisdom" and his "magnificent example of public service."

Bauckman thanked the chairmen of the aldermanic committees, and expressed gratitude for the "devotion" of all the aldermen. "This experience has to live with a person as long as he has a conscious thought," Bauckman declared.

Retiring Alderman William Carmen introduced a resolution to have the city acquire the Chestnut Hill Country Club as a municipal golf course to be named the Wendell R. Bauckman Golf Course. The resolution was referred to the 1972 Board.

Alderman Harry H. Crosby said, "I don't want to be maudlin or corny, but I would like to hear remarks from all the outgoing aldermen."

Miss Adelaide Ball led the closing statement by recalling her first Board meeting 16 years ago. "My knees were shaking," she said, and added, "And the other aldermen didn't know either what would happen with a lady on the board."

She expects to see many of the aldermen at City Hall, she said, in her capacity as Chairman of the Council on Aging.

Wolf called his four years on the board a "unique experience." "Notwithstanding sharp differences of opinion, I am impressed that every board member is completely concerned with the best interests of the city. Not one was ever malicious or self-seeking. I wish people knew the calibre of the men on the Board," he declared.

Carmen asserted that he hoped to make a "continuing contribution" to the city as a private citizen. He had earlier noted his intention to pursue study of problems such as recycling of rubbish, with a view to continuing to push for action from the city.

Many of the items remaining on the Board's docket of unfinished business were referred to the 1972 Board of Aldermen. But certain items were allowed to die with this Board.

Among items to be given a "top priority" under the new Board is a proposal for "cluster - type zoning" and planned unit development submitted by Newton Conservators, Inc.

Referred to the 1972 Board were: a proposal by Alderman Antonellis requiring a two-year wait before re-applying for a zone change that has been turned down by the board; a proposed ordinance by David W. Jackson requiring allotment of one - and - a - half parking spaces per unit in new apartment construction; a proposal regulating out-door advertising; development or expansion proposals by the Woodland Apartment Trust, the Stewart - Pryor Nursing Home, and 128 Realty Trust.

Allowed to die with this Board were: the Mayor, Monte G. Basbas' appointment of Msgr. John M. Quirk to the Newton Redevelopment Authority; recommended amendments to the zoning ordinances for low and moderate - income housing; and a Land Use Committee Resolution on the Newton Community Development Foundation.

The Board voted to approve a transfer of funds (no new appropriation involved) to pay for design of two additional classrooms to accommodate students from St. Bernard's parochial school, now closed, in the proposed Davis School Annex.

The Board also approved an emergency transfer of funds from the street maintenance and administrative accounts to cover this week's salary for rubbish collectors.

Recreation Dept. Readies Skating Areas In Newton

Recreation Commissioner John B. Penney reports that maintenance crews have prepared all skating areas in the City. All that is needed now is some very cold weather over an extended period to freeze the ice to the required thickness.

The natural skating ponds under the jurisdiction of the Newton Recreation Department are Ware's Cove, off West Pine St., Auburndale; Bullough's Pond, Commonwealth Ave., and Walnut St., Newtonville and Crystal Lake, Lake Ave. and Rogers St., Newton Highlands.

These areas need a minimum of 4 1/2 inches thickness to be operated. The ice is planned and broomed daily during the season. Warming shelters, supervision and night lighting are available in these areas.

Flooded Tennis Courts
 Flooded tennis courts for skating are maintained at Boyd Park, Lincoln-Eliot School; Newton Corner; Hamilton School, Newton Lower Falls; Highlands Playground, Dedham St.; Newton Upper Falls Playground, Chestnut St.; Memorial School, Oak Hill Park and Ward School, Newton Centre.

Pair Arrested Yesterday For Armed Robbery

Newton Police arrested two men yesterday (Wednesday, Dec. 22) in connection with an armed robbery three hours after the crime was committed.

The case began about 9:30 a.m. when Carmine Merullo of 261 Derby St., West Newton, phoned Police Headquarters to state that a man had forced his way into his home by flourishing a handgun, pressed it into his stomach, and locked both him and his wife into their upstairs bathroom. He took Mrs. Merullo's purse containing $101, and fled.

Acting on the off-duty observations of Newton Police Lieutenant William Dowling, who chanced to see a suspicious car with two men in it near the Derby St. address, a pair of suspects was traced to Somerville, where they were arrested at noon.

The two men accused of unlawful possession of firearms and unlawful entry to commit a felony are James R. Poirier, 37, and John J. McMullen, 27, both of Somerville.

Poirier was freed on $7500 bail. McMullen, unable to raise the bail, was taken into custody yesterday afternoon at the Middlesex County House of Correction in Billerica.

Over 700 Items Are Collected In Carr and Cabot's Holiday Drive

In keeping with the spirit of the recent Thanksgiving Holiday, students from the Carr Elementary School and the Cabot Elementary School in Newtonville undertook the collection of canned goods and a turkey to be used by low income families from the Newton Community.

The idea for the drive came from the students at each school who felt that they would like to provide a tangible service project in Newton. Each of the schools contacted the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. who offered their support to the undertakings and provided the system and procedures for getting the goods to a number of recipients serviced by the agency.

Coordinating the activity at Carr School was Miss Sally Webber and at Cabot School Mrs. Mary Frienore of the faculty and Mrs. Alice Drew, a classroom mother. George Galucci is the Principal at Carr School and Mrs. Mary Winslow serves in the same capacity at Cabot School.

Anthony J. Bibbo, Executive Director of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. stated that over 700 items, including a complete turkey dinner, were received from the two schools, and distribution was coordinated by G. Michael Gardner through Mrs. Ginger Denham, Mrs. Carol Robinson, Miss Edith A. Babkey and Miss Bonnie Algeri, all of the Centers' staff.

The Centers has been in receipt of many messages of gratitude by a number of the recipients. Letters were sent to each of the two schools commending all who participated in these two projects signed by Mr. Bibbo. He thanked all the participants on behalf of recipients and staff and added his sincere wish that all would benefit from the rewards inherent in helping others.

In addition, each school, through student representation was presented framed certificates of appreciation from the Newton Community Service Centers and a special award entitled "Operation Kindness Service Award" provided by the Massachusetts Dept. of Education and United Community Services of Metropolitan Boston.

Garden Club's Flower Show On December 21st

The Christmas season was ushered in Tuesday morning (Dec. 21) for members and guests of the Newton Centre Garden Club with a "Mini Flower Show" of arrangements complimenting Christmas cards using all natural material for the individual displays. Members of the club participated with a display of their Christmas treasures.

The location was the First Baptist Church in Newton Centre with Fellowship Hall decorated beautifully for the Christmas season. Mrs. Otis E. Stephenson of Newton Centre and Mrs. Philip A. Ingwersen of Waban were the artistic coordinators of this festive event.

Hannukah Is Observed At The Schechter School

Students at the Solomon Schechter Day School in Newton Centre observed Hannukah with holiday skits presented throughout the week, each grade selecting one symbol or aspect for interpretation in either a flight of fancy or serious treatment depending on the level or inclination of the class.

All are familiar enough with Hannukah to take almost for granted the overt symbolism of the holiday — the candles, the latkes, the fight for religious freedom of the few against the many, the horrors of the attempted conversions. The 2nd graders rendered the Hannukah-oriented nightmares of a little boy who ate too many latkes and the sixth grade presented a cruel man's deserved but ingenious punishment, leaving the observer with the feeling that these children were reacting to and using elements of their own experience.

And, being children, they also accept the happy addition of gift-giving as an adjunct to the commemoration of the victory of their ancient predecessors. This is one "symbol" they would never take for granted or depart too far from.

Newton High School Teams Swing Into Full Gear

Hingham Takes Newton 4-2 In Saturday's Ice Opener

By DAVID SOLOMON

Hingham's hockey team is rated the second best in the Suburban League this year, and they exhibited some of the reasons to Newton last Saturday. The sometimes-spirited Tigers were outplayed in their 4-2 loss at the Boston Arena.

Hingham opened the game's scoring with 45 seconds left in the first period. A Hingham player swung left around a Newton defenseman and flipped it into the far corner.

Hingham upped their lead at 8:07 of the second period on a slap shot right after a face off. Newton then began to put their strongest pressure in the Hingham end, getting off some good shots. But the Tiger defense was notably weak, and goalie Tim Pitts was consistently called on to make key saves, often on breakaways.

Finally Newton's co-captains accounts for their first goal. Jimmy Fay came down center ice, around one player and passed to Wally Cox on the left-wing side. Cox had an open shot and fired it into the far corner. The hard shot was about one and a half feet off the ice.

Hingham earned a two-goal lead once again at 1:53 of the final period. But Newton behind some strong goaltending by Pitts, stayed in the game and finally closed the gap at 8:32 of the twelve minute period. In the midst of a goal-mouth scramble Wally Cox passed from directly behind the net to Jimmy Fay in front, and Fay made it 3-2. But a minute and sixteen seconds later Hingham came back and put the game out of reach.

Newton's first line for the game consisted of Walter Cox centering for Jim Fay and Mark Donovan. The second line showed Dirk Pittman between Steven Chapman and Mark Howley. Fred Whoriskey and Mark Connolly did most of the defensive work, with Cal Mofie also getting a lot of ice time behind the blue line.

An Interview With "Coach Of The Year" Jim Ronayne

By DAVID SOLOMON

Newton High football coach Jim Ronayne was singled out on December 15 as "Coach of the Year" at the Globe All-Scholastic Awards Dinner.

Ronayne and his coaching. In the two previous seasons staff brought a small and underrated Tiger griddler squad to a Suburban League title this year with an 8-1 overall record. The Tigers placed second in Class A according to the Globe-Herald ratings, and were first in the Record American.

Ronayne cited the great dedication of this year's squad as the reason for their great success. "This team was a perfect example of boys never giving up on themselves. They stuck with the program and proved that dedication can bring success."

Ronayne first came to Newton in 1958, and after starting Newton South's football program in 1960 and 1961 with Norm Walker, returned to Newton in '62. Since then he has coached varsity football and golf, and junior varsity hockey. His football team won the State Title in 1968, and the coach-teacher-golf pro has also led Newton to two State Golf Championships.

The 48-year old coach played baseball, hockey and football at B.C. High. In college he earned letters on football, baseball, hockey and track teams. He played simultaneously on the latter two Ronayne graduated from Holy Cross as a pre-law student. He received a Masters in Education at Boston University. He also served in the Marine Corps during World War II and the Korean War, and was an officer in reserves until his retirement last year.

Ronayne commented in a recent interview that "my experiences as a platoon leader in World War II made me decide to become a physical education teacher and a coach. I had originally planned to be a lawyer, but the close relationships I had with young men in the Marines - especially in recreational aspects - led to my decision. I have never regretted this choice."

Ronayne began his high school coaching career in 1947 at Sterling (Mass.) High. Before coming to Newton in '58 he coached at several other schools, including a six-year stint at East Boston High. "The greatest value of high school sports," professed Ronayne, "is that it teaches an individual to succeed within the rules of the game. Individual and team success is not just winning - which is overemphasized - but can be improvement, attainment, and progression. I think maturity of character can also be gained through sports."

"Sports," continued Ronayne "do not necessarily make a good person from a bad one. To succeed you must begin with certain qualities. But I think the combined physical-mental challenges sport can give a young man are unmatched in any other extra-curricular activity. . . This is not always the case, but in the light of our society I think sport measures up well."

Following this same line of thought, Ronayne called his greatest satisfaction as a coach, "watching young men grow through the ages of 15-18. This includes not only as athletes, but as people." His biggest thrill as a Newton coach came in 1962, his first season as head football coach.

South Elects Tri-Captains In Football

Newton South High has elected football tri-captains for the 1972 season.

It will be the first time in ten years since the Lions have had three captains.

Quarterback Ned Moan, end John Staulo, and tackle-linebacker Andy Moynahan will split the leadership chores.

South had tri-captains in 1962 when Richard Thayer, Bob Primack and Dave Anderson were leaders. Lions also elected tri-captains for 1968. Tom Rezzuti, Frank Vespa and Danny Mendelson were chosen, but Mendelson died tragically during the summer during an operation.

Newton South High held its annual fall sports banquet last week and presented 106 letters, including 55 varsity and 51 junior varsity letters. Twenty-five varsity letters were awarded in football; 23 in soccer, and seven in cross-country.

gates in New England, and especially considering the conditions, our program is tremendous."

Another of Ronayne's greatest satisfactions has been working with members of Newton's athletic department. Ronayne has also had a close coaching relationship with Norm Walker, NHS English teacher. The two men have coached together at NHS and NSHS since 1958 (except for two years when Walker taught at Wayland). Ronayne expressed regret that his co-coach could not also have been co-receptor of the coaching award. "Every year provides new stimuli for me," concluded Ronayne, "and I take great pleasure from the relationship of working with young men. If I have played a little part of some boys' mental and physical growth then my experiences have been worthwhile."

Newton's Female Athletes Prepare For Winter Slate

By DAVID SOLOMON

There are numerous people around Newton High who will consistently insist that boys are not the only ones who compete in athletic events. It should rightfully be remembered that to the participants in the girls' athletic program, sports is just as important an experience as it is to boys. Newton's girl athletes show just as much determination and work just as hard as their male counterparts do. Newton High will field two girls' teams this winter. Both the girls' basketball and girls' gymnastics team are coming off excellent seasons in 1970-71 and naturally are hoping for more of the same this winter.

Girls' Gymnastics

Last season the girls' gymnastics team accomplished a 9-0 season and topped the Northern League standings for the third straight year. According to Newton coach Mrs. Henry, this dynasty has a good chance of continuing. "We should be comparable to or stronger than last year's team," commented Mrs. Henry. "Our chances for winning the league appear good."

The Tigresses have always had small squads over the past number of years, but this year's is the smallest. Only seven girls will compete on the varsity level. "The reason for this small number," explained Mrs. Henry "is that for the first year we have girls competing in each of the four events. . . Our girls have been improving each year and how we are competing on a closer level with collegiate standards."

Leading the Newton team will be their senior captain Gail McCarthy. She will compete in all four events; floor exercise, vaulting, high beam, and parallel bars. Junior co-captain is Nancy Brunswick who competes in the floor exercise. The only other member of last year's varsity on the squad is junior Susan Needel. She will be in the floor exercise, vaulting and beam; Joanne Greene is up from last year's junior varsity and will be in the floor exercise. Three sophomores have made the team; Jenny Barber, Margie Magraw and Ann Hurwitz. The first two will compete all-around, while the latter competes on the bars.

With only one senior among the varsity girls, Mrs. Henry pointed out the fact that "we really can't be sure how this inexperience will affect us until the first meet. The ability is there, but we're still unsure how some of the girls will react in competition."

Mrs. Henry commented on the qualities which make a good gymnast: "A girl must have self-discipline, self-understanding, physical strength, flexibility and grace, and must have the ability to function both as an individual and a team member."

The Newton varsity team will compete in eight meets this winter. The opener is most balanced team in the

South Gymnastic Team Has Five Vets Returning

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Newton South High begins its third year of gymnastics with a relatively inexperienced team. The Lions return only five lettermen from last year's squad.

Coach Tom Steeves, who has tutored the gymnasts since their inception, is looking forward to a rebuilding year. There are only four seniors on the team and 21 underclassmen.

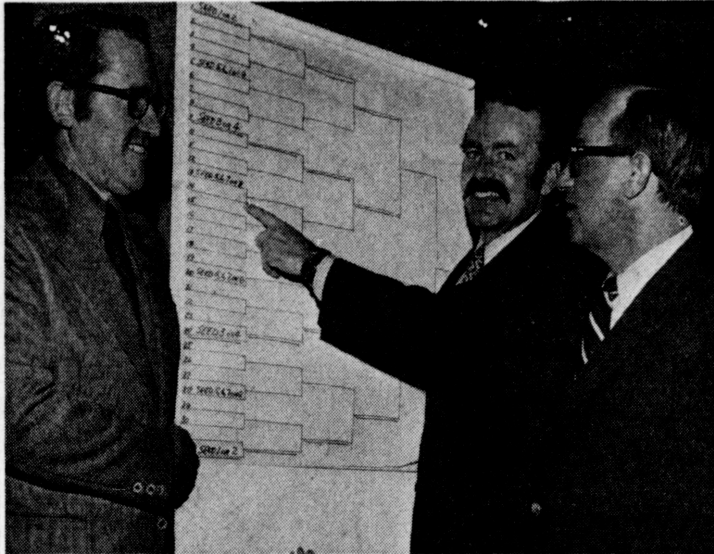

Sorely missed from last year's team will be Andy Cohen, captain and leading point-scorer, who placed in three or four events a meet. South does not have anyone to replace him, nor the depth to make up for his loss.

The team is led by co-captains Mary Curtis and Sue Martin. The former starts at guard with Doreen Quintilliani. The latter is a forward. Linda Maregni will be seen at the other forward spot, while Paula Dargan and Beth Schwab will alternate at center. Other varsity players are June Brenner, Judy Capello, Sue Dalton, Sue Ekejian, Mary Eve Mahoney, and Linda Quintilliani.

The team has had two scrimmages so far, and have lost both. The team was "disorganized" when trounced by powerhouse Lincoln-Sudbury, 44-20. But in their next scrimmage Mrs. Harrington felt the team "started to come around. . . We showed moments of grandness, and the players seem to be clicking." Newton lost this one to Wayland by a 35-25 score.

According to Coach Harrington the team suffered from "lack of good outside shooting and strong rebounding." Thus the team will be concentrating on their shooting and boxing-out ability. On defense the Tigresses will use what amounts to a 2-1-2 zone. Each player will then be responsible on a man-to-man basis with whatever opponent is in their zone.

The female hoopers were 8-2 in league competition last season, and are aiming to finish. Mrs. Harrington referred to Arlington as the "best, most balanced team in the

South Wrestlers Topple Needham 27-22 In Opener

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN

Newton South High staved off a serious challenge by Needham High and fought back from a 22-11 deficit to win its opening day wrestling match, 27-22, last week.

The Lions were forced to capture the last four matches of the contest in a row to come out on top after losing five straight earlier.

Heavyweight Lenny Adelman was the decisive factor. With the score knotted 22-22 in the last match Adelman flipped his opponent Steve Kaiser and won by a pin.

Preceding Adelman's clutch triumph, Mike McDonald, 157-pound class, Jim Sellinger, 169-pound division, and Wayne Vespa, 187 pounds, all registered points to bring about the tie. McDonald and Vespa each won by shutout decision, 1-0, and 4-0 respectively, while Sellinger scored a pin. Sellinger and Vespa are both younger brothers of former Newton South all-star football tackles and championship wrestlers. Phil Sellinger graduated in 1967 and Frank Vespa graduated in 1969.

Other South winners were Al Gird, by pin, in the 107 pound class and co-captain Mike Forman, on a decision at 114 pounds. Losses were inflicted on Mike Shockett, 100; Howie Frutkoff, 121; co-captain Rich Hill, 128 (a 3-2 decision); Paul Murphy, 134; Dave Berkowitz, 140; and Brian Corcoran, 147 pounds.

Judging from the first match South is not as strong as last year's 15-1 team. This is to be expected. The lower weight classes seem weakest and the higher weights impressive after one showing. Each of the last four grapplers labored with the pressure of knowing that his match was the difference in the team match, and each responded with victory.

Needham always puts up a good fight against the Lions, so it was a tough opener for coach Aredis Kojoyian's experienced crew. With only Forman and Hill back from last year's first string, the Lions may take some lumps this season.

An added problem is Dave Lechhook. Lechhook, counted on to be a front-liner at 187 pounds or unlimited, injured his leg during the football season and may not be able to wrestle at all this winter. His status will be determined in the next two weeks.

The South wrestlers face Walpole and Wellesley this week.

New Hours For Daly Ice Rink

The Metropolitan District Commission has announced that the Daly Ice-Skating Rink in Newton will be open 24 hours on Fridays and Saturdays.

In addition, the rink will be open until 1:00 a.m. on Sundays through Thursdays, an hour later than the previous midnight closing time. Further information concerning the rink's schedule may be obtained by calling 527-1741.

Dirk Pittman At Newton High

Last week's Newton South hockey preview by Lewis H. Freedman (assistant sport editor) mentioned that junior Dirk Pittman will be starting at forward again for South's ice-men. Freedman mentioned that Pittman is considered able to become one of South's best hockey players ever.

Pittman has transferred to Newton High School in September, and is presently a frontliner on Newton High's hockey squad.

The default rates among student recipients of federally insured higher education loans are running close to four to six per cent, the American Association of State Colleges and Universities reports.

Tigers Barely Nip Lions; Ken Billings Newton Star

By DAVID SOLOMON

"It was a gift, but we'll take it." So spoke Newton basketball coach Jerry Phillips after the Tigers edged Newton South 60-56 last Friday.

The game featured an ex-points. Ed Beckler, also a citing, last-minute Newton junior was second and Newton comeback led by juniors Ken Billings with eleven points. It was the Billings and Bernie Hinteregger. Newton had led for most of the game, but with 3:10 left South broke a Newton stall and went ahead 52-51. The Lion then added another basket to give them a three point margin. Ken Billings then scored for Newton, but his basket was matched immediately by South. With 1:22 left Newton had the ball, and Ed Beckler made one of two foul shots to bring the score to 56-54. Bernie Hinteregger came up with the big play on Beckler's missed second shot. The junior forward came down with the rebound and layed it in to tie the score. With 27 seconds left Hinteregger then stole the Lion's in-bounds pass and the Newton offense set-up. Twelve seconds later, Billings scored on a magnificent driving layup, and Newton had their necessary lead. South had a foul shot after this, but Hinteregger pulled down the rebound, and Billings hit for two at the buzzer to cap the comeback.

Up until the close of the game, Newton South never led in the ballgame. The Tigers came out strong, and built up a 18-7 first quarter lead. Ten of these points came on foul shots, as South was erring all over the place. Ken Billings was penetrating especially well, and was consistently rewarded by being fouled. He had five first-quarter points. Sophomore Peter Laskaris looked very strong under the boards during this period, and Danny Curtis handled the ball well in the backcourt. Constant captain Ben Press was well - consistent. The other starter was Steve Platt. Early in the game Newton looked much quicker than their cross-town opponents, but then they began to make mistakes.

South settled down in the second period. They committed many fewer fouls, worked an effective press, and outscored Newton 17-15. The Lions nearly caught up with two minutes left in the half. They brought the score to 24-22, but a Newton spurt left the halftime score at 33-24.

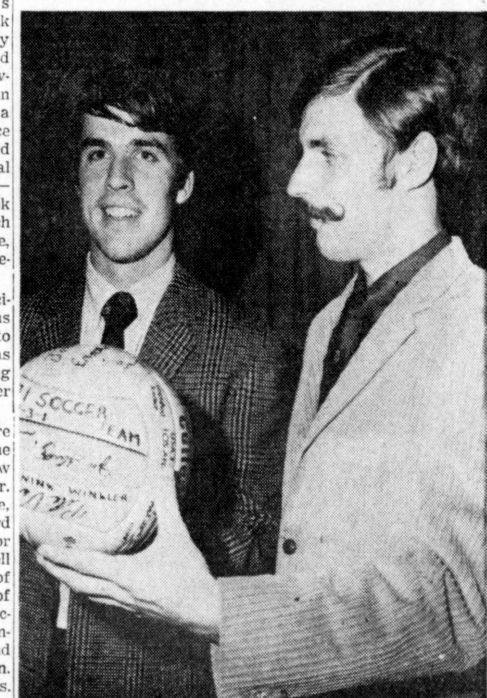

South again outscored the Tigers in the final two periods. In the third the margin was 15-14. Thus Newton led 47-39 going into the final quarter. Ben Press fouled out of the game midway through the third period, and this undoubtedly hurt Newton.

South outscored Newton 17-13 in the final quarter but as described earlier, Newton hung on. Billings had eight points in the fourth quarter, while Ed Beckler had three, and Hinteregger two.

Ken Billings was high scorer in the game with nineteen points. Then, there are many others who have helped me. Ones like Joe Dente, Jim Mamarchev, John Adams, Ray Copland, Clare deBoer, Fr. Furber, Sandy Stewart, John Weil, Randy Mitchell, Bob Ellis, Joe Freitas, Chris Williams, Stan Wilco, Jim Powell, The BAYS, Phil Woosnam, The Soccer Review, Astronaut James A. Lovell, North American Soccer League, Lamar Hunt, Salv Atria, Bill McCall, Sr., Bill McCall, Jr., John Burles, Dedham Youth Soccer, Mass. Soccer Association, Bay State Soccer Referees Association, Norwood Kickers, and all the others, too numerous to mention.

Finally, I would like to thank all of you who read my column - even if you don't agree with what I have to say. Without you, there wouldn't be any "Soccer Talk."

Again, thank you all very much and may all of you have a very Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Judaic Studies Program By Hebrew Coll. and JVS

Newton students interested in Judaic Studies should take note of a new joint college counselling program about opportunities in this field initiated by Hebrew College and the Jewish Vocational Service.

The announcement was made jointly by Dr. Eli Grad, President of Hebrew College and Dr. Simon Hoffman, executive director of JVS. Both agencies are constituents of Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

The purposes of this innovative program are:

1. to guide students of the Prozdor (high school) division of Hebrew College in investigating joint or cooperative programs between Hebrew College and other universities;
2. to encourage Prozdor students who plan to attend universities out of the Boston area to continue their Judaic studies on the university level;
3. to acquaint Jewish high school students in the Boston area about Judaic studies opportunities at Hebrew College while attending other universities in the area and;
4. to inform both Prozdor and other Jewish high school students as well as Hebrew College students and other Jewish university students in the Boston area about career opportunities in Jewish education and Jewish communal work.

Members of the Hebrew College faculty will contribute their knowledge of opportunities for advanced Jewish studies through familiarity with the Jewish heritage, and their insights into "Jewish careers."

JVS staff will provide knowledge and experience in educational planning, choice of college, choice of major, financial aid, career planning and employment opportunities.

MRS. SILVIO CALABI

Miss Fisher, Mr. Calabi Wed in Middlebury Chapel

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph J. Fisher of Longmeadow, and Holderness, N.H., announce the marriage of their daughter, Barbara Webster Eaton Fisher, to Mr. Silvio Amadeus Calabi, son of Dr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Calabi of Newton Centre and Springfield, Vt.

Miss Fisher is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Eaton of Plymouth and the late Mr. and Mrs. Carl N. Fisher of Longmeadow. Mr. Calabi is the grandson of Dr. and Mrs. Augusto Calabi of Milan, Italy, and Mrs. Schubert of Zurich, Switzerland.

The December wedding was performed in Mead Chapel at Middlebury College in Vermont. The Rev. Charles P. Scott, Chaplain of the college, officiated at the ceremony. Attendants for the couple were Miss Melinde Hatheway as maid of honor and Mr. M. Moore Newell, the best man. Miss Catherine Morse was the organist.

The bride is a graduate of Longmeadow High School, attended the University of Neuchatel in Switzerland and the Banff School of Fine Arts in Canada and is a senior art major at Middlebury College. She is also employed as a teacher aide and playground supervisor at the Mary Hogan Elementary School in Middlebury.

The groom, a graduate of the Roxbury Latin School, is a senior geology major at Middlebury College and is employed as a laboratory instructor in the geology department.

Brae Burn Country Club of West Newton Has Its 75th Anniversary

Organized in 1897 for the "playing, advancement and cultivation of the royal and ancient game of golf," Brae Burn Country Club of West Newton held its 75th annual meeting last week.

Brae Burn was one of the first golf courses in the United States. Golf history books say the first permanent golf club in this country started in Yonkers, N. Y. in 1888. The Brookline Country Club was organized shortly after that. Then in 1893, Henry Day, a prominent citizen of West Newton (his former home is now the All Newton Music School on Chestnut Street), joined forces with four or five neighbors and set up a six-hole course in their backyards. This grew into the present club which was incorporated in 1897.

Officers elected at the 75th annual meeting are Robert S. Kretschmar of Auburndale, president, succeeding Wilbur W. Bullen of Boston, who retired; Richard M. Sullivan of Wellesley Hills, first vice-president; Paul F. Hannah of Weston, second vice-president; George W. Gibson, secretary; and Chester E. Borden of Auburndale, treasurer.

New members elected to the board of directors are: Charles W. Barrett, Jr. of Concord, D. Hardwick Bigelow of West Newton, Nathan D. Bugbee of West Newton, Gilman W. Conant of Wellesley, Franklin D. Jerome of Waban, David W. Sampson of Wellesley and William H. Schneiderwind, Jr. of Wellesley.

Continuing as members of the board are: Dwight C. Arnold of Wellesley Hills, Joseph R. Haddock of Weston, Dr. Peter H. Lee of Dover, Allyn B. Wicks of Wellesley Hills.

In its 75 year history Brae Burn has been the scene of a number of important championship tournaments. Among the best remembered are the National Amateur won by Bobby Jones in 1928, and the National Open won by Walter Hagen in 1919.

On two occasions, the most recent was last year, Brae Burn was host to the Curtis Cup matches. This tournament is sort of a World Series of Women's Amateur Golf. Last year a strong team of girls from all over the United States defeated a team of lassies from England, Scotland and Ireland.

UNCHANGED
Still unchanged is the desire of parents and adults generally to make it a day for the children. Morning sleep for parents, of course, is out of the question. Youngsters who tossed and turned themselves to sleep on Christmas Eve are up at the break of dawn — sometimes even before the first rays of the morning sun are visible on the eastern horizon on one of the shortest days of the year.

There's the rush for the tree and the shouts of joy as ribbons and gay paper are stripped from toys.

Unchanged, too, are the homey smells from kitchens where the roast and vegetables are being made ready for the table.

At that table will be loved ones — many of whom have travelled miles "to be home for Christmas."

Through the day, too, there'll be phone calls coming long distance from those unable to "make it home this year."

This Year Christmas will be a two-day holiday.
The Saturday-Sunday combination will be welcome in this community. Christmas the day of days for millions. Most of our families will make every joyous minute count from Christmas Eve until it's time to retire on Sunday night.

It will be a day of merriment and gifts for the children. It will be a day of family reunions, a day of good food and good talk. It will be a day of prayer and hymns.

It will be the day when each of us travels down memory's lane again to the Christmases of yesteryear.
It will be the day when the spirit of The Babe Who was Born in Bethlehem lives again in the hearts of men.

At this season we realize more than ever how much it means to have the friendship and good will of folks like you—and so with a Sincere Thank You we

Department Agriculture

Cranberries play a big part in Christmas, says the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture, and they can be fun as well as delicious. A pound of fresh native cranberries, a batch of popcorn and a needle and thread are all you and the kids need to make delightful Christmas tree decorations. Just string the cranberries like beads, alternating with popcorn, or devise your own design. (By all means, do not butter the popcorn). The length is limitless, the possibilities for decoration endless. And when you dispose of the tree, give the cranberry-popcorn strings to the birds. Lots less costly than strings of lights, and a great deal more fun for the family.

Of course, you'll include cranberries on your holiday table, too — in sauces, jellies, gelatin salad molds — and even to drink. The cranberry industry has come a long way, with flavors like cranberry-apricot.

ple and cranberry-apricot, to mention just two. And they're great mixers, too.

Native apples are still plentiful, reports the MDA, both on produce counters and at your favorite roadside stand. A handsome Red Delicious makes an excellent stocking-stuffer, and cuts down on the candy and-or toys required to fill it up. Cortlands, Baldwins and Macs make wonderful holiday apple pies, too, depending on your flavor preference.

Native squash remains plentiful too, and ready for pie-making.

YMCA Starts New Physical Fitness Program On Jan. 8.

To continue a physical fitness program adjusted to one's age and potential is the way to stay as healthy and as youthful as possible. The YMCA in Newton has such a program, with two phases: the clinic or testing phase, and the workout phase.

The testing clinic at the beginning of the clinic will supply the reference point or comparison for all future testing clinics which measure progress.

The workout phase is carefully structured to slowly and progressively improve your level of fitness so that your potential for physical stress is increased safely. If you are an "average" American, you need this kind of program! Our way of life has made it a necessity.

The testing clinic will be held on Saturday, January 8, at 9:30 a.m. It is a prerequisite of the course as is a physical examination by your physician to determine the advisability of your participation in our program of moderate exercise.

The workout phase is conducted three days a week: Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. For your convenience three workout periods are offered on each of these three days to suit varying schedules: 7:15 a.m. to 8 a.m.; 12:15 p.m. to 1 p.m.; 5:30 p.m. to 6:15 p.m.

Obnoxious Jack Leonard Is Gentleman At Home

By MYRAM BORDERS
Jack E. Leonard, the over-hyped stage and television comedian whom friends describe as "a guy asking for a mouthful of knuckles," leads a Jekyll and Hyde life.

When he is playing his act in the hotels that line the neon-lit Las Vegas Strip, or the night clubs in New York, Chicago, Miami and elsewhere, Jack E. Leonard
"attacks" his audiences. He opens his show with a sneer,

"Opponents!" and then goes on to achieve the improbable joining of obnoxiousness and humor.

He's been doing the same routine since long before the advent of the "Charleston" dance craze, at which he was an expert, and he hasn't been seriously slugged yet, which proved Leonard has it down to a science or people like to pay money to be insulted.

Don Rickles, who operates in the same manner as Leonard, has the same problem - do or say anything you want to people as long as it's funny.

However, when Leonard returns to the home he recently purchased in Las Vegas, he is a tame pussycat for his beautiful wife,
Gladys, and her daughters,
Brenda 8, Wanda 9, and Linda, 6.

The Leonards were married here in January, 1970, after the death of the lady to whom he had been married 30 years. At first the family tried living in New York, then settled in Las Vegas.

"Since Jack works here so much, this is a wonderful place for us to live," his wife said. "It may not be the perfect place, but, does such a place exist?"

Leonard, who can't shut up in a club or casino or on a television talk show, doesn't shut up at home. He, too, listens when his wife speaks.

"In one big respect," she said, "Jack finds advantages in Las Vegas, aside from the fact that he works here so much. He loves being able to visit with his many show business friends as they play in town. Many, in fact, are settling here, too."

Newton South Hoopsters Bow To Newton Five 60-56

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN

Despite three double-figure scorers and the aid of four transfer players from Sacred Heart High School, the Newton South hoopsters were up-ended, 60-56 by rival Newton High in an opening non-league encounter for both clubs, last week.

The Lions, who haven't with seconds left for the beaten the Tigers since 1968, clincher. almost pulled this one out. South has three men in double figures, led by guard Ron took a 52-51 lead with three and Moan, 12 points, and newcomer first time on a Frank McGowan jump shot. Newton battled back and the squads were deadlocked at 56-56. The Tigers got the ball and the shot went to Ken Billings. Billings was in control all the way and popped in a short jumper. He came back for a lay-up DeFilippo is one of four new players on the South roster who saw action at Sacred Heart over last two years, before the school closed down. Billy Hoban, Tommy Sullivan, and McGowan, who played an excellent defensive game, are the others.

Newton High built up an early lead, saw it dissipate, and then came back to claim victory in a charge led by Billings, the game's leading point-getter with 19. He had a lot of help from backcourt mate Ed Becker with 11 points and captain Ben Press, also with 11 points.

The unveiling of Tiger sophomore Pete Laskasis was not sensational. The 6-5 center who terrorized the junior high circuit last winter scored three points. But he exhibited a great deal of potential.

South plays Boston Latin, another regular non-league foe, in its only game this week.

Amendments To Davis Educational Specifications Approved Monday

In response to proposals submitted by Davis School officials, the Newton School Committee agreed Monday to amend the Educational Specifications for Davis' pending construction.

Henrietta Brebbia, Davis School Principal, and Gerard F. Byrne, Chairman of Davis' Facilities Committee, mailed a letter to Superintendent of Newton Schools Aaron Fink specifying three amendments which they considered desirable. The changes were formulated after "careful evaluation of the Preliminary Drawings submitted by Haldemann and Goranson, the architects for the Davis School."

The amendments listed were as follows: an increase in the square footage of the gymnasium to 3,700 square feet, in order to provide a more suitable facility for the community; a recommendation that the kitchen areas be located in the 1,360 square feet designated as a practical arts station in the existing facility; and a relocation of the paved play area on the large group instruction room instead of the library roof.

These proposals, stated the letter, "would not increase costs," and are designed to "provide a facility that solves the greatest needs of our community." The School Committee voted unanimously to approve the amendments.

Vote Against Pure Salt In Snow and Ice Control

A highly diluted ban on aldermen in April of 1972 and salting of city streets passed April 10, 1973. Pure salt, which is presently used on major thoroughfares such as Beacon and Washington Streets, will be eliminated.

The resolution, approved by the Aldermanic Public Works Committee, calls for a 3 to 1 ratio of sand to salt on city streets for the remainder of this winter, and a 10 to 1 ratio starting in September, 1972.

Reports on the experiment are to be filed with the Named Professor At Harvard Ctr.

William Schneider of Newton is now Assistant Professor of Government and Research Fellow in the Center for International Affairs at Harvard University.

Professor Schneider attended Brandeis University on a scholarship. He graduated summa cum laude, with honors in Politics, in 1966. He received the A.M. degree in Political Science in 1969, and a Ph.D. in Political Science this year from Harvard University.

Previously, he has been a Visiting Lecturer in Politics at Brandeis University (1970-71) and a Lecturer in Public Administration at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard (1970-71).

Professor Schneider is single and lives at 138 Beaumont Avenue, Newton.

testimony to show a net savings of $26,000 and a decrease of 4 per cent in accidents in the town of Burlington, which initiated a no-salt policy in 1970-71 because of problems with salt tainting the water supply.

In the same period, Newton's accident rate on salted roads rose 14 per cent, Mrs. Whittle reported. Expenditures for salt, according to City of Newton Purchasing Department figures, rose from $75,300 to $120,900, while the cost of sand dropped slightly. Total expenditures rose about 25 per cent, from $117,800 to $157,500.

Mrs. Whittle contended that there are fewer serious accidents on snow and ice because drivers are more cautious. Fatalities occur more frequently on dry summer roads than on snowy winter roads, she said. Only 2.4 per cent of all fatal accidents occur on snow and ice, while 61.6 percent of all fatal accidents and 75.6 percent of non-fatal accidents occur on dry pavement.

Disputing the environmentalist argument that salt was killing city trees, Pratt cited a report by University of Massachusetts plant pathologist Walter M. Banfield maintaining that the death of maples was due to lack of water.

There are 50-60,000 trees in the city and some 600 are taken down each year, Pratt reported. Mrs. Whittle called Banfield, who said his report was designed to show additional causes. He affirmed that salt killed trees.

The Public Works Director also claimed that snow could pile up to a depth of six inches if there were a series of two or three heavy storms with no salting. He said the city does not have the center - blade plows necessary to scrape down to street level without salting. Few of these plows are being manufactured to day, he stated.

Public Works Committee members criticized Pratt for using guidelines put out by the Salt Institute to determine levels of salting.

"The Salt Institute is hardly the place to go to find out how much salt to use," asserted Carmen. His criticism was partly answered by Jackson, who said that the Salt Institute, "aware that they're under attack," has tried to tell people how to use salt with discretion, in hopes of forestalling and outright ban. Mrs. Whittle reported that the state Department of Public Works uses a 1 to 5 ratio on major highways.

As his statements on the necessity of salt were challenged by the aldermen, Pratt declared, "This isn't something I'm just guessing at — it's based on 31 years' ex-

YMCA Swimmers Beat Brockton's Team 86 to 105

December 3 was the date of the first swim meet at the Newton YMCA. The Newton swimmers competed against the Brockton YMCA.

This was the first chance for Newton to try out its new swimmers — Andy Robinson, Billy Zani, Skip Cole and Scott Melanson. They, along with Paul Agranat, Glen Melanson and Peter McAvinn, who all swam last year, combined in a great effort against the tough Brockton "D" team.

The "C" team, eleven-and-twelve-year-olds, started off their season with a bang. Last year's 40-yard back stroke pool record of 29.5 seconds was broken by John Lory with a time of 29.1 seconds. Also, the pool 160-yard freestyle relay record of 1:43.2 was broken by our own relay team with a time of 1:41.6. The swimmers on the relay team are Danny Mezzoff, John Lory, Brendan Curran, and Mark Melanson. Other swimmers on the "C" team are Geoff Nelson, Mark Rose, Craig Belson, Billy Zani, Steve Lory, and Eric Agranat.

The "B" team, the thirteen and fourteen year olds, combined in an outstanding effort against Brockton. Along with Neil Drovnis and Mark Alford, who have been with the YMCA team for many years, are David Bagley and John Volante. Both boys joined the swim team this year. The Newton team came out with a winning record for their first meet. The final score was Brockton 86 and Newton 105.

experience — My position is to see that the citizens of Newton are protected and that they remain mobile. "If you don't believe what I tell you, that's your privilege." "I don't," responded Alderman Harrington. "When I came on in '48," Pratt declared, "it was one of the worst storms we'd ever had. The first thing I was asked to do was write a report on how I would handle the situation. The Commissioner of Public Works of Needham read the report, and he asked if he could give it to the Public Works Association Congress." "There's never been more than 12 hours delay since I've been here," Pratt added. "The people of Newton are willing to pay for the service, but they want the service."

When debate on the salt limitation resumed on the main floor of the Board, Jackson called for evaluation reports in April from the Police and Fire Departments and other concerned officials. "We're not just asking Willard Pratt to come back and tell us that it was a mess and he doesn't want to do it again."

Debate centered around the anticipated cost of the experiment, and on whether sand alone could provide adequate safety. Several aldermen mentioned the Saturday morning accident in which an elderly man was killed. "I'd sacrifice every tree in the city to save one life," declared Alderman William Wolf, but added, "I'd like to see some step, however token it may be."

Harrington pointed out that the state of New Hampshire and Minnesota, had both banned salt. "This is not something totally ridiculous. This is something that is working in other areas."

A motion by Alderman Jason Sacks to send the proposal back to the Finance and Public Works Committees was defeated 17-5, with Aldermen Adelaide Ball, Sacks, Robert Tennant, Harry Walen, and President Wendell Bauckman voting for recommitment, and Aldermen Elliot Cohen and Arthur Sullivan absent.

An amendment by Alderman Louis I. Egelson to allow use of pure salt following an

Harrington Blocks Salary Request For Mann Aide

Although the Board of Aldermen is theoretically a non-partisan body, partisan politics fueled a debate at Monday night's meeting of the Alderman over a salary request for an administrative assistant for Mayor-elect Theodore D. Mann.

Alderman Harry H. Crosby, a Democrat, complained that aldermen were being asked to appropriate $600 for the rest of 1971 toward a $15,000 salary for an appointee whose name had not yet been made public.

Complaining of an on-going lack of communication between the aldermen and the mayor, Crosby complained, "It's the same old business — a dramatic request with minimal information. We don't have enough information to act intelligently."

Crosby and other aldermen complained that the job of administrative assistant had not yet been defined, and suggested that aldermen "should know more about the city organization before we start subsidizing it." The salary appropriation for the post of administrative assistant was deleted from last year's budget, with some aldermen contending that the job was an instance of political featherbedding and carried few responsibilities.

Alderman Michael Lipof, Republican, who said that he was "privileged to inside information" on the identity of the appointee, declared, "I'm chuckling inwardly. The man selected for the job is worth twice this appropriation, and is leaving a successful career in industry to enter city government."

Alderman Louis I. Egelson urged approval of the appropriation, contending that the Mayor-elect needed a full-time aide to assist him in the "laborious" task of transition to a new administration. "The Mayor-elect is spending almost full time trying to learn his new job," Egelson declared.

Quipped Crosby, "I wish I could join the Alderman from Ward 6 (Lipof) in chuckling inwardly, but I don't have the information. Once we've committed ourselves to this appropriation, we can't back out. Presumably the young man will take the salary and leave his present job. We can't then turn around and vote against the appropriation on January 4. That would be cruel."

Added Alderman Joseph M. McDonnell, "It is a tradition in any change in administration

300 Attend Activity Night Held At Countryside School

An 'Experimental Activity Night', sponsored by the Countryside P.T.A., Newton Highlands, has resulted in gratifying community response and official reaction, according to Activity Night chairwomen Arlene Butters and Mona Freeman.

More than 300 youngsters, parents and neighbors attended the December 15 evening program of activities at Countryside School and were unanimous in naming the proposed program for community evening activities.

The purpose of the experiment was to determine the amount of interest the community had in a regularly scheduled program of evening events at the Countryside School.

Among the activities offered and enjoyed by youngsters and adults during the evening were: Arts & Crafts, Macrame, Math Lab, Science Lab, Volleyball and Basketball. Adult groups also participated in: Japanese Cooking Demonstration, Sewing Class, and a Dancing Class.

Among the city officials who visited and observed the evening's program were:

Elinor Rosenbloom, School Board Member; Alderman - Elect Ed Richmond and Mr. Hamilton of the Newton Recreation Department. In addition to visiting the several classes and demonstrations in the program the observers also viewed a Cub Scout Pack meeting and a Formation Meeting of the Newton Council for the Arts.

Mrs. Rosenbloom agreed with P.T.A. President Martin Cohen in recognizing the turnout of more than 300 as an impressive sign of community interest in the proposed program.

Committee Chairwomen Butters and Freeman noted the outstanding turnout as a signal to pursue plans for a series of community programs at the school. "In view of the enthusiasm and excitement that Activity Night has stimulated, we intend to follow through with a series of similar evenings," they said.

"Now that it's evident there is a definite desire and need to have recreation facilities open to the community in the evening, we feel a commitment to open our school for all who wish to use it", they stated.

Christmas A Tradition At Newton-Wellesley Hospital

Even getting sick can't take the "ho-ho-ho" out of Christmas for patients at Newton - Wellesley Hospital. In the past couple of weeks they have been serenaded by carolers, and early Christmas morning both Santa and Mrs. Santa will visit each one.

Tradition is as much a part of Christmas at Newton - Wellesley as is the wreath on the door or candle in the window.

Traditionally, the Christmas spirit prompts groups in the community to come caroling. This year Girl Scouts, the Newton Jaycees, Wellesley High's Future Teachers of America, and youngsters from Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, Newton, have all visited hospital floors to sing the traditional carol favorites.

At 8 o'clock Christmas morning, Santa Claus (a member of the medical staff and Mrs. Santa (from the nursing contingent), accompanied by the hospital's Administrative Vice President, William S. Brines will visit each patient bearing a simple gift. Ernest J. Paquin, in charge of the hospital's laundry, will go along to provide the background Christmas music by record player propelled on stretcher.

But even before Santa gets around, patients will have received free newspapers delivered by Mr. and Mrs. John B. Ellis, Jr. of Wellesley. Traditionally, the Ellis, as part of the hospital's Junior Aid newspaper project, begin their own Christmas with the early morning Christmas newspaper delivery at the hospital.

Up early, too, is the hospital's chef who is on deck at 2 a.m. to get the turkeys in the oven for a traditional Christmas dinner served on specially decorated trays.

Children in hospital over Christmas come in for special attention. Carolers particularly ask to sing for the children and Mrs. H. Kempton Parker of Wellesley, who administers hospital Aid's "Tender Loving Care" program, sees to it that the pediatric floor is gay with Christmas decorations and that every child has a gift.

The hospital is decorated throughout for the season and included are 100 red poinsettias, a gift from Alfred M. Fraser, Wellesley Hills florist and a Trustee of the hospital.

Entertainment was provided by Mrs. Stephanie Barker, a blind musician who went from table to table with an autoharp, leading residents in song, and by 11-year-old Gerard Proulx, a boy soprano who sings with the St. Paul's Boys Choir.

Drinan Asks Tax Relief For Elderly

Congressman Robert F. Drinan has submitted to Congress a tax relief measure for older Americans. The measure would allow a $300 federal income tax credit or a $300 cash grant for persons paying no income tax, to offset the cost of real estate taxes for persons over 65.

The tax credit would apply not only to homeowners, but to tenants footing the tax bill through their rents.

Drinan said that a present Massachusetts law allowing tax abatements for citizens over the age of 70 does not provide any reimbursement to the city or town for the property tax income lost.

His new proposal, Drinan said, would allow cities and towns to collect the taxes, but would insure that senior citizens were reimbursed up to the amount of $300.

School Committee Begins Its Hearings On The 1972 Budget

The Newton School Committee began its hearings on the 1972 Public School Budget Monday night (Dec. 20) at the open meeting held in Bigelow Junior High School on Vernon St. Six more meetings are scheduled for the Budget Overview, ending with the Committee's "Total Budget Decision" on Monday, Jan. 31.

Monday night the School Committee was concerned with the preliminary budget estimate, prepared by John E. Gilleland, Assistant Superintendent for Business Services, who had drawn up a two-page document listing comparisons of the 1971 and 1972 budgets.

The Budget Overview summarizes the various requests and discussions of the Superintendent of Schools and his staff, and one-half positions." The promulgation of the estimate was delayed, according to Mr. Fink, "because of the national Wage-Price Freeze and salary negotiations."

The main feature of the 1972 estimated school budget is a 9.3 per cent increase over this year's. The 1971 budget was shown as $22,900,000, with another $627,800 added to it, representing a fiscal transfer under the new Newton charter, not an increase in school costs.

The figure of $627,800 was previously allocated under the Newton Public Buildings Budget, and was shifted to the school budget as a section of the new charter voted in last month. The same amount has also been included as part of next year's school budget.

The total of 1971's school budget is thus $23,527,800, and the estimated figure for 1972 is $25,724,000, or an additional cost of $2,196,200.

Of this 9.3 per cent increase, $707,000 is unavoidable. Approximately one-third of the total increase is attributed to the mandated Lunch Program ($518,000) and the additional Blue Cross-Blue Shield cost ($189,000).

Mr. Fink stressed the fact that "we are concerned with maintaining quality educational programs" for the children, and "we have tried to make adjustments in our own salaries on next year's budget, according to Dr. Laurits. The central staff, consisting of teachers, may be shortened by 10 and one-half posts; but, "to meet other needs, we'll have to find other places to cut."

The overlay for 1972 was estimated at $1 million, and is included in the total budget overview of $25,724,000. This total represents the cost of the continuation of programs begun this fall into next year, or a carryover from the 1971 program." Decisions on the budget have to be made, according to Mr. Fink, "in terms of the school programs. The total budget, at this point, is tentative."

The Superintendent continued with his staff report to the School Committee by saying that "we are recommending no increase in maintenance costs, and a decrease in personnel by 10 and one-half positions."

An amount of $47,900 was listed on the budget overview as a decrease in personnel costs. "This cut will parallel a cut in enrollment," according to Dr. James Laurits, Assistant Superintendent of Schools for Personnel, who was present at Monday's meeting.

The figure of 10 and one-half positions to be dropped represents the gleanings of a "formal survey made of all the schools, asking what we can drop or add," according to Dr. Laurits.

He went on to note the need for a shifting of positions with respect to the 1972 budget. "There will have to be further cuts," Dr. Laurits stated, to offset further desired increases in personnel. "The kindergartens will require additional programming, and the music staff will have to be increased."

There are thus two parts to the problem of the personnel salaries on next year's budget, according to Dr. Laurits. The central staff, consisting of teachers, may be shortened by 10 and one-half posts; but, "to meet other needs, we'll have to find other places to cut."

The overlay for 1972 was estimated at $1 million, and is included in the total budget overview of $25,724,000. This total represents the cost of the continuation of programs begun this fall into next year, or a carryover from the 1971 fiscal school year to 1972. The adjusted overlay figure, according to Mr. Fink, "will be known within the week."

The non-salary increase in costs for next year is estimated at $1,194,800. This includes projected amounts needed for new equipment, as well as fixed costs of heating and electricity.

The only other increase in the budget overview was in the schools' auxiliary programs, such as the Work Study Program, The Development in Community School concepts, and the Program for Perceptually Handicapped. These come under the category of "things we think the city needs," stated Mr. Fink. The estimated increase in this area was $103,500. The auxiliary program posts are "not regular positions, but they are salaried, according to Henry H. Atkins, Director of Instructional Program.

The breakdown of estimated increases is summarized as follows: overlay, $1 million; non-salary increase, $1,194,800; and auxiliary program, $103,500. In addition to the mentioned $47,900 decrease personnel costs, an extra ($150,000) representing allowances for staff turnover, was subtracted from the preliminary 1972 budget, bringing the total estimate to $25,724,000.

Manuel Beckwith, Committee Chairman from Ward 4, said that they "will attack it item by item." The second meeting concerning the budget is slated for next Monday night (Dec. 27), also at the Bigelow High School, when a review will be made of the Personnel-Auxiliary Budget.

A pamphlet will soon be printed by the School Superintendent containing a "complete breakdown of costs by school and function" of personnel in the Newton School System. It will be entitled "Analysis of Personnel Costs," and will be available for public review, though not necessarily public distribution, because of a limited supply.

UMW Supports Christmas Seal Campaign For 1971

The high incidence of crippling respiratory diseases, including the "black lung" that threatens coal miners, has resulted in an endorsement of the 1971 Christmas Seal Campaign by the United Mine Workers of America, according to the Norfolk County - Newton Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

W.A. Boyle, president of the national labor union, praised the services provided by the nation's 1,200 Christmas Seal associations and promised support of the United Mine Workers of America in the annual effort against emphysema, tuberculosis, other respiratory diseases and air pollution.

"The United Mine Workers is fully cognizant of the invaluable services rendered by the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association and appreciates its life-saving objectives which are more important now than ever in view of the nation's growing occupational and environmental hazards. As you are aware, one of this union's major concerns is the prevention of the dread "black lung" disease, as well as the allied crippling lung diseases. . . the UMW is pleased to join with the NTRDA in its fight to preserve health and well-being of each and every one of us," Boyle said in a letter to John H. Biddle, president of the nationwide Christmas Seal association.

Contributions to Christmas Seals support educational programs and medical research against emphysema, which costs $100 million annually in Social Security disability claims. The Norfolk County - Newton Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Mr. Gilleland's report showed that the milk distributors have increased their prices for half-pints of milk by only a slight amount but enough to create a loss of $1,560 to the Schools in September and October.

To offset this added charge by the milk companies, the School Committee voted unanimously to raise the cost of milk in the cafeterias from 4 to 5 cents per carton.

Newton Man Aids Lesley College Bldg. Campaign

The Lesley College Building Fund in Cambridge reached its $1 million goal on December 15, thereby qualifying for a $50,000 challenge grant from the Kresge Foundation.

Cafeteria Milk Price Is Now 5 Cents A Carton

The School Committee, at their meeting Monday night (Dec. 20), voted an increase in the unit cost of milk sold in the cafeterias of Newton public schools. The action came following a recommendation by John E. Gilleland, Assistant Superintendent for Business Services.

Mr. Gilleland's report showed that the milk distributors have increased their prices for half-pints of milk by only a slight amount but enough to create a loss of $1,560 to the Schools in September and October.

To offset this added charge by the milk companies, the School Committee voted unanimously to raise the cost of milk in the cafeterias from 4 to 5 cents per carton.

THE U.S. COURT OF APPEALS denied Wednesday a request by the Federal Communications Commission for a full rehearing of its landmark 1969 decision to take WHDH-TV in Boston away from the Boston Herald-Traveler Corp. The FCC asked the court last August to send the case back to the full commission for new arguments arising out of a Securities and Exchange Commission suit brought against a principal official of Boston Broadcasters Inc., which won the license away from WHDH-TV two years ago. The three-judge Court of Appeals ruled unanimously Wednesday that the 1969 decision was valid and that the SEC suit could not void the FCC ruling giving Channel 5 to BBI. The next step in the complex case is apparently up to the FCC, which meets next Wednesday. A commission spokesman said he did not know whether the Channel 5 matter would be discussed. Benito Gaguine, a BBI attorney, said Boston Broadcasters had formally requested the FCC to grant it program broadcasting authority as soon as possible in the light of the latest court decision. He said he hoped the FCC would "give us the order to start operations within 30 days." Harold Clancy, president of the Herald-Traveler Corp., parent company of WHDH-TV, declined comment before discussing the decision with the corporation's lawyers.

NIXON, BRANDT PLEDGE SUPPORT OF NATO

PRESIDENT NIXON and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt wound up their summit talks at Key Biscayne, Fla., Wednesday with renewed pledges of support for NATO and hints the alliance may be shifting some of its emphasis from defense to economics. Concluding two days of private discussions at Nixon's villa, the two world leaders stressed that the United States and Germany—enemies in two world wars—are now the best of friends. Nixon also pledged there would be no reduction in American troops stationed in Europe. But the emphasis was on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and on ways to maintain it in a changing world. The alliance was founded a quarter century ago to defend Western Europe against the Soviet Union's Stalin-era military machine.

U.S. SECURITY EXPERTS LEAVE FOR PEKING

A GROUP of American experts left for Peking Wednesday to set up protection for President Nixon and arrange communications to keep him in touch with Washington and the world informed during his historic visit to China next year. Headed by Brig. Gen. Alexander M. Haig, chief assistant to presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, the group of about 25 men will arrive in Peking Jan. 3 after stops in Hawaii and Guam. They will spend about a week on the final technical arrangements for the Nixon visit. With Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler and representatives of the three major U.S. television networks in the party, one of the decisions expected from their trip is exactly how many American reporters will be allowed to accompany the President and Mrs. Nixon. More than 2,000 press representatives have asked to go, but White House sources estimate that the number of correspondents will "be less than we demand, less than usually go on a presidential trip, but much larger than the Chinese have ever encountered."

HOFFA SAYS PRISON TREATMENT DESIGNED TO BREAK SPIRIT

FORMER TEAMSTERS Union President James R. Hoffa said Wednesday that treatment he received as a prisoner—maximum security confinement and a job "in a cage"—was designed to break his spirit. But Hoffa said he faced up to the situation at the beginning of his confinement and was determined to take whatever was handed out to him. The former Teamsters boss was released from Lewisburg, Pa., Federal Penitentiary last Thursday after President Nixon commuted his 13-year sentence for jury tampering and pension fraud. Hoffa said he was kept in maximum security for almost three years and worked as a mattress stuffer "in a cage" for seven hours a day. "In my opinion, they were trying to break my spirit," Hoffa said. He spent four years, nine months and 16 days at the prison. He blamed the treatment he received there on persons in the Justice Department left over from the John F. Kennedy administration when the prosecution of Hoffa began. Hoffa said the treatment, which he termed "dehumanizing and demoralizing," was designed to see "how far they could go" to get him "to blow my top." Hoffa said he repeatedly asked to be taken out of the "cage" where he stuffed mattresses. "They finally told me they had been instructed by Washington not to change my working conditions," Hoffa said in a copy-righted story in the Detroit News.

EGYPTIAN PARLIAMENT TOLD 'IT IS OUR FATE TO FIGHT'

PRIME MINISTER Mahmoud Fawzi told the Egyptian Parliament in Cairo Wednesday that the chance for peace in the Middle East, "if ever there was one," is fading fast. "It is our fate to fight," he said. At about the same time, the Middle East News Agency reported that President Anwar Sadat met with Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Vinogradov in the Egyptian capital. Details were not disclosed but observers noted that Sadat, in his speech announcing his decision to fight, Israel was final, had expressed "confidence that the Soviet Union really stands on our side." Sadat has repeatedly said that 1971 was the year of decision for a settlement of the Middle East conflict with Israel, either by war or by peace. However, his speech to a joint session of the Central Committee of the Arab Socialist Union—Egypt's only legal political party—and the People's Council (parliament) Tuesday, left the way open for continued political moves.

SEOUL HOTEL FIRE DEATH TOLL CLIMBS TO 164

THE KNOWN DEATH TOLL in the Christmas Day fire in Seoul, Korea, reached 164 Wednesday, but experts said the exact number of victims in what already is described as the worst such disaster in history may never be known. Police said there still are about 250 persons who have reported relatives missing in the fire which destroyed the luxurious Taeyongak Hotel last Saturday. Many may never be certain of the fate of their missing loved ones.

Ruling Asked On Classroom Transfer Plan

A proposal to permit "optional enrollment" for children in crowded classrooms was referred to the city solicitor after extensive debate by the School Committee, Monday night.

School Committee Chairman Manuel Beckwith of Ward 4 questioned the constitutionality of the proposal, which he said, by failing to provide transportation for students attending another district, "restricts the program to those who can afford transportation."

The optional enrollment policy, as explained by Superintendent Aaron Fink, would allow parents of children attending an over-crowded class to apply for transfer to any other school which has an under-enrolled classroom at the same grade level.

Budget Debate Hits Summer Program

"The summer curriculum represents only one-third of one per cent of the total budget, but this is the lifeblood of the program," Superintendent Aaron Fink told the School Committee Monday night.

Committeeman Alvin Mandell had suggested that the entire summer program be scrapped as an economy move.

Contending that the curriculum development taking place in the summer program would be the responsibility of department heads, Mandell

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Nixon's Price-Freeze Order One of Vital Events in '71

It is very difficult to pinpoint the single most important event during the year now coming to a close. To different people it was different things.

Two flights to the moon. The winding-down of the war in Vietnam. The trouble in North Ireland. The admission of Red China to the United Nations and the heave-ho given to Nationalist China. The thaw in relations between the United States on the one hand and the Soviet Union and Red China on the other. Any one of those history-making events might be chosen to top the list.

Schools Plan Headquarters

The Newton School Administration will have a chance to "get it all together" by Sept. 1972.

With the aid of consultants Haldeman and Goransson, the Administrative Staff of the School Department will begin to lay out plans for a central administrative headquarters, to be located in the old F. A. Day Junior High School building.

At present, the school administration is divided under two roofs — one set of offices at the old Stern School on Watertown st., housing the Superintendent's Offices, Business Services and Payroll sections, and a second office at 88 Chestnut st., housing the Division of Instruction and Pupil Personnel.

The School Committee after some debate approved a $4858 proposal by Haldeman and Goransson to provide consultant services to draw up specifications for the renovation of the building, at 100 Walnut st.

The consultants, according to Superintendent Aaron Fink, will conduct interviews with administrative personnel, observe administrative staff working in their present offices, and examine the structure of the Day building.

On the basis of the data, they will draw up specifications showing the required work space, the distribution and allocation of space, the work flow, and allocations for future growth.

They will also provide estimates of costs for repairs, removal of partitions and installation of machinery such as air conditioning, since the building will be in use year round.

They will provide estimates of time for the design and construction work, and discussions of sequence of work so that the building can be ready for occupancy by September, 1972 even if all construction is not yet complete. Their report will include diagrams to serve as guide to the architects, and will be complete within 20 days.

School Committee member Alvin Mandell objected that the School Department was "hiring someone to tell us where to put the desks", and asked why the drawing of Flim-flam artists are operating a well-organized racket through-out Massachusetts, stated Newton Police Sgt. Charles E. Feeley, in a warning to area businessmen.

Police Warning On Flim-Flam Racket

A businessman, restaurant owner, gas station owner, etc., will receive a phone call, Feeley says. The contact man will give information that will lead the businessman to believe he knows the caller.

The caller will state that he has access to name brand television sets from a well-known store. The caller will tell the businessman that if he purchases six (6) sets, he will be given one free. The price of the television sets is so low, that the businessman's interest is aroused.

A meeting place is given to the businessman, and the name of a contact who will meet him. The meeting place will be in the proximity of a large shopping center. The businessman is requested to bring the money (in cash) to the appointed location and be met by the unknown contact.

At the meeting place, the unknown contact will approach the businessman, knowing in advance the vehicle he will be operating. The unknown subject will have a cordial conversation with the businessman. The contact specifications couldn't be handled by the Newton Planning Department. He was told that the Planning Department and its consultants specialized in demography, rather than architecture.

Ward 7 Committeeman Vincent P. Stanton expressed concern that the architects, Haldeman and Goransson, were the same firm which had produced an "unsatisfactory" design for the Underwood School.

"As a non-professional," Committeeman Herbert F. Regal replied, "I felt the firm's presentation was satisfactory, given the limitations on the plan. The inadequacy came from the site, rather than from lack of skill on the part of the architects."

The Haldeman-Goransson proposal, according to Fink, was the lowest of five bids solicited by the city. The second bid was $5,900, while the top three ranged from $11,200 to $15,000.

The proposal was passed unanimously.

In other business, John E. Gilleland, Assistant Superintendent For Business Services, announced that all repair and maintenance work on all schools was complete except for "minor details".

Assistant Superintendent James Laurits presented a plan to have separate department heads at each high school. Until now, there was one department head in each department to cover both high schools, with an assistant department head at the other school. Under the new plan, which received unanimous approval from the School Committee, the number of department heads will increase from eight to 16, while the posts of Assistant Department Head and Assistant to the Head will be eliminated.

Because of salary differentials which allow department heads $2000 more than regular teachers, change in classification will require an additional $6500.

Board Chairman of Norfolk County Trust Co. to Retire

James P. Winchester of Needham retires as chairman of the Board of Directors of Norfolk County Trust Company on Jan. 1, according to an announcement by John S. Marsh, president and chief executive officer of the bank. Winchester will continue to serve as a member of the bank's Board of Directors, Executive Committee and Trust Committee.

Winchester joined the staff of Norfolk County Trust Company as an officer in June, 1944; was elected vice president in 1947; executive vice president in June, 1957; a director in October, 1957; president in December, 1964 and chairman of the board in October, 1967.

In his long service with Norfolk County Trust Company, James P. Winchester has had the satisfying experience of assisting and guiding the bank from an institution comprising 10 branches in 1944 to today's 32 branches. The bank's assets during this period increased from $34,000,000 to over $300,000,000.

JAMES P. WINCHESTER

responsibilities with the bank were in the credit and marketing field. In middle nineteen fifties with the advent of automated data processing equipment, he was given the added responsibility of developing the bank's computer system. As a result of his extensive marketing and credit background, together with his knowledge of customer services and computer utilization, he was able to guide the bank in the development of many new customer banking services.

Some of the more significant new banking services developed during this period were: the Norfolk Charge Plan, first bank retail credit service in New England; Norfolk Thrift Certificates, the first consumer savings certificates to be offered in New England and the All Purpose Bank Plan, the first completely integrated one number, one statement account to be developed in this country.

Winchester has served as a director and trustee of the Research Institute of the Bank Administration Institute. He also served on many committees of the Mass. Bankers Association, the American Bankers Association and the First Federal Reserve District.

Winchester, a nationally recognized lecturer on many banking subjects, is the author of a book on "Loan Losses and Valuation Reserves," published by the Bankers Publishing Company of Boston.

This book is based on his thesis written as a requirement for graduation from the Graduate School of Bank-

Newton College Launches Citizens' Science Series

The public is invited to take a course on The Marine World to be offered Wednesdays from 4 to 5:30 p.m., February 2 through May 17, at Newton College of the Sacred Heart.

The course is part of a series of inter-disciplinary science programs for the general public, as well as Newton College students, focusing on such issues as ecology, pollution control, child rearing, drug use and abuse, violent behavior, and poverty.

Declares Dr. Charles Bot-ticelli, chairman of the Division of Sciences and Mathematics at Newton College, "Rhetoric and emotion are no substitute for scientific knowledge in these matters. I feel strongly that every person has a responsibility to know something of science — to become scientifically literate."

Other interdisciplinary science courses scheduled for the coming semester are "Scientific Concepts for the Responsible Citizen" and "Science and the Law."

Farewells At School Com.

Dec. 27 was an evening of farewells on the School Committee as Ward 3 Committeeman Richard M. Douglas offered "a resolution by way of a tribute" to retiring School Committee member Edwin Hawkridge of Ward 5 and Vincent P. Stanton of Ward 7.

Characterizing the outgoing committeemen as "two suffering servants, each a paradigm of the Yankee manner," Douglas offered the following citations, "said with fondness, gratitude and profound respect."

"TO EDWIN HAWKRIDGE, after 14 years of service, for his acuity of mind, for the bluntness of his rejoinders, and for the directness of his discourse. For his stubborn integrity (even when he is wrong); for toughmindedness and staunchness joined to a subtle sense of the time to yield and of the time to compromise.

To Ed who was the first to remind us of our obligations to the teachers in the wake of Phase I after school opened last September, and the last to yield on the lunch program in 1969. To Ed for his persistence, for his curiosity about solvency, and for his lightning eyes over a balance sheet, always lifting the scales from those of a colleague to his left.

To Ed for 14 years of hard-headed decency and collegiality; to Ed who never allowed us to forget that "it's a small college"; our gratitude, appreciation and lasting fondness.

"TO VINCENT P. STANTON, nominally from Ward 7, though from a wider moral universe, who has been called St. Paul with a slide rule, and otherwise the Puritan in our midst. For his acuity, an eastern Westerner with the fastest wooden computer in town; yet with the slowest to judge and the last to moralize (sometimes).

"For his standing as the master ironist in our company, the master of subtleties always formed from integrity of intent rather than from cleverness of formation.

"To Vin, the worst — say inept — politician among us, for his stern fidelity to principle (even when he's wrong).

"To Vin for his dour solemnity and his volcanic humor, disrupting the left side while the right side strains to hear. We've learned to dread the furrowed brow as much as to crack with delight at his laughter. To Vin as well, Mr. Chairman, our gratitude, appreciation and lasting fondness.

"To each of these giants, our reluctantly-offered best wishes for candlelit meals on Monday nights, lasting even until 8:30; and our best wishes to these long-to-be-remembered, strong-fibered colleagues, for the integrity they have brought to the positions they have held in this good City. Happy New Year to you both, meant in a special way."

Hawkridge, in reply, praised the "integrity" of his fellow Committee members, and characterized the Committee as "excellent, hard-working, most of all fun."

Chamber Forms Economic Improvement Committee

The establishment by the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce of a new committee to aid economic improvement in two communities has been announced by the Chamber's President A. Raymond Lambert of Lambert Electric Co.

Paul Robenstein of the Security Mills Realty Trust has been named Chairman and is being assisted by William Cahill, Newton-Waltham Bank — Trust Co.; Theodore D'Orlando, John H. Baldwin Ins. Agency; Dexter Marsh, Meredith & Grew; Lewis M. Sherer, Marriot Motor Hotel and Richard Weinberg, Rix Corporation.

The task facing the committee is to analyze and recommend action to help improve the well-being of local business. It will aim to promote economic development, assist local companies to expand and create new job opportunities in the area; conduct clinics or seminars to improve business services and study ways of improving local trade.

Committee members have already begun to create an inventory of land buildings available for lease or sale in Newton and Needham which will be published next month. With the assistance of the Chamber's Public Relations Committee, the Chamber will publish in late winter the 1972 Buyers' Guide, which will list all members of the organization, statistical and governmental data about each community and other useful business data.

In cooperation with the Chamber's Transportation Committee, the Economic Improvement Committee will arrange a meeting within the next few weeks with appropriate Needham officials to gain support for additional off-street parking in the eastern portion of Needham Square.

Committee members have already met informally with Needham officials regarding community attitudes toward existing industrial and retail areas of the town and will do so shortly with their counterparts in Newton. Others are reviewing the health and vitality of other segments of the local economy including hotel and restaurant business, finance, office space availability and other uses.

1972 -- Year of Hope

Since our earliest days America's most consistently standard product has been hope.

The Pilgrims had it in the 1600s, even after a cruel winter had decimated the small band which had crossed the Atlantic to seek a new life in a rugged land which yielded its favors only at the price of work and dedication.

The men and women who pushed horse-drawn caravans through uncharted wildernesses to open the bountiful prairies of the West had hope in super-abundance.

The dawn of a New Year has always meant a rebirth of hope for Americans.

That is why they will look forward with confidence to the coming of 1972.

We are through three-quarters of the 20th Century. In many ways it has been a century of astounding progress. In science and medicine man made strides which would have astounded the most imaginative in the previous centuries of civilization.

Americans walked on the moon itself and sent back through an electronic medium, called television, living pictures of their feat. Out of obscure laboratories scientists wrested the answer to a frightful disease called poliomyelitis.

The year 1972 will come to an America with good reasons for hope — an America which should find an end to a war which proved a shocking quagmire she'll never be able to clearly explain to herself. It will come to an America seeking to resolve an economic blight which will test to its utmost our determination to know the real fruits of progress in the greatest nation ever fashioned by man.

The year 1972, for most Americans, means more than a new calendar and a new chapter in the history of mankind.

In Southeast Asia, in the Middle East, in Ireland open warfare is causing the shedding of human blood. Guns blaze and bombs blast their roars of destruction. Wars and threats of wars girdle the earth.

Americans will welcome the new year.

It offers hope. It offers an opportunity for the exercise of something called faith.

Those are the real legacies of the Pilgrims and the pioneers who opened the West. Indeed, faith and hope may well be the real legacy of the men who walked on the moon.

Welcome, 1972!

School Discipline

Some school officials in Lehigh, Pa., have been hauled before the courts to answer suits brought against them in behalf of some of their young students. It seems the officials, apparently too wrapped up in whatever scholastic discipline they'd known in their own scholastic days, had been suspending or expelling the pupils.

Reasons for the tyranny have been the youngsters' chronic disposition to stay away from the schoolhouses for long periods at a time or for cutting the school day's length down by showing up for classes long after the opening bell had been sounded.

It appears the pupils' parents decided it was a matter for the courts and they are demanding orders to have the names of their offsprings put right back on the school rolls.

Through their legal counsel they claim that under the law, school boards and school administrators cannot expel the offenders. According to their legal advisors the compulsory school law limits disciplinary action in the cases at hand to a $2 fine to be levied on the parents.

It would be presumptuous at this distance to offer any advice to the judge sitting on the matter. Yet, it might be a good idea to go along with the law, as the parents claim it reads.

Certainly John's parents would get a bit tired if they had to pay $2 for each day of a long succession of absences or tardy appearances. That could come to $10 for a five-day school week. Maybe, the parents would begin to exercise a bit of discipline themselves.

Hereabouts we've been hearing much about the autonomy of school committees. We've also been reading of many cases in which disciplinary matters have been landing in both State and Federal Courts.

It's just possible school boards and administrators ought to become the plaintiffs rather than defendants. Or is that asking too much in this day and age of non-discipline?

LETTERS TO THE GRAPHIC

Police Not To Blame

Editor of The Graphic:

I feel it only fair to explain my intentions and bring to the public's attention who really is at fault concerning Newton South parking lot situation.

I recently received information from one of my committees that the blame for the incidents at the parking lot was being put on the Newton Police Dept. This couldn't be more wrong. The city officials are to receive the blame they so richly deserve. If they had carried out the original agreement as planned, everything would have gone very smoothly. Even after I wrote a letter to Mayor Basbas and the Board of Aldermen asking for an explanation of the incidents, they failed to answer me. Not only were they slow in responding, they also denied all knowledge of the events to the press and tried to pass the buck from one department to the next. This included Mayor Basbas.

Now I am being told, that the city planning committee is going to bring up the matter again in APRIL.

This is an example of the way Newton's city officials have acted over the last decade. An issue arises and talked about continuously prior to the elections. When these men take office, they do nothing in the way of helping the situation which eventually grows worse.

My group has worked very hard these past few months, to make the citizens of Newton aware of what is really happening in their city. How much longer are the residents of Newton going to stand for such neglect. Wake up.

Sincerely,
Leland White
President

Newton Youth for Change

COMPOST THE LEAVES

Editor of The Graphic:

I would like to suggest that the City of Newton arrange to compost the leaves which fall every autumn, for the benefit of both the City and private citizens. Now that the burning of leaves is banned, the problem has become more urgent.

At nominal expense the City could arrange for special leaf collections on designated days, or it could pick up leaves in separate bags or receptacles at the time of trash collections, and deposit the leaves in one or more suitable places.

Leaves taken from the streets and parks could be added to the pile. A pit open to rain and enclosed enough to prevent the leaves from blowing away is all that would be needed to keep them.

The City might add a small amount of commercial fertilizer or loam, but nothing else would be required. Lawn cuttings and animal manure could be dumped with the compost, when that could be done efficiently.

When the leaves have sufficiently disintegrated, usually the second Spring after being dumped, the compost could be made available to homeowners, who would call for it. Proof of residence and a limit of a bushel or two might be imposed to avoid commercializing. The City Park Department might also make use of any residue of compost.

I note that some other communities have been doing this successfully. See Readers Digest for November.

Very truly yours,
Richard H. Lee
Newtonville, Mass.

- POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS -

This observer, however, would nominate President Nixon's price-freeze order. At the time he issued it we were headed for a depression such as the one which began under Herbert Hoover and ended under Franklin D. Roosevelt.

If Mr. Nixon is successful in turning the economic tide, it will be about the most important thing which could happen for the United States except for a major war. That and the virtual elimination of the United States from the war in Vietnam would practically assure President Nixon's election to a second term.

If the price-freeze and the phases which follow it don't bring us out of the recession, Richard Nixon almost certainly will be defeated next year, probably by Senator Edward M. Kennedy if it looks as if he can win.

If Nixon looms as a winner, as he presently does, Senator Edmund L. Muskie probably would be given the privilege of being defeated for President as well as Vice President.

The year 1971 brought happenings which were dramatic and humorous, comic and nerve shattering.

Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black retired at the age of 85, raising the very pertinent question of whether a man should be allowed to sit on the nation's highest tribunal as long as he chooses, regardless of whether he is still able to reason.

President Nixon announced in mid-July that he will visit Red China during 1972. Subsequently mainland China was admitted to the United Nations, and Nationalist China was kicked out over the objection and vote of the United States.

Political analysts figure that the trip to Peking will be a political plus for President Nixon, that he will not come home empty-handed. A gaze into the crystal ball would cause the guess that one or more Americans now incarcerated in Chinese prisons will accompany the President back to the United States.

That is not likely to injure Richard Nixon's chances of winning reelection; nor is the trip he will make later to Moscow.

On another note, one of the love stories of the century ended during 1971. It probably made its greatest impact upon those who personally knew John and Harriet McCormack. Death came to Harriet McCormack, former opera star and beauty, and when it did, something went out of the life of John W. McCormack, former Speaker of Congress, who for 13 months stood a heartbeat from the Presidency and in his lifetime did far more for Massachusetts than most people will ever realize although some are now beginning to understand.

John McCormack was the best informed man or woman on the measures pending before Congress.

When the other boys were having a poker game or enjoying a night on the town, John McCormack was in the hotel suite he shared with Hattie studying the bills to come before Congress, while his wife knitted.

He rose to become Majority Leader and Speaker on old-fashioned hard work. When another member wanted to know the real significance of a bill, he went to John McCormack and got a straight answer.

Thomas Dewey died in 1971 at the age of 62, and that brought back musty memories of a man who lost when the experts said it couldn't happen. Dewey was so heavy a favorite over Harry S. Truman in 1948 that Truman's cause was considered hopeless.

This writer was one who suspected otherwise when he saw the crowds who came out at dawn to hail the fighting underdog at the little whistlestops. It wasn't until he came into Massachusetts with the late Maurice Tobin and then went on to New York that most of the experts began to realize it was a horse race.

Cases upon cases of champagne remained unopened at the great celebration planned for Dewey.

Two teams of Astronauts landed on the moon and walked on it during 1971. Astronauts David R. Scott and James R. Irwin took a walk on the lunar surface and rode on it in an electric car. Astronaut Alfred M. Woden took a stroll in space.

But it's all right with us if we rest on our laurels as far as moon trips are concerned. We'll be satisfied to know what we know about the moon. It's uninhabitable. It has no atmosphere. People can't live there. Nothing can grow or exist there. It's a waste land in outer space.

Here's one vote against spending any more money or risking any more lives to bring moon rocks back to earth.

The memory of the three cosmonauts found dead in their capsule on their return to earth is still too fresh in mind.

We'd rather spend the millions on more food for the poor children who go to bed hungry every night, on better housing for the white and blacks living in slums, on better police protection for everyone.

Mayor Kevin H. White made a tremendous political comeback this year, as he won in the preliminary election and then went on to win a tremendous, clear-cut victory over Mrs. Louise Day Hicks.

Some of White's backers are talking about his spending the rest of his life as Mayor. That's actually silly. People tire of a public figure in a tough, demanding job such as Mayor.

The only high office-holders they elect for long periods of time are Congressmen and U.S. Senators. The longest period of time any person has served as Mayor of Boston was John B. Hynes who started out with an unusual two-year term and spent 10 years on the job.

White might be able to get the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1974 and then defeat his Republican opponent. But his friends now are urging that he give careful thought to running in 1972 for the seat in Congress held by Mrs. Hicks, formerly that of John McCormack.

White does not live in the district, but that is not required by law. Some of his closest advisers maintain that the district is made to order for him, with West Roxbury, Roslindale, Jamaica Plain, Dedham, Needham and Norwood in it.

State Senator Robert L. Cawley of West Roxbury, who drafted the congressional redistricting plan, obviously had no such thought in mind.

Wisconsin's Vote May End Lindsay For Presidency

One of the big political surprises of 1971 was the action of Mayor John Lindsay of New York in shifting from the Republican to the Democratic party and then a short time later becoming a Democratic candidate for President.

He's like the rookie who enlisted in the army and then announced he would like to be the head general.

On the basis of the sentiment this writer has found among Democratic leaders, Democratic workers and rank and file voters, Lindsay has no chance whatever of becoming the Democratic nominee for President. The pros don't even take him seriously.

A source close to him the other day said that he will not run in New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation Presidential Primary but that he will enter the Florida and Wisconsin Primaries.

If the sentiment this bystander encountered on a recent visit to Wisconsin is typical of that throughout the State, Lindsay not only is making a fatal error in choosing to enter the Democratic battle there, but his hopes also could end in Wisconsin.

Former Vice President Humphrey will outpoll Lindsay in Wisconsin in this onlooker's opinion. Former Senator McCarthy is now considered a joke.

Our long-range guess is that the Democratic candidate for President in 1972 will be either Senator Edmund Muskie or Hubert Humphrey, probably Muskie.

But if neither Muskie nor Humphrey emerges as an obvious choice, the Democratic bigwigs across the country will try to persuade Senator Ted Kennedy to pick up the pieces and do what he can with them.

"On an annual basis, acceptance of this proposal would mean a 59.8 percent increase over the present base. And this amount still does not include increases for principals, specialists and Newton Jr. College faculty whose salaries are tied to the teachers' schedule."

"In light of today's economic crisis, and the federal wage guidelines, the Newton Teachers Association proposal is neither reasonable nor attainable. The Newton School Committee is prepared to make a counteroffer when the Newton Teachers Association submits a realistic proposal."

Ward 5 School Committee member Edwin Hawkrige, who is retiring from the School Committee at the end of this year, proposed to amend the report to read, "In light of today's economic crisis, the federal wage guidelines, the present and proposed tax rate, and the prospect of a further reduction in state aid to Newton, the NTA proposal is neither reasonable nor attainable."

Hawkrige's proposed amendment was prompted, he said, by recent court decisions in California, Minnesota, and Texas, invalidating the use of the property tax as a basis for school funding.

"It's obvious," Hawkrige stated later, "that if they're going to increase state aid to the Somervilles, Chelseas, Fall Rivers and Bostons, they're going to have to take it from the wealthier communities—the Newtons, Concordes, and Lexingtons."

The proposed amendment was dismissed on the grounds that a subcommittee report could not be amended by a person not on the subcommittee.

School Committee Chairman Manuel Beckwith

of Ward 4 issued an additional statement declaring that "there is little wisdom in offering a salary counter proposal to the N.T.A. until such time as the N.T.A. seeks . . . to bargain for a reasonable and attainable salary schedule."

Beckwith asserted that the N.T.A. proposal would give a 70 per cent salary increase to a teacher with a Bachelor's degree on his third step of the present salary schedule. The teacher now receives $8,450. Beckwith said, and in moving to the fourth step on the schedule under the proposed salary schedule for next year would receive a $5,950 increase to a salary of $14,400.

A fourth-year teacher with a Master's degree, Beckwith said, would be raised from $9,250 to $16,400 on his next salary step, an increase of 77 per cent. A teacher with a Master's degree plus 30 hours of graduate study would receive an $8,100, or 82 per cent raise. "and our government asks for a 5.5 per cent limit," Beckwith declared.

Beckwith characterized the School Committee as having a policy of "even-handed fairness . . . and considerable restraint . . . even in the face of obstacles and provocation by the representatives of the N.T.A."

Ward 8 Committeeman Alvin Mandell presented a chart which he said illustrated that Newton teachers, by means of annual raises averaging more than 10 per cent, had garnered salary increases of approximately 50 per cent over the last four years—from $6,000 for a teacher with a Bachelor's degree in 1968, to $9,150 for that same teacher in 1971-72 after four years in the Newton school system.

Mandell's presentation was criticized by Ward 2 Committeewoman Eleanor Rosenblum, who termed it "unproductive" to talk about percentage increases in salary going back to a time when teachers were "recognizably underpaid."

However, Mrs. Rosenblum moved to endorse the report of the Negotiations Subcommittee, rejecting the N.T.A. proposal.

In a statement issued by the teacher's bargaining committee urging Newton citizens to support the $10,600 starting salary, the N.T.A. declared, "The salary

Local Families Find A Time For Sharing

Several local families have responded to the Graphic's recent appeal for homes for teenagers according to Mrs. Dorothy Andrews of Centre street, Newton, a member of the Placement Unit of the Boston Children's Service Association, a well-known and long established United Fund Agency.

These families have made the true holiday traditions of love and sharing a part of their daily lives.

More foster homes yet are needed. The agency seeks couples who could take as many as four children at a time as well as those who could care for one or two. Boys and girls, age 11 and over and especially teenagers, need homes for both temporary and permanent care.

The agency provides board and clothing, arranges for medical care and assists the foster parents in understanding and helping the child. If you can assist in this vital work, call Mrs. Mary Byrne at 227-3800 for more information.

Among the couples who share their home with these youngsters, not only at the holidays but all year long, and year after year are Mr. and Mrs. Dovey—of suburban Boston.

They sat down to their holiday table with their six foster sons, aged six to sixteen as well as their adopted son and daughter and seven grandchildren.

Now in their early 50's, they have shared their home with 22 boys over the 13-year period of being foster parents for the Boston Children's Service Association.

The Doveys have found many satisfactions in being "Mom" and "Dad" to these of a beginning teacher in Newton must equal the beginning salary of the average college graduate in the country.

"Newton teachers generally are no longer willing to accept a salary scale which subsidizes the education of the children of a very affluent suburb. If Newton citizens can afford a new high school, the cost of which is variously estimated from 20 to 30 million dollars, they can afford to pay an adequate salary to teachers working in that building."

School Committee members disputed the N.T.A. contention that costs of the new high school might go as high as 20 to 30 million dollars.

According to Ward 3 School Committeeman Richard M. Douglas, the cost of the new high school is "a matter of public record" and will amount to $18,550,000 including the cost of land-taking, site development, architect's fees and construction. The additional cost of interest charges on bonds will be offset by state aid, Douglas said, so that the cost to the city will not go over the $18.5 million figure.

Mayor-elect Theodore D. Mann, who at the time of his inauguration Jan. 1 will become an ex-officio member of the School Committee, commented that the entire question of municipal bonding was under review.

boys, many of whom came from broken homes and have only one parent. They have helped the boys who have emotional problems to become more secure, happy and well-adjusted. Many of the boys, now grown, return to visit the rambling ten room house and have invited Mom and Dad to their weddings.

It all started when the agency asked the Doveys to take in three brothers, aged 5, 8, and 10, back in 1958. Prior to that, Mrs. Dovey had taught kindergarten and worked with church groups of school-age girls. Over the five years that the Doveys worked with the agency social workers to help these brothers, they came to understand boys and have continued to care for three to six boys at a time.

The Doveys have plenty of land for coasting, skating and ball-playing. The boys refer to each other as "brothers" and to the Doveys they are their sons. On visiting day, there were neat piles of washed and mended clothes on the table for each boy to take to his room when he came in from school.

As they came in, they asked for cookies and one asked Dad to drive him to the library for a homework project. The home atmosphere is relaxed and informal. Each boy has a cat to care for which he has named. They take turns walking the two dogs. The boys have small chores and responsibilities, and the older boys help the smaller ones.

Each summer they spend a month camping with their foster parents, or sightseeing. They visited the World's Fair.

The Doveys have visited the agency regularly with the boys and have attended conferences at child guidance clinics for help in understanding the boys' needs. They have been active in foster parent groups. When they had been foster parents for 10 years, they were given an award by the agency.

The Doveys are a home-loving couple who have infinite patience and understanding. They feel that being foster parents has enriched their lives. They would be happy to talk with other couples who might be interested in becoming group foster parents.

Meeting Sets Pans For Newton's Center of Arts

Formation of a Newton Arts Council and the possible establishment of a permanent Newton Center for the Creative and Performing Arts was considered by a sizeable and enthusiastic gathering who responded most favorably to initiate plans, at an open meeting held at Countryside School recently. A study committee was formed for small, in-depth meetings, with another open meeting planned for later this month.

Community associations, city departments and individuals represented at the Dec. 15 meeting included the Newton Art Association, Metropolitan Museum of Art, Newton Civic Symphony, Newton Country Players, Newton Center Neighborhood Association, the Newton Times, Lee Daniels Enterprises, Countryside PTA, Alderman Ed Richmond, School Committee Board Member Elinor Rosenbloom and Mr. Hamilton of the Newton Recreation Department (Creative Arts).

Principle speaker of the evening was A. Elsom Eldridge Jr., of Manchester, N.H., executive director of the Medfield (Mass.) Center for the Creative Arts and recently appointed national director of the Association of Public Relations Research in the Arts. Mr. Eldridge was also the developer of the Creative Arts program at the new Chestnut Hill School this fall.

"You have an untapped goldmine here in Newton, the Garden City, but first of all you must join together," advised Mr. Eldridge. "A united effort is the first step. An alliance of cultural organizations makes for a total audience and it must be done by you, because you are the art environment of your community."

The key is to go after the children first, then the parents, then the teenagers, and then the whole family! Take one step at a time. Start with an Arts Festival, then a joint newsletter, and later, a summer program in creative arts. With the advent of audience development will also come the funding for the arts. Check the foundations in the area and find the foundation that likes you, likes your community and is located within its confines," he stated.

In less than two years time, Mr. Eldridge's program in Medfield occupied four buildings, with 500 families from 22 surrounding communities involved in creative art, dance, dramatics and music. Mr. Eldridge augmented his presentation with sound film and slides, which encompassed every phase of his highly successful fine arts and performing arts program, from pre-kindergarten to senior citizen.

The program was opened by Mrs. Cecce Sloan, who stressed for a common goal to unite the arts and the artists. The guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. Mikki Krassin. Others working on committee included Mrs. Marguerite Daly, Mrs. Joseph Golov and Mr. Daniel Kosow.

Calvin A. Hill
Vice President

How much are you spending for food each year? Can you sit down and actually itemize your cost weekly?

Well, when you do, if you find you are spending more than 30% of your gross income after payroll deductions and all Federal and State income taxes, then you are spending too much. If this is true, you definitely need to take more care in planning your food expenditures. Perhaps you can buy larger and more economical amounts, make better use of left-overs, take more advantage of specials, watch for coupons, refund "deals" and avoid impulse buying. Check weights against prices. In other words, shop slowly and carefully and maybe you can keep within that 30% range.

Newton High And South Track Teams Start With Wins

Tiger Trackmen In Easy Win Over Malden 67-19

By DAVID SOLOMON

With four newcomers capturing first places, and team victories in nine of ten events, Newton High's track team breezed to a 67-19 victory over Malden last Thursday.

The Tigers began in the right direction from the start, as Ken Gorfinkle ran a fine two-mile, winning the race with a 4:51.2 time. Due to a recurring knee injury, Gorfinkle, who was Cross Country co-captain and will be outdoor track co-captain, has not run competitively since early last spring. Coming off such a long absence, his time and effort was excellent. Junior Peter Wrenn captured third for Newton in this event.

Newton speedster Dave Douglas won the 1000 in comparatively easy form. But don't be fooled, because when Douglas runs, he is always far ahead of any other boys in the race. And no matter how it looks, it's never easy. The senior captain clocked a time of 2:26.6.

Jim Schpelser. He captured first with a 1:22.6 time, while his teammate, Steve Haley took third.

In the 300, Newton featured a one-two rookie punch. Mark Herendeen, a senior out for the first time, won the race with a 36.2 time. Sophomore Paul Magliocca finished second. Many observers feel that Magliocca is faster than superstar Alan Boyer was a sophomore three years ago.

Newton swept the shot put, with three underclassmen placing. Jay Murphy won the event with a toss of 42 feet, 2 1/4 inches. Lee Levinson finished second, and small but capable Bob Grossman placed third. All three have been able to throw further than they showed here.

The two-mile was the only event that Newton did win. Cross-country co-captain

Bobby Womboldt took the hurdles with a time of 6.4 while fellow Tiger Peter Fair took third.

Newton swept the dash and the high jump. Junior Jimmy Shaw ran the dash in 5.9, and was closely followed by Peter Waxman and Tom Kelleher. Sophomore Bill Seaward won the high jump with a top height of 5 feet, two inches. Bob Womboldt was second, and Gerry Kelleher was third.

Newton's relay team, of Dave Douglas, Paul Magliocca, Jim Shaw and Mark Herendeen, also won with a time of 2:40.2.

Newton will get a strong test this afternoon at two, when they compete against powerhouse Brockton at Northeastern.

South Grapplers Smear Walpole For 2nd In Row

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Newton South High's inexperienced wrestling team is maturing fast. The Lions smashed Walpole, 37-13, last week, for their second straight victory.

After losing nine front-line grapplers through graduation Coach Aredis Kojan was worried. South opened with a 27-22 come-from-behind triumph over Needham, not resembling the 15-1 squad of a year ago.

Paul Murphy, 134 pounds, and Jim Sellinger, 169 pounds, tallied five points each, winning South's only matches by pins.

Paul Linn, one of three sophomores in the line-up, made his varsity debut at 100 pounds and won, 6-2. Sophomore Mike Shockett won by forfeit at 107 pounds, co-captain Mike Forman, 114, crushed his opponent, 14-0, and Jon Sack, 121 pounds, registered a 9-7 decision to give the Lions a quick 14-0 lead.

Co-captain Rich Hill was edged, 5-4, before Murphy and 140-pound Dave Berkowitz, a 9-4 victor, ran the score to 22-3.

Walpole bounced back a little as Brian Corcoran and Sophomore Alan Reef — Reef by pin — were demolished in the 147 and 157-pound divisions, respectively.

South then ran out the score in the 169, 187 and unlimited classes, behind Sellinger, Vespa, a 3-2 decision, and Leny Adelman, a 6-4 decision.

The Lions, 2-0 meet Lexington, January 4.

South Hoopsters Shelled By Boston Latin 87-43

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Tough Boston City League entrant Boston Latin, flooring its best squad in five years, slaughtered Newton South High's hoopsters, 87-43, last week in a non-league encounter in Latin's seatless gym.

South meets Latin every year in one of its few non-league affairs, and traditional squads battle to close decisions. The purple-clad Bostonians compete in the toughest league in the state, which features perennial Tech Tourney teams, Boston English and Boston College High. Usually, both teams are near the bottom of their respective leagues and victory over the non-league rival is one of the few of the year.

Inner-city basketball is a tougher brand of ball than the suburbs. The game is rougher under the boards and it takes a physical team to win consistently in City League play. Unlike bastions of high school ball, New York City, Philadelphia and Washington, D.C., Boston's city teams are not far and away classier squads. They're just tougher, and when a short suburban team like Newton South invades, it feels it.

Latin started flying early and just kept adding to its lead, building straight up to its 44-point margin of victory. Big Mike McCuskey dominated the game, pumping in 25 points to lead all scorers. The help was bountiful; three members of the supporting cast also tallied in double figures. Tom Regan, 12, Jim Simmons, 12, and Joey Wallace, 10, fired away to break South's back.

The Lions featured a very balanced scoring attack — no one scored. Not one of the ten players employed by coach Chandler Phinney managed to break into double figures.

Guards Billy Hoban and Rich Izen collected eight points apiece for the top mark.

South has a week off between the Latin contest and its two games this week. The Lions face two more non-league opponents, each for the first time in regularly scheduled play. South plays Newton — based private school St. Sebastian's with the possibility of an intra-city rivalry emerging; and Roslindale, an old scrimmage foe, both at home. Newton South opens its Dual County League season versus Bedford, at 3:30 p.m., Tuesday, January 4, at the South High gymnasium.

South Trackmen Impress With 56-30 Victory Over Bedford

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Newton South High made its most impressive indoor track debut in eight years by creaming Bedford High, 56-30 in Dual County League action, last week.

South copped seven of ten events as Bedford fell victim to the league rule prohibiting the use of one participant in both (high jump, shot-put) field events, while allowing a competitor to run one event and compete in one field event.

This is the third time South has been involved in a mix-up in this rule interpretation since it joined the Dual County League, last year. The Lions were awarded a forfeit victory over Lincoln-Sudbury for the same rule infraction, last winter, and then were cost a 68-63 victory over Bedford in outdoor track. South coach Don Sutherland, though, is laughing long and loud after catching the Whalers with the same boo-boo.

Ken Green, a regular placer in the high jump and 45-yard hurdles last year, copped both his specialties to spark the South win. Green equaled his fastest time ever in the high jump with a 6.4 timing and recorded one of his best competitive high jumps at 5.7. Mike McKinney, rebounding from a broken knee-cap which cost him a year of competition, finished second behind Green both times and newcomer Bill Jones completed the sweep in the high jump for an important 17-1 bulge in the two events.

Howie Haimes, Newton South's all-time top football scorer and well on his way to claiming the same distinction in track, blasted a good early-season time of 34.9 in the 300 for five points.

Linn Impresses
Senior Roy Linn, one of the most improved runners on the squad last year, improved some more this year, notching one of his best times ever of 1:21.1, to lead a Lion sweep of the 600-yard run. Newcomers Chuck Linde and Mike Snider showed well in their first Varsity run.

With Bedford forfeiting the shot-put Charley Applestein, Jim Sobel and Bob Smith went one-two-three for South.

Sprinter Elliot Loew also claimed a share of first-place in the 40-yard dash in 4.9, for four points.

Cross-country find Byron Ress and junior John Mason aided South's perennially weak distance corps and broke up a Bedford monopoly in the 2-mile and mile, respectively, with second-place finishes. Peter Koster also managed a third in the 1000-yard run.

Loew, Linde, Linn and Haimes blew the Whalers off the map in the relay with a good 2:37.0 clocking for the 1440-yard race.

The Lions looked impressive in their opener, but also got a glimpse of the Dual County League's top two teams and what lies between them and a league title. In a meet going on at the same time in the Wayland Field House, Wayland edged Acton-Bororo, 47-39. The Warriors were paced by quality performances from Rich Salazar, 10:03 2-mile, Marc Salzberg, 2:27.3 1000, state champion high-jumper Peter Howland, 6-1, and a 2:30.9 relay team. Acton featured league mile record-holder Howie Scribner, 4:33.9, Gary Webb, 33.9 300, and John Williams, 51-feet, 1/4-inch, shot-put. It's going to be rough beating that kind of talent.

Tiger Hoopsters Continue Slowly With Two Defeats

By DAVID SOLOMON

Call it a rebuilding year, or maybe attribute it to the inexperience among the players as a team unit. But whatever the case or the reasons, it is becoming increasingly clear that Newton's basketball team will not again enjoy the great success it earned last season.

The Tigers began their long Suburban League trek last week, and came away with two solid losses.

On December 21 Newton faced highly touted Weymouth North, and were beaten 62-52 by this tough and experienced team. The Tigers did manage to keep the game close, as their South Shore opponents never led by more than ten.

But Weymouth kept a reasonable cushion between them and Newton for most of the game. Weymouth led 11-0 after the first quarter, and 29-22 at the half. Their margin was nine at the close of the third quarter, 46-37.

All-Suburban League Rindge Tech may be good, but certainly they're not as powerful as Newton made them appear last Thursday. The team from Rindge ran and passed all over the Tigers, while registering a 68-49 whipping.

Newton was still in the game at the end of the half, as they trailed 30-23. But Rindge rattled off four straight hoops to start the third quarter, and Newton never came close again. Rindge had a comfortable 49-34 lead at the quarter, and at one point late in the game led by as much as 22. It got so bad that some faithful Newton alumni in the stands professed their willingness to suit up.

In plain terms, Newton looked bad. They were not coordinating well as a unit. Their passing and shooting were erratic. They were clearly outplayed by a margin which at their present level, appears difficult to surmount. But it can be done. Coach Jerry Phillips feels that the team will make great progress as they gain added experience and maturity. We'll soon see.

Newton Hockey Team Evens Record With 4-1 Victory

By DAVID SOLOMON

Some people insist that goaltending is where hockey games are won or lost. With Newton's most recent and first victory as a prime example, it would be tough to prove otherwise. Tim Pitts, as the old saying goes, did it all in the net as the Newton icemen defeated Cambridge Latin last Thursday. The score was 4-1, but this does not really indicate the true flow of the game, for Cambridge was not noticeably outplayed. Pitts had a total of 26 saves, and was especially impressive in the second period, when he had ten saves. "Timmy saved the game for us," commented Newton coach Francis Kinlin.

Co-captain Wally Cox was as usual the key offensive weapon for the Tigers, as he scored one goal and assisted on two others. Cox opened the game's scoring at 7:15 of the first period when he connected on a fifteen-foot wrist shot. His goal was unassisted, as was Mark Howley's early second-period score. Cambridge then outplayed Newton for the remainder of the period, finally scoring at 11:28 when Ed Lange connected from in front of the net. He had stolen the puck from a slow-clearing Tiger defense.

Newton tallied for two insurance goals in the final period. Mark Donovan scored on a pass from Cox midway through the period, and about half a minute later co-captain Jim Fay scored. Assists on this goal went to Cox and sophomore defenseman Cal Moffie.

It may be insignificant to look at Newton's scoring this early in the season, but Wally Cox is continuing on his team-leading pace of last year. The senior center leads the team with five points in two games. Jimmy Fay is second on the team with four points. Both players have two goals.

Newton South High Hockey Team Off To Rough Start

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Bedford High was cruising along blithely towards the Dual County League hockey title, last year. Bedford, 11-2, was about to break Wayland High's five-year stranglehold on the championship. Wayland's 44-game streak had been stopped by Newton South and then Bedford added to the insult with another win. Wayland stood at 10-2-1 with a sure victory on the schedule for its last game. Bedford faced only fifth-place Newton South.

The overconfident Whalers, were held to a 2-2 tie and were forced to share the crown. David slew Goliath, or so it seemed, as he was wounded him, at least.

That was last February. Last week, the Whalers, out for revenge, met the Lions in the squads' Dual County League opener. Bedford, with 10 lettermen returning, is again a favorite for the title. South, with nine lettermen back, is out to move up in the standings. Both squads had something to prove. Bedford wanted to prove that the tie was a fluke. Newton South to prove that it was not. Bedford did the proving this time.

The fired up Whalers took 35 shots on beleaguered rookie goaltender Jim Caruso, who stood up admirably under pressure, but was finally overcome by the barrage. South succumbed, 7-2, at the Billerica Forum.

Bob Ronayne scored the Lions' first goal of the season after set-up passes from Steve McElroy and Rich Dunne, who both got assists. South's 1-0 lead was short-lived. Bedford roared back with two scores within 19 seconds for a 2-1 first-period lead.

The second stanza was one the Lions would like to forget. Bedford bombed Caruso for four goals and a 6-1 lead before Dunne deflected in a Ronayne shot for Newton's other goal. Ronayne and Ken Aries got assists. Bedford scored once in the

Debunk Myths About Booze And Driving

The Mass. Division of the American Automobile Association today debunked three major myths about drinking and driving.

MYTH: Whiskey relaxes you and makes you a better driver.
FACT: Alcohol is the motorist's worst enemy. It impairs driving skills while increasing self-confidence.

MYTH: If you make your last drink coffee, you'll be in good condition to drive home.
FACT: Not true, says the AAA. Coffee does nothing to sober you up.

MYTH: You can drink all you want if you eat as you drink.

FACT: Wrong. But food does help because it slows the rate that your system absorbs alcohol. Food also may reduce your desire for more drinks.

According to Richard W. Hoover, Safety Director for AAA's Mass. Division: "Whether or not a person drinks is a personal matter. But when the person drinks and then drives it becomes a public matter because he may endanger the lives of innocent people."

Budget-

In addition, he said, the whole area of drug education is a case of "tremendous overkill". He criticized a summer project in which he said two teachers had spent most of the time in reviewing already-existing written materials.

Cutting out the summer program, replied Division of Instruction head Henry H. Atkins, could be "a real blow to the system". "Imaginative teaching requires that teachers give some of their own blood to the program. And even 'canned programs' require some teacher training. Summer is almost the only time when these things can be done.

"The summer curriculum is the lifeblood of the system. It gives teachers a chance to examine what is done in the classroom. Pilot programs must be examined, evaluated and spread to other classrooms.

"An example is our trying to adopt a curriculum to deal with perceptual handicaps so they don't become learning problems. We only fund those programs which will have real impact on the system as a whole—we're not parochial."

Added Superintendent Fink, "We have already cut program requests by 54 to 60 per cent, although really we would like to add to the program."

The Castle Square program, Atkins said, is a "relatively new concept" in which junior high school students went into the South End of Boston to study the city. "We developed ways of working with the students to generate curriculum as an ongoing process, as kids came into contact with the city. It couldn't have been done during the school year."

Mayor-elect Theodore D. Mann, stated that he was pleased with what he observed of the Castle Square program. In answer to a question from Mann, about what the financial contribution of Boston was, Atkins stated that EdCo participated in the funding of the project. "We got our money's worth."

The law course, Atkins said, will be given next semester. Harold Beattie, District Coordinator of Program, said that drug education materials are being circulated to the schools as they are procured.

School Committee member Eleanor S. Rosenblum challenged Mandell's criticism of the summer guidance program. In response to his contention that the assignment and scheduling of students should be taken care of by computer, she declared that the guidance teams "have to give individual thought to which kids should be grouped with which team of teachers."

In answer to a question from School Committeeman Richard M. Douglas, concerning whether the School Department would spend money for development of a single course, Atkins stated that he was thinking of trying to develop a course in Chinese studies.

He also said last summer, funds were allocated to develop a new social studies course for curriculum 11 students at Newton South High. The standard course on Western Civilization, it was felt, was too heavily verbal requiring enormous amounts of reading.

Fink declared that it was impossible to develop such materials during the school year. "The Department Chairman doesn't organize a course by himself. But summer is the best time to develop materials and train teachers. The Tuesday or Thursday early afternoons off are only in the elementary schools. At the High Schools, teachers work all afternoon and even at night. Their first job during the school year is to work with kids. But they also need time to sit down and evaluate."

In answer to a question from Committeewoman-elect Joan Needleman, Atkins said that last year, programs were under-enrolled because they were advertised too late in the year. This year, he hopes to advertise before parents have made plans for their children, he said. There is a nominal fee, with scholarships available.

In addition to the Summer Curriculum and summer guidance work, the Auxiliary Programs include work-study programs; tutoring for emotionally disturbed and handicapped children; physical education for the mentally retarded; sabbatical leaves; athletic programs; extra-curricular assignments; sabbatical leaves; summer testing for kindergartners and children with special disabilities; Troubadours (singers) and the All-Newton Junior High School Orchestra; camp program; higher training levels; clerical and temporary help; staff consultants.

Large increases were granted in the work-study program and the music program. Approximately half of work-study expenses are reimbursed and go back into the city treasury.

Assistant Superintendent James Laurits told the Committee that there is a $103,577 increase in the auxiliary budget, with 47 per cent going for expansion of programs, and 53 per cent for salary increases. Because of salary increases, items on the auxiliary budget which show the same funding as last year actually represent cutbacks, he said.

Noting that the personnel budget constitutes 25 per cent of the school budget, the School Committee debated at length on a motion by Vincent P. Stanton to appoint a subcommittee to discuss this section of the budget in detail.

The proposal was opposed by Superintendent Fink, who declared that subcommittees have a tendency to try to dictate policy on purely administrative matters such as staffing patterns.

In an interview of the personnel budget, Laurits said that 10 1/2 staff positions had been cut in the school system as a whole, in addition to a considerable amount of shuffling of personnel to fill requests for additional people in certain areas. Five elementary school jobs were eliminated, two and a half secondary posts, and three unassigned posts. The substitute teaching budget was cut, with teacher aides taking up some of the slack.

In an overview of the staff, Laurits said that 55.6 per cent of all the staff is tenured, 39 per cent possess Master's Degrees, 59.7 per cent are female and 40.3 per cent are male.

The Music Department had requested eight new positions, the Art Department 4.2 additional staff. The Business Services Division announced a need for 5 more custodial positions at the new high school, new Day Jr. High, and the new administrative offices. The Burr School was decreased by two positions, the Bigelow increased by four.

Laurits told the School Committee that staffing ratios were very good, and that the present policy of slightly improving the ratio while cutting staff should be continued.

Mrs. Rosenblum charged that some schools were advantaged, in terms of staffing expenditures, others disadvantaged. Even allowing for differences in seniority of teachers, she said, Meadowbrook Jr. High and Oak Hill and Spaulding elementary schools were considerably better off than most comparable schools, while Lincoln Eliot was getting less than its share.

Title 1 (government) funds should be used, not to equalize staffing or expenditures among schools, but to provide extra personnel and funding, beyond the average, in schools with a disadvantaged population.

Stanton replied that if special education classes were not figured into the staffing ratios at Oak Hill, it would be comparable to other schools.

A preliminary vote on the Budgets for Personnel and Auxiliary Program will be taken at the next meeting of the School Committee next Monday (Jan. 3) at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium at Bigelow Junior High School.

Monthly Event
By Central C. Church Jan. 5

The Women's Association of the Central Congregational Church at 218 Walnut Street, Newtonville, will hold its monthly meeting in the Church on Wednesday, January 5, at 12:30 p.m. Guest speaker at the luncheon meeting will be Stuart D. Chase, of Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries.

Mr. Chase is a member of the Public Relations staff at Morgan Memorial. His talk, titled "It's In the Bag," is a story about Goodwill.

This marks the first time the Women's Association has had a Goodwill speaker. Between 50 and 60 persons are expected at the meeting.

Program co-chairmen are Mrs. Jean Mercer, of 27 Rosedale Road, Watertown, and Mrs. Donald Welch, of 115 Fairway Drive, West Newton.

Mrs. Earl Albans, of 352 Cabott Street, Newtonville, is President of the organization.

Mr. Chase will reveal some of the behind-the-scenes activities of Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries in Boston, Lynn and Worcester, in the job training and rehabilitation program for 600 handicapped and disadvantaged people.

He will also tell about the Goodwill Camps and Goodwill Inn School. The Morgan Memorial Goodwill Centers began their 76th year in 1971.

Goodwill Industries, beginning in Boston has now spread across the world where there are 145 non-profit Goodwills in the U.S. and 25 overseas.

At Goodwill, handicapped workers clean and refurbish clothing, furniture and other materials which are then sold in Goodwill Thrift Stores at economy prices. The entire proceeds from the stores help pay the wages of the handicapped workers. Throughout the workers vocational program is interwoven personal rehabilitation programs.

Although Morgan Memorial is 80 percent self-supporting, it is currently facing a deficit because of inflation, the increasing costs of materials and operations and is totally dependent upon materials and financial donations to sustain its programs.

The final vote on the entire budget will be taken Jan. 31, after five more weeks of meetings every Monday night. Copies of budget information will be available at Newton Libraries.

Pledge Of Allegiance led by City Engineer U. M. Schiavone, Captain in the U. S. Navy (Res.), completes the opening ceremonies, while an invocation by the Rev. John W. Corcoran of the Sacred Heart Parish of Newton will cap the afternoon ritual.

Following the exercises there will be a reception in the Auditorium of the War Memorial, which is adjacent to City Hall. It is reported that Lieutenant Governor Donald R. Dwight may attend the reception.

Inaugural festivities will continue over the weekend with a reception Sunday evening (Jan. 2) at 8 p.m. at the Marriott Motor Hotel, tendered in honor of Mayor-elect Mann. The event will be attended by more than 3,000 persons.

The Inauguration, the inaugural reception in the War Memorial, and the reception for Mayor-elect Mann at the Marriott Hotel are all open to the public. Those wishing to attend the Marriott reception are invited to call the Inaugural Reception Committee at 969-4715.

Mayor-elect Mann, who will preside over Newton's Centennial Observance, marking its one-hundredth year as a city, served four consecutive terms as a Newton alderman, before being elected to the State House of Representatives.

Active in business for more than 25 years, Mann was formerly in the insurance business before deciding to devote himself full-time to the office of Mayor, and has served as Executive Officer and Director of several financial and industrial organizations.

He has chaired the Newton campaigns for the United Fund and the Cancer Appeal, and is prominent in Kiwanis. A 49-year-old veteran of World War II, he was educated in the Boston Public Schools, and at Boston University and Boston College.

He and his wife Florence (Ober) have five children: Leslie, Rickie, both college students, Eric, 13, and twin daughters Debbie and Stacie, who attend Newton public schools.

As successor to retiring three-term Mayor Monte G. Basbas, Mann has been working with Mayor Basbas for nearly two months to plan the transition to a new administration.

Transfer-

Applications would have to be submitted by April 1, and would be processed in the order in which they were received. Tentative approval of the transfer would be given by June 15, with the understanding that the transfer could be revoked at any time up to the end of the first week of school in September, if there were an influx of students into the classroom to which the child was transferring.

The child would be required to stay in his new classroom for one full year.

In practice, Fink stated, the proposal would apply only to elementary schools at present, since under-enrollment does not exist at the secondary level.

Asking that the proposal be limited initially to a one-year trial period, Ward 2 School Committeewoman Eleanor S. Rosenblum suggested that the arrangement in practice was open "only to people who have the means — tax fare or a second car" to transport children to another school.

Retiring Ward 7 Committeeman Vincent P. Stanton expressed fear that the proposal would be divisive. "It could enhance the ability of the haves to get away from the have-nots, the Christians to get away from the Jews. I don't mean to get emotional about public education, but that is what we are committed to," Stanton declared.

He also pointed out that the transfer would be approved in each case for a one-year period only, depending on changes in enrollment. "Parents should know that a transfer going into first grade does not represent a commitment to carry the child" through all the grades in the school to which he transferred, Stanton maintained.

Edwin Hawkridge, retiring Committeeman from Ward 5, also asserted that the proposal could lead to "increasing segregation by ethnic origin."

In response to a question by Committeeman Alvin Mandell of Ward 8, Director of Pupil Personnel Services John Cullinane stated that there were 20 transfer students at Bigelow Jr. High School alone, representing 4 per cent of the school's enrollment last year. Mandell calculated that there were probably 200 transfer students in the city at present.

Accusing his fellow School Committee members of discussing "feelings, not facts," Mandell declared, "This proposal arose out of a request from Countryside School, where two overcrowded classrooms wished to move over the line to Oak Hill. You are over-emphasizing the possible negative aspects."

The proposal was tabled, pending an opinion by the city solicitor.

'Underachievers' Course To Be Held At Newton Location

There is a growing concern among various groups in and out of the educational field on how to motivate and direct "underachieving" adolescents. For the most part, the "underachiever" is described as having the ability to academically achieve but rarely does on the basis of their performance. In addition, a variety of other symptoms become evident. The "underachiever" generally lacks definite goals, prefers not to make commitments, rarely blames himself when things go wrong, only does well at what he likes, is unrealistic and avoids responsibility.

A program that has been aiding "underachievers" develop realistic attitudes and Social Security Information

MEDICARE DEADLINE

Friday, December 31, is the deadline for filing Medicare claims for medical services received from October 1, 1969, through September 30, 1970, according to Anthony C. Chiotso, social security manager in Roslindale.

"The law set this deadline for paying medical insurance claims," Chiotso said. "It applies to medical supplies covered by Medicare as well as services."

Claims are filed on "Request for Medicare Payment" forms available at most doctors' offices and at any social security office. "After the form is filled out, it should be sent to Medicare, Mass. Medical Service, P.O. Box 2194, Boston, Mass. 02106," Chiotso said.

To avoid delay in payment, Medicare patients should file claims promptly after they get their doctor bills, he said.

Medical insurance is the voluntary part of Medicare that helps pay for doctor bills and other health care services and supplies for almost everyone over 65. It is funded by individual premiums that are matched by the Federal Government. It is administered by the Social Security Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

If you have any questions about Medicare or social security, call 423-3700.

Language of The Table Tells Much

"Body language" is not the only means by which a person can express himself without words, according to a New York City man.

"People talk with their silverware and the dishes, too," said David Aboulafia, maitre d' at the Men's bar in the Roosevelt Hotel. "I guess you could call it luncheon language."

Aboulafia had finished reading the best selling book "Body Language" when he suddenly realized he makes similar observations on his job every day.

"Actually, I've always been fascinated by the way people eat and drink," he said. "Think of it. These are really the two basic human needs, what you need to survive, so the movements connected to them can be intimately natural and revealing."

One day, for example, Aboulafia seated a group of four men. "One of them ordered a bottle of wine. He had a way of presiding over the bottle, refilling the other glasses himself. I could tell it was a staff meeting. There was even a kind of pecking order the way they drank, waiting for him first while the youngest guy finished his wine last."

Through all his observations at the Roosevelt, Aboulafia says he has

Unique High School Is A Luxury Yacht

By MARTIN McREYNOLDS

One of the world's most glamorous sailing yachts is out to sea again, this time as a floating high school.

The 316-foot, steel-hulled motor sailor was built in Kiel, Germany, 40 years ago. Called by turns Hussar, Sea Cloud, Angelita and Patria, she has known days of luxury, nights of pleasure, months of military duty and years of neglect.

Her name is Antarna now, after the star Antares, brightest in the constellation Scorpio. Tied up at a Miami dock for two years, she got a final refitting at a New Orleans shipyard before starting an eight-month world cruise with 60 high school students aboard.

"We'll go through the Panama Canal, around South America and up to West Africa for a stop on the Ivory Coast," said Nevar Makofka, a former math teacher from Alberta, Sask., who is acting director of the school. "Then we'll tour the Mediterranean and head for home via the Cape Verde Islands."

The Antarna carries 34,000 square feet of canvas. Her engines produce 5,000 horsepower. The cruise will be made mainly under sail. The school is operated by Oceanics, Inc., of New York, which has leased the vessel from the Panama-based owner, Operation Sea Cruise.

"This will be my junior year of high school. It's really fantastic," said one of the "crewmen," Phil Giudice, 16, of Greenwich, Conn.

The 50 boys and 10 girls aboard will act as crew under a staff of professional officers. Regular high school subjects will be supplemented by courses on oceanography and classes related to the countries visited. Tuition is $7,000, but Makofka said many students have scholarships covering at least half the amount.

The latest cruise should be tame compared to past adventures of the ship that was built for more than $1.2 million in 1931 for Mrs. Marjorie Merriweather Post, the breakfast food heiress of Palm Beach and Washington.

A crew of 72 was on hand to operate the yacht and serve Mrs. Post's guests at elegant society affairs amid plush surroundings. She spent an additional $267,000 on furnishings.

developed a glossary of luncheon language types which include the following: The "conductors" who use their silverware in conversation. "They sort of point with everything, just like a baton," he said.

The "stirrers" who "listen a lot. They sit there stirring their cocktails or coffee, just listening and thinking. They seem very intelligent."

The "twisters" who tend to be indecisive. "They keep turning the handles on their silver as if they are trying to make up their minds about something."

The equalizers who eat in balanced portions. "They seem incredibly well organized, almost as though they enjoy their efficiency as much as the food."

In 1936, Mrs. Post sent the yacht to Leningrad, where she and her husband, Joseph E. Davies, used it as home and office for almost two years while he was U.S. Ambassador to the Soviet Union. The name Hussar was changed diplomatically to Sea Cloud.

The Sea Cloud's peaceful voyaging was interrupted in 1942, when she was leased by the U.S. Navy, which equipped her with deck guns and put her on convoy duty.

Mrs. Post spent more than $3 million refurbishing and operating the yacht after its wartime service. When the government ruled these expenses were not tax-deductible, she was forced to sell the Sea Cloud in 1951 to a Jacksonville, Fla., shipbuilder for $500,000.

In 1955, Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, dictator of the Dominican Republic, bought the yacht and renamed it after his daughter Angelita.

The vessel was dubbed a floating boudoir when Trujillo's playboy son, Rafael Jr., docked it at San Pedro, Calif., in 1958. The younger Trujillo, known as "Ramfis," was attending a U.S. Army officers' school in the Midwest, between parties.

When congressmen angrily inquired whether the dictator's son was using U.S. aid funds for his entertainment expenses, Ramfis withdrew from the Army School. He pouted aboard the Angelita, where he could host his Hollywood friends, who included actresses Kim Novak and Zsa Zsa Gabor.

The Angelita's weirdest adventure was a sea-going hearse following the elder Trujillo's assassination in 1961. His body was hidden behind the yacht's main cocktail lounge to keep it from angry mobs.

After a few months of trying to govern the country in his own way, Ramfis Trujillo fled the Dominican Republic aboard the Angelita in November, 1961, taking his father's body packed in dry ice.

The new Dominican government sent a gunboat to get the yacht back. With Ramfis in exile and his father's corpse buried in Europe, the Angelita became part of the Dominican Navy, renamed Patria Fatherland. When the upkeep proved too expensive, she was sold to the present owners in 1966.

After a complete overhaul, the yacht set out in February, 1969, on a shakedown cruise to Nassau, as the Antarna. Twelve luxurious staterooms with mahogany paneling and gold-plated bathroom fixtures were ready for well-heeled tourists.

Financial problems apparently scuttled the luxury cruises, which were never made. The Antarna languished at dockside until the call came this year to sail again, this time with a teen-age crew—like a once-glamorous lady taking up school—teaching after she turns 40.

Street Naming Is Problem For N.Y. Draftman

Part of Eric Felter's job is to dream up names for streets, which isn't as easy as it sounds.

In most communities, street names develop as does the area—the wide road in Manhattan became Broadway, and the principal thoroughfare in countless towns and cities just naturally became Main Street.

But Felter must start from scratch, naming neighborhoods and streets in the residential communities built by Levitt and Sons. He's been at it since 1954 and has named more than 2,000 streets since then.

Felter's real job is as the company's chief draftsman, but nights and weekends he dreams up street names.

"It's much too busy in the office with the telephones ringing and constant interruptions to concentrate on names," he said.

Naming begins when Felter receives the preliminary road layout of a Levitt community. First he isolates the neighborhoods—sections usually divided by major roads.

Sections are named, if possible, for local landmarks or historical events. Fountain View, a section of Belair, Md., for instance, overlooks a 150-foot fountain.

Next come the street names, and the usual process is to have each street in a section begin with the same letter. Felter must keep the size of the area in mind, because there are some letters such as "S" that offer wider possibilities than, say, "Z."

He must be sure street names are easy to pronounce

Dream Town Offers High Life - At a Price

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

The businessmen balancing the convenience of a city home near his job against the appeal of a suburban dwelling all too often ends up with a long commute and little time to spend with his family or the recreational pursuits he'd enjoy.

Most accept it as a way of life, dreaming now and then of that ideal spot where work, home and recreation would be within a stone's throw, adding hours of living to every day.

Increasingly, this is a dream that is coming true as more and more firms move their operations out of the cities to suburban, and even semi-rural, locations.

In southern California's Newport Beach, for instance, there is the mile-square Newport Financial Center, a financial, business, medical and major shopping center. A 10 or 15 minute drive north, is the giant Irvine Industrial Complex where some 300 firms employ 21,000 people and new industry moves in weekly.

In the center of this action and offer no alternate spellings to confuse residents. He has to check to be sure a street name he wants to use hasn't already been designated elsewhere in the county, or in another Levitt community (this might confuse "illing").

Street naming means a lot of extra work for Felter, but it has one compensation. There is a street somewhere in a Levitt community named after each of his five daughters.

And, of course, somewhere among the Levitt constructions, there is a Felter Lane.

is Big Canyon, a $60 million luxury community being developed by the Irvine Company where the business executive can live close to both work and recreation.

The 390-acre site is being developed around a new, private Big Canyon Country Club and golf course. The community, which will contain more than 400 dwelling units and home sites, parks and lakes, is close, also, to boating and yachting facilities.

It is, obviously, a community for the affluent. Its single family homes are priced from $75,000 to $100,000. Condominiums will run from $75,000 to $115,000. Custom fairway building lots overlooking the golf course are priced from $35,000 to $75,000 and homes built on these will range to $500,000.

"The premise on which Big Canyon was based is that business executives want to live close to both work and recreation," said Frank Hughes, Irvine vice president in charge of residential development.

That this premise is sound, Hughes said, is shown by those statistics:

"To date, more than 50 percent of the buyers of homes and lots at Big Canyon work in the immediate area."

"Since the opening in late June, sales of homes, fairway homesites and condominiums have topped the $10 million mark. The first residential increment of 68 homes was quickly sold out—and there's a line of buyers waiting for the next unit. The custom lots are being bought up and the first condominium unit has been nearly sold out."

The same thing he said, is happening at the country club, the first private club organized in Orange County since World War II. Equity memberships started at $7,500 went up rapidly to $9,500 and are going higher still, with applications continuing to come in.

The golf course is the principal unifying element of the community, Hughes said.

"The tree-lined fairways, containing six man-made lakes, wind their way through Big Canyon, serving as a vast green belt for the community. Protected views, landscapes, and interweaving landscape patterns provide continuity between the golf course and homesites," he explained.

Luxury features are predominant in all the homes. The four and five-bedroom single family homes have at least two fireplaces. Tile is used lavishly in family rooms, kitchens and baths. Kitchens contain the latest appliances.

There are step-down living rooms, formal dining rooms, separate breakfast nooks, master bedroom suites with private baths and separate dressing areas, three car garages with automatic door openers and up to 10 sliding glass doors leading to gardens, patios and pool areas.

The condominium section will offer two, three and four bedroom units. As a result of a unique "golf island" plan, all 230 homes in the project will be completely surrounded by fairways. The homes have been designed to meet the demands of families who want formal living environment with minimal concern over maintenance and upkeep of their homes and neighborhoods.

Headlights And Highlights From Newton South High

By JANICE E. KAPLAN

Newton South students and teachers are currently enjoying a week of Christmas vacation. When they return, they will find a major change in the library, for Head Librarian Eleanor Trowbridge has retired after eleven years in the Newton school system.

Miss Trowbridge helped to begin the Newton South library in 1960. She was selected as its head in 1968, and shortly after the library was re-named the Margaret W. Erskine Library in honor of its founder.

A thirty-two year veteran of library work, Miss Trowbridge worked in Lexington before coming to Newton. She has seen the Newton South library undergo many structural changes in the past years.

Miss Trowbridge recalls when students were required to have passes from teachers in order to use the library facilities. Later, students were allowed to come during study periods, but attendance was carefully recorded. Now students are free to use the library at any time and for their own purposes.

Principal Geer has recommended Mrs. Mary Nelson to fill position vacated by Miss Trowbridge. Mrs. Nelson is currently in charge of the audio-visual section of the South library, and she is looking forward to her new responsibilities.

Curriculum Review

The Overall Curriculum Review Board has unanimously defeated the proposal to change the class rank system. The proposal called for honors courses to receive a higher point value than currently implemented. Points are assigned courses by weighted averages, and from this a student's grade point average is determined.

The feeling of the Board was that honors students already receive extra consideration in college admissions simply by having the honors courses on their transcripts. The decision ended the several weeks of controversy and debate which surrounded the proposal.

Senior Class

The class of 1972 is currently making plans for its traditional senior activities. Among the upcoming projects are the senior prom and symposium. Class response and interest will determine the details of both activities.

Regulus, class yearbook, is now on sale for $7.75. This year's Regulus has a new format. It will come in a box and include the regular senior section as well as additional loose-leaf pages. The latter will include informal individual and group pictures. A record which will play the sounds of Newton South will also be a part of the yearbook.

Club Notes

The Outing Club is having great success with its winter activities. The club recently had a cross-country ski weekend in New Hampshire. The twenty-two students and five teachers rented a cabin and skied in the woods behind Mr. Geer's New Hampshire home.

Other day and overnight trips are currently being planned. In the offing for later in the year are hiking, sailing, and bicycling trips.

The debating team dropped its first meet of the season to Brookline High School with a 4-0 score. The team is debating the national high school topic which states "Resolved: The Jury System in the United States should be significantly changed." After a very successful season last year, the team is once again in the Suburban Debating League.

The debaters will have nine more debates this year, and they expect a challenging season.

Republicans Launch Drive For Ward Committees

The Newton Republican Committee is soliciting new members for its eight ward committees, according to city GOP Chairman Julius L. Masow.

The membership drive is part of a reorganization of the local party organizations in both Democratic and Republican parties, which must take place by law every four years, before the presidential primary.

Persons interested in serving on one of the 35 seats in each Ward Committee should call Masow at DE 2-0758, or should contact the Committee Chairman for their Ward: in Ward one, Miss Adelaide Ball; in Ward two, Wignmore A. Pierson; Ward three, Henry Brown; Ward four, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walsh; Ward five, Robert Corbett; Ward six, Michael Lipof; Ward seven, Mr. and Mrs. G. Nicholas Dawson; Ward eight, Melvin B. Clayton.

The Ward Committee votes on all names. Normally all persons who sign up are given committee membership but anyone excluded may have his or her name put on a public ballot.

The Ward Committees elect delegates to the state conventions where the Lieutenant Governor and Governor are nominated. Republican activists point out that the Committee also work to get out the vote, and may influence the course of a presidential election depending on whether they work harder to get voters to the polls who support one or another of the contenders for the nomination.

Newton Coalition Endorses Caucus

Edward B. Kovar of Newton Centre, co-chairman of the Newton Coalition for New Politics, announced recently that the Coalition Steering Committee has voted to endorse the Massachusetts Citizens' Presidential Caucus, taking place at Assumption College in Worcester on Saturday, Jan. 15.

Despite some initial doubts about the structure of the proposed convention, a majority of the steering committee will urge coalition members to participate both as volunteer workers and as delegates to the Caucus.

Kovar said the majority sees the Caucus as an "exciting opportunity for Massachusetts citizens to participate in a novel kind of grass-roots approach to the process of presidential politics."

Kovar sees the caucus as a place where liberal and anti-war voters may seek ways of influencing next spring's presidential primary.

For further information, call Kovar evenings at DE 2-5575.

Warren Jr. High To Give "Fiddler" For 4 Nights

The students of Warren Jr. High School, of West Newton, will present their production of "Fiddler on the Roof" at Bigelow Jr. High School on January 12, 13, 14, and 15, 1972. Performances each night will begin at 7:30.

From the way rehearsals are going the performance should be outstanding. Teachers have been working with the cast and chorus long hours after school helping to make this the best musical play ever produced at Warren.

Vocal music and dialogue are being directed by Mr. John Norton, Warren's vocal music teacher. Instrumental music will be directed by Mr. Thomas Leonard, Warren's instrumental music teacher. A. Warren parent, Mrs. Ellie Bassett, is directing choreography. Props, scenery, and costumes are being supervised by Mr. Chuck Hancock, Mrs. Anne-Marie Moore, and Mrs. Othelma Neisler, respectively.

Inadequate auditorium facilities at Warren make it necessary that the school use the Bigelow auditorium, a new, modern, well equipped facility. Mr. Robert Frost, Principal of Bigelow Jr. High, has been most cooperative, as has been Mr. Robert Provencher in rendering technical assistance to our efforts, and in organizing Bigelow pupils who will serve as ushers and ticket takers.

Tickets may be purchased from members of the cast. Reservations may be made by calling 244-8651 or 8652.

Newton Man Installed As Commodore of Yacht Club

Eli Feldman of West Newton was installed as Commodore of the Metropolitan Yacht Club in East Braintree last week in one of the most impressive ceremonies ever to be held at the Club. The Club is embarking on its 25th year, and Feldman, a veteran of many years in boating, becomes its 21st Commodore.

Also installed were Vice Commodore, Sidney Freedman of Milton; Rear Commodore, Morton Weiner of Newton, and Fleet Captain, Nathan Sherman of Quincy. Other officers of the Yacht Club, largest in the South Shore area, are Gabriel Lightman, Secretary; Dr. Jerome Wasserman, Treasurer, and Marvin Kaplan, Corresponding Secretary.

Lighman is a resident of Newton, Dr. Wasserman of Braintree, and Kaplan lives in Brookline. Past Commodore Bernard Reisberg of Quincy was the installing officer and Dr. Abraham Alter of Quincy, David Vigorita of Newton, and Ben Ross of Hyde Park were among the past commodores present for the ceremonies.

Close to 100 small craft of every description and size are docked at the East Braintree Club which is on the Fore River. Its unique location is a haven of refuge for many yachts in the area.

Commodore Feldman, who succeeds Commodore Herbert Gorfinkle of Braintree, indicated that he anticipates a "progressive" as well as a safe boating year.

Meanwhile the Club is the center for boating activities all year round. A Coast Guard auxiliary course in navigation is given there every Sunday morning and social functions are held throughout the year once a month.

Among the committee chairmen named by Feldman to new posts are Dock and Float Chairman, Bill Kaitz; Finance and Budget, Al Goldstein; Fleet Surgeon, Dr. Gerald Rosenblatt; Coast Guard, Mike Bumenthal; Good Cheer, Ed Simons; Goodwill, Kenneth Wax; House, Sol Kurlansky; Legal, Milton Yakus; Legislative, Bernard Michelson; Membership, Merrill Albert; Building & Improvement, Bill Paisner; Parliamentary, Larry Belsky; Pool, Joe Ganek; Publicity, Al Keene; Race, Herb Marcus; Safety, Al Brenner; Ways & Means, Ed Kupchik; Junior Membership, Dr. Allen Morse; Board of Trustees, Mal Fox and Mark Karsh.

Service the borrower should phone the Main Library, 527-7700 and ask for Shut-In Reader Service. The Library takes it from there!

Mrs. Sheila Brownstein, the Reader's Adviser can discuss reading interests, provide suggestions and organize individual deliveries. Books are delivered personally after a date and time for delivery has been pre-arranged on the telephone.

The Shut-In Service is still another example of the Library's commitment to reach out to the community it serves.

BU Professor Studies One-Year-Olds At Play

Edward Mueller of Newton, assistant professor of psychology at Boston University, has observed the formation of friendships among one-year old children in a small bi-weekly play-group.

Mueller says that if children begin to meet regularly, with a minimum of adult supervision when they are as young as one year old, they develop friendships which tone down the conflicts and possessiveness of the "grabby" two-year-old stage.

As a result of his observations over the course of the past year, Mueller rejects the current axiom in psychology which says that very young children are "egocentric" and tend to ignore or be hostile to each other.

Mueller says that the children began by focussing on toys. Then they began to imitate each other's play with toys.

"Before long, however, one child begins to notice that the other is doing just what he did. His newfound ability to influence the behavior of his strange and complicated little playmates is a startling revelation. Both children smile in glee. The toy is tried over and over again with great mutual satisfaction."

"The toy has become more than a game for one. It has started the learning of social skills: for example, turn taking, giving and receiving, laughing at the perfect moment, even hitting. Parents may shudder at the idea of 'learning' hitting, but in reality negative behavior is an inevitable part of learning to deal with others."

Mueller explained that the basic philosophy behind his research is that 1-year-olds deserve a chance to be with each other while parents are relegated to the background.

Play groups should be small: "What works with five kids might be a disaster with ten, even if you add another adult," Mueller declares. The membership of the group should be constant so that real friendships and social skills emerge, Mueller states.
